Protest Rises Against Plan To Abolish Safety Squad

39-Man Police Unit Called 'Fancy Frill' By Schulte; Could Be Better Used, He Says

Representative Schulte yesterday denounced the police department's accident prevention unit as a "fancy frill" in face of a storm of protest by key city officials and traffic safety experts against a purported move to abolish the special squad.

The Indiana Democrat, currently preparing a report on District police reorganization as chairman of a House investigating subcommittee, insisted that the 39-man personnel of the accident prevention unit could be better utilized in "fighting crime."

Behind-the-Scenes Battle

Protestants against elimination of the A. P. U. declared that Washington's traffic problem with its annual heavy loss of life—79 died on District streets in 1940—was equally as important as the acute crime situation here.

Other developments yesterday in the proposed police administration shake-up:

A behind-the-scenes battle over the selection of a new chief of detectives was started by proponents of Capt. Ira Keck, acting chief, and Capt. Floyd Truscott, of the Tenth Precinct.

Capt. John Fowler, of Thirteenth Precinct, Capt. Clarence Talley, of Tenth, and Lieut. Robert Barrett, of Third, all former ace detectives, were slated to fill three of the four "super-sleuth" posts in the new detective bureau.

Would Add 200

Meanwhile, it was learned yesterday that the subcommittee's report on police reorganization, expected to be completed Monday, would likely include the following recommendations:

Increasing the metropolitan force by 200 police.

Equipping all cruiser cars with two-way radios.

Abolition of the special investigations squad, described as a "Gestapo" in the recent hearings, and revival of pickup squad to concentrate on vagrants.

Creation of a crime laboratory and appointment of a full time medical examiner.

Elimination of the Commissioners' power to override findings of the Police Trial Board.

Compulsory retirement of police at 65, with retirement at 60 discretionary on the part of the Commissioners.

Reorganization of the Detective Bureau with a scale of salaries

Nun on Outing Drowned After Saving 4 Sisters

Baltimore, July 23 (AP).—Sister Mary Lawrence, of Mount St. Agnes Convent, drowned off Riviera Beach today after rescuing four other sisters who had fallen into a sink hole while wading a short distance from shore.

Sister Lawrence, whose home is in Savannah, Ga., was one of a bus load of Sisters of Mercy on an all-day outing. Police reported five of the sisters went wading and suddenly stumbled in the sink hole.

Sister Lawrence, the only one who could swim, succeeded in rescuing her companions before she disappeared under the water.

Another Jurisdictional Dispute

Auto Production Cut to Force OPM-Henderson Showdown

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

The long-growing dispute over the scope and authority of the OPM and the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply appeared yesterday about to crystallize on the issue of which agency should order and plan the 50 per cent cut in passenger car production which both believe necessary.

It was learned yesterday that despite clear intimations given by OPM Chief William S. Knudsen that the OPM auto section would order the curtailment gradually and step by step with compensating new defense orders going into the plants, OPACS Administrator Leon Henderson is working ahead and soon will submit his own program for halving the industry's production beginning August 1.

Henderson's proposal, made last Saturday, yesterday brought a delegation of auto workers and Gov. Murray D. VanWagoner, of Michigan, to protest the suddenness of the cuts to Henderson and the OPM.

That the OPM intended to proceed with the curtailment in its own fashion was indicated by the fact that OPM officials met with VanWagoner and auto labor union representatives in an all day session yesterday, at which it was learned the "gradual" method was discussed and promises were made that the Army and Navy would expedite the flow of defense work into auto plants.

In addition, Knudsen said that although OPACS would be consulted, the cut would be arranged by OPM auto commodity chief James S. Adams, nad that "we will have to go about it in a cooperative way with the industry."

"You can't just chop off 50 per cent tomorrow," Knudsen pointedly remarked, "or you'll have a lot of people walking the streets."

Knudsen pointed out that when a similar proposal was made six

Henderson 'Smart,' Connally Admits

Price Administrator Henderson yesterday told the Senate Defense Investigating Committee he was going to fix refrigerator prices.

"You just think you are, but you're not," snapped Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas.

"I'll just lay a little bet on that; I've got the authority," Henderson said.

"If you did not know so much," Connally replied, "I wouldn't be afraid of you. But you are too darn smart and know so much that you have become a dangerous figure—a threat."

Board Planned To Develop Parking Areas

Bill Going to Congress Soon, Whitehurst Says; Gas Tax Rise Favored

Legislation to establish a District Parking Commission with power to develop and operate off-street parking areas in Washington will be sent to Congress within ten days, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District Highway Director, yesterday told a House subcommittee.

Whitehurst was a witness before the District Affairs Subcommittee which is conducting hearings on legislation to raise the city's gasoline tax 2 cents a gallon to finance his $44,500,000 highway improvement program. The hearing also developed:

Strong congressional sentiment both for the highway program and the gas tax increase. One member of the subcommittee announced he was ready to vote for the proposals "now," while a District legislative leader expressed the opinion the bill would be approved "in a minute" and without further hearings.

An attack by Representative Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, chairman of the subcommittee, on the efficiency of Washington police in handling traffic. He called it "pathetic."

Hunter, while admitting the strength of House sentiment for doubling the present District gasoline tax, announced that spokesmen for Washington's automobile clubs which are either opposed to any increase at all or to a boost above 1 cent, will be given a hearing Tuesday morning. The District Commissioners, he said, will be asked to explain at a hearing Wednesday their indorsement of the plan for financing the highway program with a 2-cent increase.

While draft of the parking bill has yet to be put in final form, the commission it would set up will

3½ Billion Tax Bill Raised 29 Million More

Ways, Means Group Approves It After Proposing New Levies

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The House Ways and Means Committee last night approved the Administration's defense tax bill after running proposed revenues up to $3,529,200,000 by adding taxes on sale of radio time, billboards and yachts, and by higher estate and gift levies.

In a session lasting past the dinner hour, the committee plugged revenue gaps left by last-minute modifications, then turned the completed measure over to draftsmen for final polishing strokes.

Rescinded by the committee in an eleventh-hour action were proposed taxes on candy and chewing gum, cutlery and metal signs, while commutation tickets for one month or less would be exempted from proposed transportation levies.

Proposed Levies

A $26,100,000 net revenue loss resulted, plus ten million dollars lost earlier in lowered wine schedules. A search for more revenue followed, with excursions into new fields to keep the bill above the $3,500,000,000 agreed on.

When the committee closed the bill, after a day and night session, these taxes had been added:

Graduated rates starting at 5 per cent on net income in excess of $100,000 annually from radio broadcasting net time sales—yield $4,500,000.

A graduated use tax on yachts ranging from $5 to $200, depending on the size of the craft—yield $200,000.

An occupational tax on billboards, payable by those persons in the business, with levies on each sign based on size—yield

But Need is Still Great

5-Cent Milk Sales Likely To Set Record This Month

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Sales of 5-cent quarts of milk to needy families are virtually certain to pass the 90,000 mark this month, a new record, it was predicted yesterday.

Milk cards issued to approximately 1,500 individuals and family heads stricken from WPA rolls since July 1, are accountable for most of the gain in volume, explained David Miller, surplus commodity director of the Department of Public Welfare.

More than 3,000 of the nickel quarts are now being sold daily at the city's 11 surplus milk depots. This figure is expected to rise gradually as checks begin to go out to families newly added to the direct relief roster, many of whom were formerly on WPA.

Encouraging as this increased participation in the Federally subsidized milk program is, the program still is reaching only a fraction of the number who legitimately qualified as needy, those who are too poor to fill their household milk requirements when compelled to pay the full market price.

Conrad Van Hyning, acting welfare director, yesterday voiced hope for early action by the Surplus Marketing Administration on his request that the low cost quarts be extended to WPA families and recipients of private charity.

Van Hyning's application, made more than a month ago, has been laid aside by the SMA dairy division pending outcome of milk producers' demand for a cent-a-quart price increase.

The Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association is asking the boost on relief milk, as well as other Class I milk retailed at the regular prices of 11 to 14 cents a quart.

Germans Admit Russian Reserves Are Slowing Up Drive on Moscow

(Detailed Accounts, Pages 2 and 3.)

By the United Press

Nazi quarters acknowledged early today that on the vast eastern front fresh masses of Russian reinforcements thrown into "the greatest and bloodiest" battle in history had slowed down the German armies pounding toward Moscow and Leningrad.

They claimed more success on the southern sector, where the grain-rich Ukraine is their target.

Both British and French military analysts believed that Germany's second big offensive in the Battle of Russia appears to have spent it force after two weeks of gigantic effort.

[A New York Times dispatch from Bern, Switzerland, said that according to Russian commentators, German efforts to widen the base of the Smolensk-Moscow drive were finally abandoned in yesterday's fighting in this area.

Further Push Abandoned

[The Berlin correspondent of a Bern newspaper said the push beyond Smolensk was being temporarily abandoned "owing to Russian resistance."

[The Germans appear to be digging in for "defensive preparations," the Russian commentators said.]

The Germans said three titanic "pocket battles" were raging in the Smolensk, Kiev and Lake Piepus (Leningrad) sectors, with Red armies struggling to hold their main fronts.

Kiev, Berlin claimed, is threatened with encirclement from three directions.

Four Assaults Revealed

Moscow told of mighty German assaults on four main sectors—190 miles northeast of Leningrad, 150 miles south of Leningrad, around Smolensk 230 miles west of Moscow and in the Zhitomir region, 80 miles southwest of the Ukrainian capital of Kiev.

The Russians said Red armies were putting up a stonewall defense and appeared to be holding against the masses of armored German forces being thrown against them.

A later Soviet communique, issued Wednesday night, failed to mention the Leningrad front but told of the "rout" of a panzer regiment on the southern Bessarabian front.

Marshall Calls Anti-Holdover Activity Worst Sort of Sabotage

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Gen. George C. Marshall said yesterday the Army will discipline selectees or National Guardsmen who petition members of Congress to oppose their retention in service.

The chief of staff characterized such activity as "sabotage of the worst sort" and indicated his belief that the letters from soldiers and groups of soldiers received on Capitol Hill were the result of "organized efforts from some source outside the Army."

Marshall was before the House Military Affairs Committee all day long testifying in support of the troop-retention legislation, much of the time in secret session. Afterward committee members quoted him as having declared that three South American nations face possible Nazi uprisings.

Army to Submit Bill

The committeemen, who declined to let their names be used, said Gen. Marshall had described Brazil as the most likely point of trouble. Bolivia and Colombia were said to be other possible centers of Nazi coups.

Some committeemen said Marshall had told them that he feared Russia might soon fall before the German army and that Hitler might thereby get the Bering Strait bases, only a few miles from Alaska.

An indication that the Nation's ranking Army chief disclosed other information to bolster President Roosevelt's request for a Congressional declaration of a national emergency to keep selectees and Guardsmen in uniform was given by Chairman May.

"I think the situation is more serious than the general public realise and is getting worse," May said after hearing Marshall's secret testimony.

Hemisphere Issue Out

He added that he thought a majority of the committee was ready to approve the legislation now, although further hearings will be held.

Meanwhile, members of the Senate Military Affairs Committee said the War Department planned to submit legislation to the group this morning calling for a declaration of a full national emergency.

The Army proposal will be a suggested substitute for the Thomas resolution now before the committee which would declare an emer-

Keeping Axis in Line

Hitler 'Reassures' Japanese Of Complete Victory This Year

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo (Thursday), July 24.—Alarmed lest the reorganization of the cabinet, with its emphasis on the change of foreign ministry, signify a change in Japanese policy, Adolph Hitler has informed Japan these future world events would take place as follows:

The German conquest of Russia will be completed by the end of August.

The German invasion and conquest of Britain will take place in September.

The war will end with a grandiose German victory before winter.

Even pro-Axis Japanese record these predictions with a considerable degree of skepticism, but in the light of past German performances even anti-Axis Japanese do not take them lightly and are inclined to consider them expressions of German determination rather than mere boasts.

Whether such a grandiose German victory, which would mean German domination of a considerable part of Asia and would make the German power sphere, a neighbor of Japan's own sphere of influence is really the best argument to reassure Japan is a question. But apparently Hitler regards it as the best argument to present to Japan against any change in its policy with respect

Bomb on Ship Bars Japanese From Panama

Vessels Refused Entry To Canal; Nomura Confers With Welles

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Discovery of a time-bomb aboard a Japanese ship at the Panama Canal was the reason that passage through the Canal has been barred to Japanese vessels, a well-informed Administration source asserted yesterday.

This sensational report reached The Post as relations between Japan and the United States, badly strained by Japanese demands on French Indo-China, approached their blackest hours since the bombing of the U. S. S. Panay in December, 1937.

Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the Japanese Ambassador, conferred for a half hour yesterday afternoon with Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State. They discussed the American refusal to let Japanese ships use the Canal, Nomura said. It was also understood that they reviewed the Indo-Chinese crisis in its relation to peace in the Pacific, each official presenting the point of view of his own government.

The report of the thwarted Japanese attempt to bomb the Canal was immediately referred to the War Department, which administers the Canal Zone, where spokesmen said, "No comment." The State Department said it had no information on the subject, while the Navy Department and the White House also declined comment.

Nomura told reporters that he had been informed by Welles that the Canal had been closed indefinitely to merchant shipping because of repairs.

As a result, said the tall, smiling Japanese envoy, eight or ten of his country's ships had given up waiting and had set a course for Japan via the long Cape Horn route.

Bernard F. Burdick, chief of the Panama Canal office here, told The Buenos Aires, July 23.—Strategic and comprehensive maps of Argentina's oil fields and what were described officially as "other compromising documents" were seized by Argentine authorities today in two lightning raids on alleged Nazi headquarters in Buenos Aires and the offices of the German labor front.

By tonight the list of those arrested had grown to 15

Bolivia Uncovers New Revolt Plot

La Paz, July 23 (INS).—Bolivia tonight announced it had uncovered a new military conspiracy to overthrow the government.

A communique emphasized that the new plot was in no way connected with the Nazi conspiracy smashed Sunday night.

All participants in the new plot have been arrested.

Political and military leaders already are under arrest in the alleged Nazi revolt plan which resulted in expulsion of German Minister Ernest Wendler and a subsequent vitriolic protest from Berlin, which Bolivia promptly rejected.

Only a few hours before the new military conspiracy was uncovered, the Bolivian government produced documents to prove existence of the earlier Nazi plot. These documents purported to show that the conspirators planned to set up the Bolivian air attache at Berlin as "a puppet dictator."

Threat of War Such as in Syria Led to the Move, French Assert

Bulletin

Saigon, French Indo-China, July 24 (AP).—Foreign consulates said today their representatives in Hanoi had been advised by the Indo-China government of a French-Japanese agreement granting the Japanese certain naval and military concessions in southern Indo-China.

BULLETIN

Stockholm, July 23 (INS).—Unconfirmed reports reaching Stockholm from Berlin late tonight said Japanese troops had entered Indo-China at six points and had occupied two airdromes in the French colony.

Vichy, July 23.—France has accepted Japanese demands for virtually complete military control of Indo-China to prevent that rich Asiatic colony from falling under British domination, it was disclosed tonight.

The French acceptance so far is "in principle" and some details remain to be worked out before a formal agreement is initialed, it was said.

Meanwhile, conversations are being continued and there will be further conferences tomorrow.

An official spokesman said Japan demanded additional bases in Indo-China "as a temporary military measure to defend Indo-China against a combination of followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle (leader of the pro-British Free France movement) and British and Chinese."

Guided by Syrian War

"France sees no inconvenience in permitting Japan temporarily to occupy military bases in Indo-China on the condition there is no menace to Indo-Chinese integrity and French sovereignty," the spokesman said. "Japan has made no territorial demands. We merely want to protect Indo-China."

British "aggression" against Syria played a decisive role in determining French policy, the spokesman said. He firmly denied reports Germany had intervened here to support Japan's demands and said Japan did not present France with an ultimatum. All arrangements were made in friendly negotiations in Vichy and Hanoi.

The spokesman indicated that the governor general of Indo-China, Vice Admiral Jean de Coux, has a free hand in dealing with the Japanese military mission in Hanoi, leading observers to believe that Japanese occupation of the Saigon area, the partly completed French naval base at Camranh Bay, near Saigon, and of other points, already may be under way.

"Japan's Dominant Position"

The spokesman "confirmed" Japanese assertions that nationalist China, Britain and British-supported De Gaullist units were planning an invasion of Indo-China, presumably to gain control of the approaches to Singapore, Thailand and Burma.

"There is a concentration of Chinese troops in Yunnan Province on the northern Indo-China border," the spokesman said, "and there are concentrations of English troops and aviation in British Burma and in British Malaya. These concentrations and reports of a British or-

'In Extreme Danger'

Probably Can't Evade War, Willkie Warns America

By International News Service

Los Angeles, July 23.—Wendell Willkie asserted tonight that "America is in extreme danger" and said that war probably will come to the United States "whatever course we take."

Addressing a mass meeting called by the All-Southern California Committee in Hollywood Bowl, Willkie called for "actual delivery" of aid to England, saying that the defense of freedom will require that America "escort" its merchant ships "through the perilous waters of the North Atlantic."

He said that President Roosevelt has failed "in the most elementary task" of defense management and that the defense program is in danger, but added:

"The cure for a bad defense program is not more opposition, but more support."

"The fact is," he said, after discussing the debate between noninterventionists and internationalists, "that America is in extreme danger. It is a sophistry to try to define this danger in purely territorial terms. Of course it is true that there is no immediate danger of a wholesale naval and air attack on our shores.

"As the situation develops there will doubtless be other moves we will be compelled to make . . . Of course, it is true that we should like to be spared the necessity of making such moves. And, therefore, it is easy for us to accept those arguments which appear to make the moves unnecessary.

"For instance, it is suggested that all we have to do is to give Britain plenty of ships, and let her operate those ships . . . That argument overlooks the fact that Britain lacks the crews to man all the ships she needs. This applies equally to the merchant marine and to the naval forces.

Nazi Nationals In Shanghai Urged to Stay

By Douglas Robertson
Copyright by New York Times

Shanghai, July 23.—German nationals in Shanghai are at present strongly, yet unofficially, urged to remain here during the summer months and give up all plans for summering at Tsingtao or other north China resorts.

German authorities here believe there is a possibility of Shanghai being cut off from Japan, and even other Chinese ports, because of the presence of Soviet submarines in Japanese and Chinese waters.

It is declared here a large proportion of the Soviet's Baltic fleet, including many submarines, is at present on its way to the Far East via the northern route along the Siberian coast, apparently for reprisals in northern Pacific waters should Japan attack the maritime provinces of Siberia.

Banks on German Victory.

It seems now Japan is banking heavily on a German victory, with a subsequent Japanese attack on Siberia. Reports from north China declare all rail transport is practically suspended, freight and passenger trains being withdrawn and the railroads, especially the Peking-Hankow and the Peking-Tientsin, northward into Manchuria 90 per cent turned over to the military.

Although all troop movements are shrouded in secrecy, it is practically an open secret that they have only one destination, Northern Manchuria.

Japanese shipping lines on the Chinese coast are no longer publishing the sailing dates of their steamers. Sailing announcements of all nationalities at present consist of cryptic advertisements such as, "ship sailing first or second or third week of August."

Prior to the outbreak of German-Soviet hostilities German firms operating on the Chinese coast bought up thousands of tons of necessary war raw materials, which they shipped to Germany by the Trans-Siberian railroad and through Manchuria and Vladivostok.

Shipments Now Impossible

The outbreak of war found these firms and their intermediaries with immense stocks stored and awaiting shipment, which is now impossible. However, these German firms, their agents and go-betweens refuse to part with any and all stocks of materials, even when offered fabulous prices.

The contention here is that the Germans believe the Reich will soon overrun all of Russia, even including Vladivostok. The Germans declare that within European Russia internal revolts will break out and help overthrow Josef Stalin's regime, and they hope such outbreaks of revolt will spread to the maritime provinces, allowing German forces to reach the northern Pacific.

Post, on the other hand, that he has received no notice of the closing of the Canal and that as far as his office knows American ships are making transits "as usual." An average of 70 to 80 ships of all flags clear through the canal each week, he said.

Nomura, after his call on Welles, told reporters that the Japanese ships could not remain at the Canal "permanently" awaiting permission to transit, so they had sailed for home around South America.

The Associated Press meanwhile reported from New York that "well-informed" Japanese quarters in Tokyo were quoted as saying that willful discrimination was responsible for difficulties United States authorities were making for Japanese ships seeking to use the Panama Canal.

The only other statement Nonura would make after his call was to express a hope "that the feeling between our two countries will become better and better."

The course of Japanese negotiations over Indo-China with the French government was rapidly bringing both the Vichy and Tokyo regimes into increasing disfavor in Washington.

The possibilities grew stronger that the United States might invoke economic sanctions against Japan, starting with a complete embargo on oil shipments. Officials have continued to let Japan have oil up to the present time on the theory that if they deprived Tokyo of American petroleum the Japanese would invade the Dutch East Indies to seize supplies there.

It was also considered likely that the State Department would soon send a message to the Vichy government about further military concessions to the Axis.

Officials consider Indo-China but a stepping stone to a Japanese grab for Thailand (Siam), which would place the British base at Singapore in immediate peril. American officials were not ready to forgive Vichy for consenting to Japanese "protection" of strategic Indo-China.

Earlier, Navy Secretary Knox said "yes" when he was asked at a press conference whether the United States Fleet was in a position to do "whatever is necessary to carry out our policy in the Far East."

Knox was unusually laconic in his remarks on the Far Eastern situation, but even so, Welles later told reporters that Knox was speaking for himself.

The Navy head also had said that there was "no question" but that recent developments in the Far East presaged new aggressive moves.

"I look for movement out there and very soon."

The tone of the highest official reaction to Japan's newest grab for power was set by Welles. He told his press conference that he could simply underline the anxiety expressed Tuesday over the Far Eastern situation by President Roosevelt.

In private conversations, other officials reflected this attitude. They underscored the gravity of the situation, but allowed no hint of their plan of action to be made public. Apparently a war of nerves to keep the Japanese guessing and to temper their martial spirit, if it were not too late, was in the making.

President Roosevelt was kept informed from hour to hour of changes in the Pacific situation.

Vichy Yielding Bases in Indo-China

ganized movement against Indo-China led both the French and Japanese governments to fear that a joint Anglo-Chinese attempt to occupy Indo-China was planned.

"France cannot defend Indo-China alone. We had proof of that in Syria.

"Japan's intervention comes within the 1940 pact which recognizes Japan's dominant position in East Asia. We believe it is Japan's responsibility to see that peaceful conditions in East Asia are maintained."

Conversations concerning interpretation of the 1940 French-Japanese accord, to fix Japan's exact responsibility in her role of defender of Indo-China, are proceeding in Vichy, and in Hanoi where De Coux is conferring with the chief of the Japanese military mission, Maj. Gen. Raishiro Sumita. The Hanoi negotiations concern details of Japan's occupation of southern Indo-China bases, air fields and strategic points.

Neither the Vichy nor the Hanoi conversations have been completed, the spokesman insisted.

No Question of Payment

He said there was no question of payment by Japan for use of the French bases.

Asked by American correspondents why France had not invited the United States instead of Japan to help defend Indo-China, the spokesman said that a year ago, during the border conflict with Thailand, "we asked the United States what aid they could give us in Indo-China, but we got nothing out of Washington."

Japan, on the other hand, offered mediation of the Thai-Indo-Chinese border conflict and arranged a satisfactory ending of that incident, the spokesman said.

Troop Convoy Seen

Chungking, China, July 23.—Thirty Japanese troop transports convoyed by three warships were seen sailing southward past Hongkong five days ago, apparently prepared to back up reported Japanese demands for the right to establish bases in southern Indo-China, the Chinese military intelligence director told foreign correspondents late today.

In addition, the director, Admiral Yang Shuen-cken, said seven heavy Japanese warships, three aircraft carriers and 55 destroyers were sighted southbound from Japanese waters yesterday.

The Japanese program is aimed eventually at the invasion of Burma and Thailand, he said.

THINGS TO COME?—Observers in Shanghai believe Japanese forces, reported concentrating at Hainan, were planning a move into French-Indo China. Singapore Gets More Planes to Counter Japan

By the Associated Press

London, July 23.—Singapore and other British Pacific outposts were reported tonight to have been "forewarned and forearmed" with new R.A.F. contingents to meet a Far Eastern threat from Japanese demands on French Indo-China.

R. A. F. reinforcements which arrived in Singapore from Britian last Saturday were said by British sources to have been ordered distributed to outlying posts for any eventuality.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden expressed Britain's official concern as well-authenticated reports from the Orient said Japan was making sweeping demands on Indo-China, presumably for military bases in the south.

U. S. Retaliation Foreseen

British and United States governments were said to have reached an understanding on measures necessitated by the growing Japanese pressure on the French South Pacific colony. Well-informed sources said the two governments had been in closest consultation since a Japanese decision to move southward became known.

The British were confident any Japanese adventure in Indo-China would bring quick retaliation from the United States, possibly in economic forms already invoked against other Axis powers.

Grave concern over the threat to Singapore and the rubber and tin riches of the Netherlands East Indies through any Japanese occupation of Southern Indo-China was evident in London.

Eden told Parliament the government knew of reports that the Japanese planned such occupation and said Japanese press allegations of British designs on Thailand and Indo-China were false.

The foreign secretary pointed out Britain has a nonaggression treaty with Thailand, but said it was aimed against a third power only "insofar as such third power may attempt to interfere with those excellent neighborly relations which have always existed between Great Britain and Thailand."

Dutch Navy Strong

The defensive situation in the Netherlands East Indies was regarded in London as 100 per cent better than it was in 1940.

One informed source said that the Netherlands navy defending the islands was as strong as the British Far Eastern naval establishment.

Experts explained that Japanese bases in Indo-China would force Britain and the United States to rearrange their Far Eastern strategy. They pointed out that a base for Japanese ships and planes on Camranh Bay would neatly by-pass American naval and air forces stationed in the Philippines.

Such a base might also challenge British sea power based on Singapore and threaten to cut the Malay Peninsula with troops.

George Asks Independent U. S. Policy in Far East

By the Associated Press

Chairman George (Democrat), of Georgia, of the Senate Foreign Relation Committee, urged yesterday that the United States adopt an independent foreign policy—possibly paralleling but not coinciding with that of Great Britain—in dealing with problems arising out of Japan's threatened move into Indo-China.

George told reporters that he hoped this country would not "confuse" its policies in the Far East with those of Britain, adding:

"I hope and have the feeling and belief that we are trying to shape ours as strictly an American policy. For that reason, I think it must be assumed that any joint action we might take with Great Britain would stop with an exchange of information about plans."

He said he questioned that this Government would "go to the extreme" of cutting off all trade with Japan, indicating there was a fear in some quarters that the abrupt cessation of shipments of oil and other vital supplies might cause a Japanese thrust immediately toward the Dutch East Indies.

George indicated that officials of this Government retained hopes that the status quo of the Far East might not be too greatly disturbed by Japanese incursions into Indo-China.

He made it plain, however, that he did not believe this Government would recognize any Japanese right to bases and other concessions that might be won through forceful demands on the Vichy government.

U. S. Congressmen Invited to Britain

London, July 23 (U.P.).—A representative group of United States Senators and Representatives has been invited to visit Britain soon and obtain first-hand impressions of "British life in all its aspects under wartime conditions," it was disclosed tonight.

The invitation, which suggested that the Representatives and Senators travel aboard new American-made bombers en route to England, was issued by the British Inter-Parliamentary Union and the British Council, through the Inter-Parliamentary Union in America.

Russians Rout Panzer Forces On South Front

By the United Press

Moscow (Thursday), July 24.—The Russian high command reported a "stubborn" stone-wall stand by Soviet troops against massive Nazi assaults pointed at Moscow and Kiev and a decisive rout of German panzer forces on the southern Bessarabian front.

A German motorized regiment, driven in retreat on the Bessarabian front along the western border of the rich Ukraine north of Odessa, was said to have abandoned large amounts of war booty including 32 armored cars and tanks, 400 vehicles, 300 motorcycles and 33 guns and mortars.

The high command's communique covering Wednesday's action said fierce fighting was under way on four vital fronts: the Polotsk-Nevel sector, 208 miles directly west of Moscow; the key Smolensk region, 230 miles from the capital; the Bessarabian front and the Zhitomir sector 80 miles west of Kiev.

Moscow Buildings Afire

The communique made no mention of any kind of the progress of the Germans' attempted encirclement of Leningrad down across the Karelian Isthmus and east of Lake Ladoga and up from Porkhov, 150 miles south of Russia's second city.

Continued "concentrated" attacks by the Red air fleet against German mechanized and supply columns and Luftwaffe planes on Nazi airdromes behind the front were described.

German bombers, smashing at Moscow last night for the second straight night, killed or wounded "several dozen" persons, set buildings afire and gouged great bomb craters in the streets, but the government asserted that the attack, like the previous one, had "ended in failure."

(The Stockholm newspaper Allehanda said the Moscow radio had admitted that the Red army headquarters building in Moscow had been "destroyed" and that "a great number of people" were killed or wounded.)

150 Planes Are Routed

Most of the fires started in the attack, lasting for five hours, were put out rapidly by professional and volunteer firefighters and apparently no substantial damage was done.

An official communique said about 150 Nazi planes had attempted to smash through to Moscow, compared with 200 during Monday night's five and a half hour assault, but that as on the previous occasion Russian night fighter planes and antiaircraft batteries threw up such a web of resistance that "only isolated planes broke through to the city."

Fifteen raiders were said to have been shot down by Soviet fighter planes and antiaircraft fire, compared with 22 Monday night.

[Moscow had an hour and 20-minute raid early last night but it was without incident, the Associated press reported.]

39 Nazi Planes Downed

The Wednesday morning communique laying stress upon successes of the Red air force, said during Tuesday night 39 German planes were destroyed in air battles and on the ground, not including the planes brought down in the attack on Moscow.

(A Russian Tass Agency report heard by the United Press listening post in New York said headquarters of the Third Battalion of the 455th infantry regiment of the 134th German infantry division had been captured by Soviet troops.

10 Nazi Transports, Tanker Destroyed

Moscow, July 23 (INS).—Ten German troopships and one tanker were sunk in the Baltic Sea by Soviet destroyers, planes and shore guns that attacked and shattered a big Nazi convoy, a Russian radio announcement said.

The convoy was headed north, evidently for Finland.

Spotted by Russian reconnaissance planes, it was recounted, the Nazi convoy first drew the heavy fire of Soviet guns on the coast. Followed by dive bombings by Red planes. In the first half of the action, according to the Soviet account, five troop transports were quickly sunk and the tanker was so badly damaged that she went to the bottom a few minutes later.

A soviet destroyer flotilla then appeared on the scene, it was added, and its guns sent an additional five German troopships to their doom.

'Fanatical' Reds Stall 2 Drives, Nazis Admit

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Thursday), July 24.—A German military spokesman acknowledged last night that masses of fresh Russian troops fighting with "fanatical obstinacy" have slowed down Nazi armored drives on Moscow and Leningrad.

The German spearheads pointed at the two great Russian cities are not only trying to force their way eastward but are constantly compelled to fight off "extremely ferocious Soviet counterattacks," he said.

The spokesman told of large "pockets of Russian troops holding out deep in the rear of the German advance forces, forcing Nazi supply columns to make extensive detours along the main highway from Smolensk to Moscow and in some instances preventing these columns from catching up with the panzer vanguard.

Weather Slows Advance

Further aggravating the advance of the Germans on Moscow and Leningrad, it was said, was extremely unfavorable weather including cloudbursts that turned roads into quagmires and mired mechanized equipment.

The fighting front was said officially to be 30 miles deep in some places as the Germans attempted a series of encircling attacks aiming to wipe out the strongly resisting Russian forces before the approaches to Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev.

Describing the fanatical obstinacy" of the Red army troops, the spokesman said that the Russians were fighting to the death, even when encircled, thus accounting for terrific Russian loss of life and a comparatively small number of prisoners taken by the Nazis in recent days.

Many Entrapped Twice

He said few of the Russians had been able to break out of the German steel rings and that many of these were immediately entrapped in new pockets, under constant aerial bombardment.

German quarters asserted the Russian high command, by concentrating great masses of reserves around Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev, was to a great extent aiding the broad aims of German strategy providing for the encirclement and "annihilation" of the Red army.

Nazi quarters refrained Wednesday from any claims of fresh gains in the direction of Moscow or Leningrad.

But Kiev, capital and key city of the rich Ukraine, is being enveloped from three sides in a giant pincer assault that has carried Nazi columns to the city's main defenses on the north and east with other forces approaching from the south, it was claimed.

The high command said "heavy destruction" was caused in the second consecutive mass air raid on Moscow Tuesday night, with 10,000 incendiaries and a large number of bombs of the heaviest caliber being dropped on the Soviet capital.

"Fires from the previous night's raids were not yet distinguished," the communique said.

Only one German plane failed to return from the raid, the Nazis claimed.

In an aerial bombardment of Odessa, the Soviet Black Sea port, the Germans were said to have scored more than 50 bomb hits on shipyards there. A 6,000-ton merchant ship was set on fire with several bombs and a 3,000-ton vessel was damaged.

The official D. N. B. new agency said that northeast of Zhitomir the Germans encircled the remnants of "several" Russian divisions and killed 4,000 Soviet troops, wounded many more and took many prisoners.

Another claim was that at an unspecified place on the central front many prisoners were taken from 18 different Soviet divisions, evidently survivors of badly battered enemy units.

92 Tanks Wiped Out

D. N. B. said a German panzer division operating south of Kiev had wiped out a Russian tank formation, destroying 92 enemy tanks.

Another D. N. B. dispatch said that in the Smolensk area Monday a German tank regiment attacked and broke up a Soviet division.

Hitler 'Reassures' Japan of Victory

to the Triple Alliance.

In any case, as is again emphasized by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye's message to Wang Ching-Wei, head of the Chinese puppet government, published today to the effect that "there is of course no change whatever in Japan's foreign policy," insistence on the immutability of Japan's fundamental policy is becoming the motif of all Japanese official, unofficial and press pronouncements.

From these as well as accompanying declarations, neutral observers here deduce that for the present the Japanese government will continue its policy of watchful waiting while preparing for all eventualities. This preparation dominates Japanese life today.

According to official statements this preparation is proceeding along a two-fold course: Strengthening the internal structure of the country, which was disturbed by the divergence of views following the outbreak of the Russo-German war and which, according to Prince Konoye's message, was the main reason for the reorganization of the cabinet; and perfection of a "high degree" defense state through the strenuous application of the national mobilization law.

This application of the national mobilization law is beginning to penetrate every phase of the lives of Japanese as well as foreigners in Japan and has led to extensive regulation of trade, commerce, travel and communications for all.

Germans Put On Defensive, Russia Claims

By Daniel T. Brigham
Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland, July 23.—German efforts to widen the base of the Smolensk-Moscow drive, particularly between the "guard points" of Solovjeva and Prost, which had suffered costly checks during six consecutive days, were finally abandoned in today's fighting in this area, according to Russian commentators, who tell of "defensive preparations" being carried out by the Germans as they appear to be digging in.

Lending weight to the Russian claim is a report to a neutral newspaper from its Berlin correspondent today. He tells of German attempts to push beyond Smolensk being temporarily abandoned "owing to Russian resistance, which has led the German high command, according to informed quarters in Berlin, to change its plans momentarily."

While it is still too early to form any definite conclusions as to the fighting on the Eastern Front, Russian military commentators tonight appeared to be considerably more optimistic in their references to the "fierce and bloody battles" at present being waged with almost no break along the entire 1,800-mile front.

Though not rashly over-confident in their assertions, they nevertheless found repeated occasions to intimate that there are increasing signs that the tide of battle is gradually swinging to the Russian side.

At many points—notably in the Pskov-Porkhov, Vitebsk, Smolensk, Bobruisk and Novograd Volynski sectors—where wave after wave of German reserves have been thrown into the battle during the last ten days, Russian losses are stated to have been "minimum," as their own mobilization efforts and communication lines become increasingly effective, and there are now definite indications, notably in the south, that German mechanized material is showing signs of the strain.

R. A. F. Pounds French Area Early to Late

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), July 24.—British bombers hammered at German-occupied northern France yesterday from early in the morning until late at night, seeking out Nazi shipping along the coasts and attacking undisclosed objectives near Bethune, 45 miles inland from Calais, and near St. Omer.

Combating strong German fighter plane and antiaircraft opposition, the British acknowledged loss of 15 aircraft—five bombers and five fighters by day and another five fighters last night—while claiming destruction of ten German fighters—five yesterday and five last night.

The air ministry reported one German coastal ship sunk and another damaged.

Residents on the southeast coast heard new waves of British planes roar across the Channel at sunset, too high to be seen. After bursts of firing and the thunder of bomb explosions from the other side, the attackers sped home, some just above the sea.

The all-day raids followed a night assault in which the German industrial cities of Frankfurt and Mannheim were reported hit by projectiles from heavy long-range bombers flying through thunderstorms.

Peru, Ecuador Report New Border Clash

By the Associated Press

Lima, Peru, July 23.—Fighting broke out again on the disputed Peruvian-Ecuador border at dawn today and was still in progress this afternoon, an official Peruvian source said.

The same source said Ecuadorian forces attacked Peruvian posts at La Bomba, El Caucho, La Union and Las Cochas, all defended by small numbers of civic guards, not soldiers.

Despite numerical inferiority, these Peruvian guards are repulsing the Ecuadorian attacks, it was said.

Earlier, a government announcement said Ecuadorian troops on the north bank of the Zarumilla River attacked Peruvian outposts on the south bank along a 30-mile front and inflicted several casualties before the Peruvians repelled them.

Official Peruvian sources, calling it an "important attack," added the Ecuadorians were maintaining considerable military activity along the Huaquillas-Pocitos area, besides "constant sniping" all along the line.

Ecuadorean Version

Guayaquil, Ecuador, July 23 (AP).—Official reports said today Ecuadorean antiaircraft guns shot down a Peruvian plane in flames between Carcabon and Balsalito as Peruvian troops started a general attack on a 12-mile front on Ecuador's southern border.

The Peruvians were repulsed and driven out of several of their own outposts, it was said. Ecuadorean pursuers captured the posts of Aguas Verdes and Brancamore, on the other side of the Zamurilla River, these reports added.

An Ecuadorean communique issued at Quito, the capital, said the Peruvian attack ceased at 10:45 a. m. and was resumed with greater intensity at noon, especially in the Huaquillas sector. Ecuadoreans said eight Peruvian planes bombed Puerto Bolivar three times.

Unofficial reports said the Ecuadorean naval cutter, Atahualpa, was machine-gunned by Peruvian planes at Puerto Bolivar and replied vigorously.

Army to Punish Petitioning Soldiers

gency but limit it to invoking the extension clauses of laws confining the service of selectees and Guardsmen to 12 months, it was said.

Despite the expected broader scope of the War Department version, two well-informed sources predicted last night that it would not revive an earlier Army proposal to lift the present ban on sending the citizen-soldiers outside the Western Hemisphere.

Senator Hill, of Alabama, Democratic whip of the Senate and a member of the committee, said he felt sure there was no intention of bringing up this controversial subject again at this time. While the new language to be proposed by the War Department might be broad, its purpose is only to hold in the troops, the Senate leader understands.

Hill, a former House Military Committee chairman, said it was his belief that an unlimited declaration of a national emergency by Congress would not permit selectees and Guardsmen to be sent outside the Western Hemisphere. The ban on such service, approved by Congress last year, would have to be specifically repealed, he stated.

A ranking War Department official said last night he also understood a special repealer would be necessary and said the department had no intention of reviving the Western Hemisphere limitation issue now.

The new War Department proposal is included in a report on the Thomas resolution which is understood to also reject other proposed substitutes offered in the current row over retention of the troops.

Gen. Marshall discussed the question of soldiers writing to Congressmen on the issue while testifying in open session before the House committee.

He read a message from Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the First Army at New York, describing the "outside" efforts to petition Congress. The radiogram which was also sent to troop units in the First Army, recited long-standing provisions of Army regulations which bar efforts by members of the service "to procure or influence legislation affecting the Army."

"We cannot have a political club and call it an Army," Marshall commented. "I regard these moves as sabotage of the worst kind."

He added that the Army was "going to treat these men as soldiers."

Later when reporters asked him if the latter meant discipline, he said, with emphasis, "of course," and added, "it's got to stop."

The Chief of Staff told the committee that the Army was "stymied" on the question of strengthening its small garrison of 1,200 men at Trinidad, by the one-year service limitation on selectees and Guardsmen.

Despite general staff demands that additional troops be sent to the important new Caribbean base, he has had to disapprove the plan because of the service restrictions, he said.

Gen. Marshall said a call directed to him protesting the troop retention plan and his desire to lift the Western Hemisphere service limit showed considerable duplication of phrasing, "frequent German signatures and reoccurrence of Bund and Christian front phraseology and ideology."

The Chief of Staff said the Army intended to release younger National Guard officers "who were commissioned in a hurry" last year during the mobilization and replace them with graduates of the new candidates schools.

"Hardship" cases, already being sent home at a rate of 2,000 a month, also will be released as well as the older selectees, Marshall said. He said the Army plans to "pass out the selectees as rapidly as we can" and do "almost all the things you want to do."

"But you may be imperiling the national interest to say send them home on a certain date," he added.

Several opponents of the controversial move were heard before the Senate Military Committee yesterday.

Frederick J. Libby, of the National Council for the prevention of War, sharply attacked the proposal for a declaration of a national emergency to hold the troops.

If this is done, he declared, "you will have thereby removed almost the last barrier that separates us from full participation with our Navy, air force and ultimately our conscript army in war all over the world."

The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, Detroit radio speaker, proposed a $100 minimum monthly wage for all troops who voluntarily stay in service beyond a year. Benjamin Marsh, of the People's Lobby, proposed that prevailing wages of the community be paid selectees in the first year, with the rates doubling the second year and trebling the third.

Paul O. Peters told the committee he opposed the legislation because the Army apparently did not have enough equipment for the men in service.

Grenville Clark, chairman of the national emergency committee of the Military Training Camps Association, told the House Committee "the Army should be organized so as to be able to fight against a strong foe. I think it is very probable, very likely, that some part of the Army will have to fight at some point outside the Western Hemisphere."

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, acting draft director, is to be heard this morning.

Navy to Recognize Plants Up On Orders

The naval ordnance flag will be awarded to plants which are abreast or ahead of production schedules on defense orders.

Permitting factories to fly the ordnance flag, which carries the emblem of "two Dahlgren guns and anchor," Secretary of Navy Knox said yesterday is "a plan for cooperation with industry to give manufacturers and workers a further incentive, through recognition by the public, to push forward more swiftly with production of defense materials to arm our Navy for all eventualities."

Workers in the plants will be authorized to wear a special emblem bearing the name of the company and the ordnance insignia.

Reds 'Far' West Of Smolensk, France Hears

By the United Press

Vichy, July 23.—The official French military analyst said tonight that Russian forces, driving westward from Smolensk toward the Vitebsk sector have severed German lines of communication and "a German menace to Moscow no longer is acute around Smolensk."

The analyst reported, on the basis of military dispatches, that a major battle was raging "far" west of Smolensk.

The Russians were said to have dropped large numbers of parachute troops in the Rumanian oil fields, deep behind the Bessarabian front, presumably in an effort to destroy one of Germany's important sources of fuel.

The analyst said that many Russians fighting in civilian garb have been identified as members of the Communist youth organization, including boys of 15 to 19 years of age who have spent their Sundays learning to handle machine guns, rifles and artillery pieces.

Reds Have Huge Reserve Force, Stockholm Hears

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, July 23.—The usually reliable Istanbul correspondent of the newspaper Aftonbladet cites a neutral military expert just arrived there from Moscow as saying:

"It is a complete error to believe that the resistance of the Russian army could be broken in eight weeks."

The correspondent's informant adds that the Russian high command never intended to resist seriously in the occupied regions of Poland and White Russia, because they knew the anti-Bolshevik feelings of the populations there. He goes on to say that "the Russians have 300 divisions on the western front, of which up to ten days ago, when he left Moscow, 200 had not yet been sent into battle."

As for the Far East, the military expert said the Russians had 15 divisions, 2,000 tanks and 1,500 planes there.

"Foreign experts in Moscow," declared the same individual, "unhesitatingly acknowledge the superiority of German soldiers and German materiel, but believe that it will not be easy to break Russian resistance because of the enormous number of armored cars and tanks of which the Russians dispose, and also because of the Russian measures to decentralize munitions industries and all arms factories in general. Information about the number of Russian planes has been greatly exaggerated and there should not be more than 20,000 Russian first-line aircraft, while the personnel could approximate a maximum figure of 250,000 men."

Finally, the military expert declared that no international revolution can be expected in Russia, "because the OGPU and Red army still have the situation well in hand."

5,430 Men of 21 Filed for Draft In Washington

According to official figures announced yesterday by National Selective Service Headquarters, Washington signed up a total of 5,430 men of 21 in the July 1 draft registration. This, it reported, was 1,979 more than expected.

Within the continental United States 752,572 men were registered. The authorities had estimated 750,000.

Estimated State figures for Virginia was 17,186, and for Maryland 10,663. Returns showed 18,205 and 12,809, respectively.

James B. C. Wells (Highest Order No. 13,091.)

Board No. 21

Jewel W. Brown, Wayne M. Janzig, Malcolm F. Reintzel, Angelo W. Cardone, George C. Oliff, David T. Miles, jr., Robert L. Baumer (Highest Order No. 2,571.)

Price's Son Undergoes Surgery to Meet Draft

James H. Price, jr., the Governor son, has undergone an operation for a minor ailment at Mount Airy, N. C., in anticipation of his call to Selective Service. The operation was performed at Martin Memorial Hospital, by his uncle, Dr. Moir S. Martin.

A graduate of Washington and Lee University in June, he recently passed his twenty-first birthday and was among the Selective Service registrants this month. His number probably will not be called for some months.

Raids Affecting Nazi Morale, Briton Says

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, July 23.—Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary for air, told the House of Commons today that the R. A. F.'s heavily increased bombing attacks in recent weeks have had "a considerable effect" on German morale.

He implied that the Nazi air command had been forced to divert much of its strength from the critical Russian front in order to try to thwart the British onslaught.

Sinclair's report on the R. A. F.'s smashing day and night offensive against Germany and occupied territories, which started June 16 and is now in its sixth week, included the assertion that night bombing is becoming increasingly damaging to Germany. "Evidence of the damage is accumulated," he said, "and is published as soon as it becomes available. By day we are forcing our reluctant enemy to give battle.

"We are inflicting substantial damage on factories and communications, on shipping and fighter forces; what is more important, we are compelling him to maintain large air forces in the west to resist our growing assaults."

Paratroops Draw Many Volunteers

Copyright by New York Times

More than twice the required number of officers and men have volunteered for duty in the new parachute battalions of the Army, the War Department announced yesterday.

The number of volunteers was said to total 3,673, compared with an authorized number of 1,500 jumpers.

The President's Day

By International News Service

SUMMER DERBY: For the second time within the past five weeks, cigar-chewing, straw-topped Al Smith requested and received an appointment with the President yesterday. To the interesting rumors that Mr. Roosevelt's one-time arch-enemy was in line for a defense or Government job Al cracked: "Not me. I'm staying in the real estate business." What's more he hadn't asked the President to rent any part of his Empire State Building or anything else, said Al. "My talk with the President was on a strictly personal matter."

OUTFIELDER IN: The Presidential outfielder, Vice President Henry Wallace, ambled in for lunch lugging a bulging manilla envelope and bareheaded as usual. Along with lunch the Chief and outfielder talked over a speech with which Wallace is christening a shell-loading plant on July 31. The Vice President told the Big Boss his remarks would be "appropriate to the occasion" but denied that they might be explosive.

CAPTAIN COMES HOME: Jimmy Roosevelt was unofficially, inexplicably zooming around the White House corridors at his usual rate of breakneck speed. With the possible exception of his father, the White House was "surprised" by Jimmy's visit, couldn't say what it was about—other than just a visit with his father.

BIRTHDAY BALL: The good news on the 1940 edition of the Presidential birthday ball (receipts up almost 49 per cent) was brought in by Chairman Keith Morgan, president of the national foundation; Basil O'Connor, D. Walker Wear, James Forrestal and George E. Allen at midmorning. The President said he was "thrilled" by the enormous success of the ball, deeply grateful for the net $2,104,460.53 which will be used to help wipe out infantile paralysis in this country.

BASIL FOR BASIL: First appointment in the morning brought the President and his former law partner, Basil O'Connor, face to face across his desk and for 20 minutes the two longtime friends discussed, according to White House watchers—Basil O'Connor.

UNCLE FREDERIC: Once again the President's uncle, Frederic Delano, brought in his National Resources Board to talk to Nephew Franklin Delano Roosevelt once again.

NLRBUSINESS: H. A. Millis, NLRB chief, had a long, long talk with the President, couldn't reveal about what. The guessing game had it that the conversation whirled around a certain case of mistaken identity involving some Smiths.

Ousted Consuls' Landing Held Up at Lisbon

By the Associated Press

Lisbon, Portugal, July 23.—A German consular group, consisting of 220 persons, ousted from the United States was held aboard the United States naval transport West Point tonight pending the arrival of a similar American group from Germany, expected to reach Lisbon sometime tomorrow.

Word from the United States Embassy in Madrid said the last of the 250 Americans expected had crossed into Spain at 9 p. m. and were continuing on toward Portugal. With them were the American ambulance drivers who had been held by the Germans after the sinking of the Egyptian ship, Zamzam.

The Italian consular group on the West Point was released six hours after the vessel arrived here this morning, following word that the American party expelled from Italy had entered Portugal at Mawao.

The Italians debarked under the supervision of Portuguese international police and went into the city for a series of celebrations befor their departure by train for Italy.

As soon as the West Point tied up this morning, Dr. Hans Diekoff, the former German ambassador to the United States, went aboard to greet Fritz Weidemann, ousted United States Consul General at San Francisco, and other Nazis.

D. C. Trial Bares German Secrets

Secret orders from a German diplomat, instructing a news executive to send dispatches about the United States Fleet to South America, were revealed yesterday in the District Court, where the German news service, Transocean, is on trial for not registering as a propaganda agency.

Guenther Tonn, Transocean executive, was told to destroy the orders, but Federal agents found them in his pockets when they arrested him in New York after his indictment here in March.

Tonn was in charge of the Transocean version of American news which was sent to Central and South America. The Transocean chief, Dr. Manfred Zapp, had informed him:

"I have been asked by Minister Landrum in Uruguay to report back articles which John White (a New York Times correspondent) writes from Uruguay. Special value is attached to such statements as, for example, that the American Fleet has restored tranquillity in Uruguay, that American warships guarantee the certainty of political order down there in Uruguay, etc. I am requesting you to burn this memorandum after taking cognizance of it. "M. Z."

Placed in evidence were the German text, seized when Tonn was arrested, and a translation which was read to the jury. Special Assistant Attorney General George A. McNulty said the evident purpose of the Minister was to make South Americans believe this country had intervened in Uruguayan affairs, with consequent hostility and resentment.

The Tonn document climaxed a series revealing the preoccupation of Transocean with political events in Chile, Bolivia, Colombia, Mexico and other American republics. This information set the stage for the appearance of Prof. Hugo Fernandez Artucio, formerly of the University of Montevideo, Uruguay, and a vigorous enemy of Nazi infiltration in his country.

Prof. Fernandez Artucio was the first witness from South America to testify and may be the only one. Another, Arturo Ragueros Peralta, Colombian congressman and publisher, was murdered the night before he was to start for Washington. Others decided not to come.

May Be Coincidence

Just before Fernandez Artucio was called, reports were received that Bolivian police, rounding up suspects in connection with a "Nazi putsch" thwarted this week, had arrested Hernan Siles, Transocean's correspondent in La Paz. Siles, who is the son of the Bolivian Ambassador to Chile, was reported held incommunicado.

The prosecutors only smiled when asked whether disclosures in the District Court trial might have suggested the arrest of the Transocean man in Bolivia.

"Quite probably there has been considerable South American interest in the Transocean proceeding," said Special Assistant Attorney General Edward J. Hickey, "but of course we don't know. Maybe this arrest is a coincidence."

Fernandez Artucio, a stocky, square-jawed man, would have looked more like a college boy than a former professor of philosophy if his expression had not been so serious. Although he spoke English with newspaper reporters, he asked for an interpreter in court, explaining that his grasp of the language was limited, so that he was afraid his testimony might not be in keeping with the dignity of the tribunal.

Objection Is Overruled

Fernandez Artucio had just straightened this out and identified himself when Emil Morosini, jr., defense attorney, objected to the Uruguayan scholar's being allowed to testify at all.

"We are not going to try the international situation here," said Morosini. "I'm just a lawyer and I am not prepared to deal with the subject. It has nothing to do with this trial."

As he has on literally hundreds of similar defense objections in the last five days, Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson ruled the defense would have to endure the testimony. As before, Judge Davidson held that the Government may show any circumstance supporting its charge that Transocean was a propaganda machine, run from Berlin, with no mission except to serve the interests of the Nazi Party and the Hitler government.

However, this and comparable arguments took so long that court adjourned before Fernandez Artucio had time to tell his story of Transocean propaganda in Uruguay.

The Transocean machine cost Berlin headquarters $164,652.48 for 25 months of operation in the Americas, Augustus J. Bawles, Federal Bureau of Investigation accountant, explained a study of financial records seized in the Transocean New York offices.

Records Analyzed

Over determined defense objection, Special Assistant Attorney General William P. Maloney showed the jurors a huge blackboard on which the records were analyzed.

From the newspapers to whom Transocean "sold" its service, Transocean got only $3,045.33 in the 25 months in which it was spending more than $200,000, maintaining New York and Washington bureaus and filing extensive reports to South America and Berlin.

Transocean got $2,163 from German consulates and $860 from the German Embassy, in this period.

Brought out yesterday was the inside story of how Dr. Zapp arranged for a former American diplomat to subsidize a Jewish publisher, who was to issue a mammoth edition of the Nazi White Paper, which blamed President Roosevelt for the war.

The body of the White Paper was a series of documents alleged to have been found in the Polish foreign office when panzer troops rolled into Warsaw. Widely circulated by the Germans, the documents were branded spurious by Polish and American authorities.

The documents purported to quote William C. Bullitt, former United States Ambassador in Moscow and Paris, and this led Dr. Zapp to a solution of the difficulties he was having in carrying out his orders to spread the White Paper in America.

Publisher Named

"I found Mr. Strassburger," Dr. Zapp told a special grand jury in testimony read in court yesterday. "He didn't like Mr. Bullitt very much and he was very glad to buy 50,000 copies."

Ralph Beaver Strassburger, publisher of the Norristown, Pa., Times-Herald, was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1905 and served the American diplomatic service in Bucharest at Tokyo and Bucharest. Called as a witness yesterday, he did not appear. It was indicated the subpoena failed to reach him.

William Soskin, president of the New York publishing firm of Howell, Soskin & Co., testified that Zapp offered him publishing rights on the White Paper and that about the same time he made a deal to sell Strassburger the 50,000 copies.

Soskin told this story of the deal: The publishing firm agreed to have 52,500 copies of the White Paper printed by the Norristown Press, owned by Strassburger. The press kept 50,000 copies and delivered 2,500 to the Soskin firm. Strassburger then owed Soskin $8,750 for the 50,000 he was keeping and Soskin owed the Press $625 for the 2,500 copies that were delivered. So Strassburger's printing firm paid the Soskin firm $8,125 and everybody was square.

Puzzled by these transactions, Judge Davidson questioned Soskin at length, but finally gave up.

Soskin said he paid Transocean $875 commission on the White Paper. Thus, this testimony indicated that his firm's net on the deal was $7,250.

Consulted Mrs. Roosevelt

The Transocean books showed that Strassburger paid Transocean $915 in 1939 and that his Norristown paper paid another $150.

Soskin brought Mrs. Roosevelt's name into the testimony, asserting that she was one of a group of prominent persons he consulted before he published the White Paper. They approved the project, he said.

"You don't mean to say Mrs. Roosevelt approved publication of the book?" interrupted Judge Davidson.

Soskin then admitted that he had no direct contact with Mrs. Roosevelt, but asserted that he approached her through her literary agent, George Bye, New York. Soskin said his firm published Mrs. Roosevelt's book, "The Morals of Democracy."

When questioned later in a corridor, Soskin told newspaper reporters that what happened was, he called up Bye and asked for Mrs. Roosevelt's views and Bye told him a few hours later that "Mrs. Roosevelt believes all documents ought to be published."

3½ Billion Tax Bill Raised 29 Millions

Increases ranging from 1 to 4 per cent in proposed estate and gift taxes—yield $38,000,000 additional.

Excises on an unformulated list of sporting goods—yield unestimated.

Additions to the bill in the unscheduled revenue hunt would total $49,700,000. Treasury experts said the completed bill would produce $1,322,900,000 from corporate taxes, $1,152,000,000 from individual income and $151,900,000 from estates and gifts. Balance of the $3,529,200,000 would come from excises.

Individual surtaxes starting at 5 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income, joint returns by husbands and wives, corporate surtaxes and the committee's optional plan of excess profits taxes were left as previously approved by the committee.

Bulk of the exises also stood as earlier approved. But it was the excise title that forced the committee into the late session that erased from the measure the proposed 5 per cent tax on candy and chewing gum, the 10 per cent tax on cutlery and the 10 per cent tax on metal signs. An effort failed to eliminate the proposed tax of one-sixth cent per bottle on soft drinks.

Thwarted also, by the threat of a point of order, was a proposal by Representative Disney (Democrat), of Oklahoma, to effect some 750 million dollars in nondefense economies by cuts in WPA, CCC, and NYA appropriations.

Defense Bonds Affected

Before finishing with the bill, the committee voted to permit income from defense savings bonds to be spread for tax purposes over the life of the bond so as not to swell the owner's taxable income in the year they mature.

Another change would require banks and trust companies to file informational returns with the Treasury covering interest and coupon payments on Government bonds, now subject to taxation. Present law requires them to file this information on industrial bonds.

The new tax on annual net radio broadcasting time sales would be levied as follows:

$100,000 and under ..... No tax
Between $100,000 and $500,000 5%
Between $500,000 and $1,000,000 10%
Over $1,000,000 ..... 15%

Persons renting billboard space to others would be taxed as follows: Each billboard 300 square feet or less $5
Billboards 300 square feet to 600 square feet $8
Billboards over 600 square feet $11

The new yacht tax would levy the following rates:

On boats 16 to 28 feet long, $5; boats 28 to 50 feet, $10; 50 to 100 feet, $40; 100 to 150 feet, $100; 150 to 200 feet $150; over 200 feet $200.

The bill is expected to be laid before the House on Monday, under a strict rule limiting amendments to those offered by the committee. Three days of general debate will follow, with passage expected on Friday.

Rep. Rogers Offers Bill for FBI Aid

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican), whose Massachusetts district recently has been the scene of crimes similar to the murder in Washington of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, yesterday introduced a bill to permit the Federal Bureau of Investigation to "assist and cooperate" with local authorities in crime investigations.

FBI cooperation would be at the discretion of Director J. Edgar Hoover "whenever there is reason to believe that a felony has been committed resulting in the death or disappearance of, or serious injury to, any person."

flexible enough to reward members for outstanding work.

Elimination of civil service promotion requirements.

Already Proved Worth

Proposed abolition of the Accident Prevention Bureau, disclosed in The Post Wednesday, aroused united opposition on the part of the traffic safety leaders who helped install the unit here, and who maintain that the trained traffic personnel had already proved their worth in the eight months of their activities.

Representative Schulte, who as chairman of a subcommittee dealing with traffic problems had hailed the formation of the accident prevention unit as a "progressive step," yesterday urged its elimination.

"It would be all right to have those frills and fancies in a department which has so many men it doesn't know what to do with them.

"But here, we need those extra men to fight crime."

If Schulte's suggestion is carried out, it is expected that Inspector Arthur E. Miller, who was given special training in order to set up and direct the unit, will be made inspector in charge of police equipment and property.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, who plans to retire in October, immediately came to the support of the Accident Prevention Unit, which he helped bring here.

"The record speaks for itself," Brown said.

"Although the Accident Prevention Unit is yet in its infancy, its value is already evident and will become more in evidence as time goes on."

Inspector Miller, who had studied for a year at Northwestern's traffic safety school in preparation for his present assignment, commented:

"A good accident prevention unit is fundamental to good traffic control."

He said the records show that death and injuries on District streets have decreased since the unit began to operate.

"The bureau needs to be built up—not cut down or eliminated," Miller asserted.

The work of Inspector Miller and his unit has drawn high praise from Franklin M. Kreml, director of Northwestern's Traffic Institute and one of the country's foremost authorities on traffic safety problems.

Kreml commended Miller, and the District, for inaugurating such a "progressive and advanced plan," at a dinner held in Kreml's honor here last winter.

Similar sentiments have since been expressed by the police court judges, according to Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, who pointed out that the facts and evidence presented in court by A. P. U. men have been primarily responsible for obtaining an increased number of convictions in accident and traffic violation cases.

Praise From Coroner

On another phase of the unit's activity, Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, who presides at inquests into traffic deaths, commented:

"Since the Accident Prevention Unit was formed, traffic cases have been far better investigated and better presented to the coroner's jury."

Discarding of the A. P. U. was seen as a "step backward" by officials of the American Automobile Association and Keystone Automobile Club, while William A. Van Duzer, director of traffic, and Whitney Leary, chairman of the Traffic Advisory Council, agreed that the District was now getting the facts in its drive against motoring lawlessness—facts which had been unobtainable before creation of the Accident Prevention Unit.

4 Detectives, 2 Police Win Commendations

Commendations for four detectives and two uniform patrolmen for their work in solving the recent murder of Ellen Cannon, 15, and the criminal assault of Joyce Smith, 18, of 1323 Childress Street Northeast, were forwarded to Maj. Brown yesterday by Acting Chief of Detectives Ira E. Keck.

In the Cannon case, Detective Sergts. E. E. Scott and B. Moore won the praises of Keck for their arrest of Guy Edward Oden, 19-year-old sweetheart of the slain girl. The youth was arrested fleeing the girl's home at 114 O Street Southwest.

Scott was complimented a second time for his work in the Smith case, which also brought commendations for Detective Sergt. Louis Wilson, Precinct Detective Irving Lubore and Privates Daniel Slattery and J. G. Beach, Twelfth Precinct.

Keck described the work of the policemen as "outstanding" and "worthy of highest praise."

PAYS YOUR GAS TAX FOR YOU
At present Federal tax rates, the savings on gasoline effected by Compound Carburetion are usually more than enough to pay Federal taxes on the gas you buy.
1941

TAKE a good look at this stunning straight-eight pictured here—in one important way it's like no other in the world.

It has two "noses" to breathe through.

One of them is the forward carburetor of Buick's Compound Carburetion† — a thrifty, smaller-size gas-and-air mixer that handles all your normal driving with the greatest of ease and the maximum of thrift.

The other is a second carburetor with a very special mission.

It waits, unused, until you want action.

Maybe to take a hill. Maybe to pass a truck. Maybe to spurt through a sudden opening in traffic.

Whatever the need — you just press down the gas treadle.

The extra "nose" opens. Your engine breathes deeper. And z-i-i-i-p!—you're away in an extra burst of reserve power no other car in the world can provide.

Sounds good? Naturally—but that's only part of it.

Facts are, your engine is more efficient with Compound Carburetion's extra "nose" for action. Owner-experience shows that you actually go as much as 10% to 15% farther per gallon than you did in previous Buicks.

So better go try it. Try out Buick's bigger size, greater room, extra comfort at the same time.

Then ask delivered prices. Instead of being higher you'll find them actually lower than you'll pay anywhere else for anything like equal value.

Another Steel Capacity Boost Forecast Here

Top executives of the Nation's steel industry, called here yesterday to confer with OPM and other defense officials, were told that the OPM is "exploring" the possibilty of expandng the country's steel-making facilities by 15 million tons a year, it was learned from a reliable source.

Although a special OPM consultant, Gano Dunn, reported at the end of February that capacity was adequate, and revised his estimates in May to show only a slight deficit, the OPM recently embarked on a policy of adding ten million tons of annual capacity. The decision reported yesterday to seek to add another five million tons was taken as indicating that the OPM feels the situation is growing increasingly tight.

At the same time, the OPM announced that it was recommending an increase in pig iron capacity of 6,508,950 tons as an essential step of achieving the ultimate steel production goal. This would be the largest expansion at one time in the industry's history.

The new iron capacity must be Government financed, the OPM said in transmitting the proposed program to Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones.

It was learned at the meeting of the industry, organized into a steel defense industry advisory committee of the OPM, that the recommended extension of pig iron facilities was considered as only an initial step and was the sum of expansion proposals made by some, but not all, of the steel industry's constituent companies.

Also discussed at the meeting, were proposals for building from 15 to 20 new vessels to carry iron ore on the Great Lakes run. At least this number will be necessary for the enlarged program, it was said.

The problem of tight situations in alloys and tool steels was raised, and OPM officials also called attention to the urgent need for more plates and sheets, it was reported.

Board Planned to Get Parking Areas

be similar to the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency suggested in the Whitehurst report of measures to be taken to relieve Washington traffic congestion.

The commission, it is contemplated, would be composed of District officials and citizens. It would be vested with authority to make charges for parking and would otherwise be made responsible for operation of parking areas.

Before the commission could be established, it would be necessary for Congress to appropriate sufficient money to give the agency starting capital. Whitehurst told the subcommittee the money would be used as a revolving fund, since revenues from operation of parking areas are expected to be sufficient to make the undertaking self-maintaining.

Bridges Held Bottlenecks

Whitehurst told the subcommittee that the main difficulty in moving Washington traffic is encountered at bridges over the Potomac and Anacostia Rivers. He called attention to his plans for a grade separation at Fourteenth Street and Maine Avenue Southwest and for a Georgetown bypass in the line of K Street Northwest.

Poor traffic handling by police at these points, countered Hunter, is the "main trouble." He suggested that traffic police now stationed during rush hours along Connecticut and Constitution Avenues be assigned to the bridges. The traffic light at the Fourteenth Street entrance to East Potomac Park, he said, should be turned off during rush hours and a policeman assigned to handle traffic. The officer on duty there now, he declared, "does nothing but stand there and give people directions."

"The handling of traffic throughout most of Washington is pathetic," he charged.

Whitehurst estimated that a 2-cent gas tax increase would raise "a little under" $3,000,000 a year. With the entire amount devoted to highway improvements together with a present surplus in the highway fund of approximately $1,500,000 a year, he estimated that the entire program could be completed in seven or eight years.

Favors 2-Cent Rise

"I am in favor of increasing the gasoline tax 2 cents and raising the realty levy to get seven or eight million a year to put the highway program through in a hurry," said Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, who later announced he was ready to vote for the bill at once.

Except for concrete reinforcement and structural steel, Whitehurst told the committee he foresaw no delay in the highway program due to absorbtion of materials and labor in the defense program.

Two gas-increase bills are before the subcommittee. One of them would assess the tax directly against the retailer. The other would collect it from the gasoline importer. The former measure was introduced by Representative Springer (Republican), of Indiana, the latter by Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman of the House District Committee.

Springer said it was immaterial to him which of the bills the subcommittee reported, that he believed by a higher gas tax here would relieve residents of the States from contributing to District expenses through the annual Federal payment, now six million dollars. Speaking almost at once, several members of the subcommittee sought to convince him that the Federal payment is made toward general operating expenses of the city and that by law the District is prevented from diverting highway funds. During the interchange, Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, declared:

"Gasoline, cigarette and liquor are the only cheap things in the District. Wouldn't it be just as logical to tax all of them and have a sales tax also so that all coming here would make a contribution to the city?"

Marines Patrol Key West Plant In Walkout

By the Associated Press

American Federation of Labor strikers walked off defense projects in Key West, Fla., and Grand Prairie, Tex., yesterday while other A. F. of L. unions signed an agreement barring work stoppages on defense projects in the St. Louis area where labor trouble has retarded work in the last two months.

The agreement, which is still subject to ratification by the membership of 26 building trades unions, covers jurisdictional conflicts as well as disputes with employers and provides for mediation.

Marines Patrol Area

About 1,000 A. F. of L. unionists, seeking a wage increase from 40 to 62½ cents an hour, walked off several Key West projects while Marines patrolled the areas with rifles and fixed bayonets. A union official said the strike had not been authorized and that the union had agreed with the Nevy not to strike, pending a resurvey of the Key West wage scale by the Labor Department.

Work was halted on a defense housing project near the North American Aviation plant at Grand Prairie in a dispute over the use of WPA labor for road work and landscaping. Col. Lawrence Westbrook, of the Federal Works Administration, said, "it is not the policy of the Government to work these things out with the unions. It is our policy to see that such important projects are completed on schedule."

At Galveston, Tex., where some 2,000 A. F. L. drydock workers are striking in a dispute over contract negotiations, draft board officials said they had reclassified a score of men who had been deferred because of their employment in a defense industry.

Two Assertions by Lewis

Meanwhile, John L. Lewis, president of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers, asked Sewell Avery, chairman of the United States Gypsum Co., to join him in a personal effort to reach a settlement in a strike called at 17 of the company's plants. At the same time, Lewis told the unionists, "this strike must be won." The union seeks a 10-cent an hour wage increase and a common national contract. Present scales were not available.

The Granite City and East St. Louis, Ill., plants of the American Steel Foundries faced possible closing as the result of a strike of 105 C. I. O. crane operators. A company official said the men, who work a continuous eight-hour shift, had asked 40-minute rest periods after every two hours of work. The company, he said, had offered morning and afternoon rest periods of 20 minutes each and a noon period of 15 minutes. The firm manufactures tank armor and freight car castings.

Conferees Seek to Salvage Plant Seizure Bill Today

An effort to salvage the Connally plant-seizure amendment in a form acceptable to the House is expected today in a House and Senate conference on the pending draft age-limit bill.

Conferees, it was learned, will rewrite the amendment to give the President power to take over defense plants where a stoppage threatens to impede national defense.

The revised language is expected to eliminate the reference to "strikes" contained in the Senate-passed bill and substitute a reference to any cause that hampers defense production.

The President already has authority to take over defense plants where the owners refuse to cooperate and the proposed language would make this authority general where output is impeded, it was said in a reliable quarter.

As approved by the Senate, the bill not only empowered the President to act in defense plants threatened by strikes, but included a specific Congressional condemnation of strikes in defense industries.

The House Military Affairs Committee proposed more drastic labor prohibitions, but the House stripped all labor sections from the bill and proponents had feared the Connally amendment would meet the same fate. The effort at revision, scheduled at today's meeting of conferees, is aimed at compromise language to be submitted to both Houses for approval.

OPM-Henderson Showdown Nears

weeks ago by Undersecretaries of the War and Navy, Robert P. Patterson and James V. Forrestal, he vetoed it because theauto industry's tools were not yet prepared for defense work.

Further meetings on the curtailment program are scheduled today with industry and labor representatives and the OPM.

Apparently uninterested in these conferences and in OPM plans, Henderson is proceeding with his own program, to be submitted to OPM for execution, it was learned from an informed authority.

The price administrator's point of view, it was indicated from his testimony yesterday before the Senate Defense Investigating Committee, is that OPM was set up to be exclusively concerned with defense production, and that OPACS was designated, with equal specificness, as the agency to plot out non-defense needs.

Henderson is known to be gravely concerned over unemployment developing in other industries as a result, he believes, of shortages of raw materials now being "chewed up" in auto manufacture.

Holding that the OPM is by no means created as an over-all war industries board, Henderson is said to believe that the problem of allocating materials among civilian industries to minimize unemployment is one for his office.

Another phase of the conflict between OPM and OPACS—the delineation of their authority over priorities and the definition of the "defense" and "nondefense" fields, respectively, wherein each has scope—was reported as headed for a decision. It was indicated that President Roosevelt soon will issue an executive order delegating between the two the proper functions granted him in the recently enacted Vinson Priority Act.

At present, Knudsen told his press conference, there are two drafts of the proposed executive order, one drawn by OPACS and one by OPM.

The Defense Investigating Committee was told yesterday by Albert J. Browning, former OPM official who is now head of a Chicago wall-paper manufacturing concern, that there should be a change in the method of priorities "so that consideration can be given to the needs of civilian industries." He asked that a single individual have authority for final allocation of all critical items to both defense and civilian industries.

"In this way," he concluded, "those producers of nondefense items who need small quantities of critical materials in order to continue production will be able to secure them.

When Henderson appeared before the committee he was placed under fire by Democratic Senators Connally, of Texas; Smith, of South Carolina, and Thomas, of Oklahoma. When he insisted he had the authority to fix prices of refrigerators, Connally declared:

"Then you have more authority than any man in the United States, including the President, and you've got the authority to destroy our economy or maintain it."

Smith threatened to promote a farmers march here to prevent fixing of farm prices, and Thomas charged that "erratic statements" by Henderson had destroyed his influence as a price administrator.

Henderson told the committee that he did not consider he had power to fix wages, interest, public utility or transportation rates, but that in face of an inflation threat he was going to act on other prices and do what the President told him, "until he tells me to stop or Congress does."

Industry May Get Men Back From Army

By the Associated Press

If you are a defense manufacturer who would like to have one or more of your former employes released from military service and returned to vital factory operations, the man to write about it is Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War.

This was the information given by the War Department yesterday in response to inquiries about the practical working out of the recently announced policy that trained workers now in the Army would be released when their services were urgently needed in industry.

Officials reiterated that no blanket increases would be granted and that each case would be decided on its individual merits.

According to general instructions issued by the department, here is the procedure which must be followed:

The company, not the individual soldier, must make a separate request for each former employe it wishes released, and must agree under oath to re-employ the worker immediately.

Must Be a Key Man

The request, in affidavit form, should be addressed to Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War, at Washington, D. C.

In each application the employer must state whether the soldier is "related to the signer of the request for release or to any member of the firm." This requirement was described as designed to eliminate the possibility of employers taking advantage of the new policy to obtain release of relatives.

The employer must also prove "to the satisfaction of the War Department" that the soldier is a key man needed in defense production or in the operation and maintenance of essential services, and "that there is a shortage of technicians in this category."

May Be Recalled to Duty

When released, enlisted men and trainees are transferred to the Enlisted Reserve Corps as occupational specialists. They may be recalled to active military duty if they later leave their defense industry positions.

Upon obtaining release of a key man, the company must notify the Adjutant General of the Army in Washington, by letter, of the date of reemployment. If the man leaves the firm thereafter the Adjutant General must be notified of the date and reason for his severance.

The release request must be "initiated and executed under oath by the responsible head" of the firm.

29th Division Troops to Go South Sept. 13

By the Associated Press

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 23.—Twenty-ninth Infantry Division troops will carry along their winter uniforms and overcoats when they head South for maneuvers on September 13.

For the 18,000 soldiers commanded by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, mainly Maryland, Virginia, Penn- Federalized National Guardsmen and selectees, will not return to their home area here until December.

After two weeks of divisional training at the A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Caroline County, Va., the Twenty-ninth will proceed to the vicinity of Wadesboro, N. C., where headquarters will be established for Second Army Corps maneuvers through October. This also will be the division's base during war games between the First and Third Armies in November.

Most of the troops will be transported South by motor convoy, and bivouac sites en route will be on Government reservations so far as is practicable.

The troops will take enough summer clothing with them to last until warm weather ends, then change to the winter wool uniform.

In corps maneuvers the Twenty-ninth Division will train with the Twenty-eighth Division from Indantown Gap, Pa., and the Forty-fourth Dvision from Fort Dix, N. J., The latter division is at present in maneuvers on the Caroline County, Va., area.

It will be the first opportunity for the new commander of the Second Army Corps, Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredenall, to command these troops on the field. More than 70,000 soldiers will participate.

About 400,000 will take part in the November war games, to be held in the vicinity of Fort Bragg, N. C.

Mediators Offer Plan to End N. J. Plant Strike

A Defense Mediation Board panel last night recommended a five-point plan for settlement of the strike of CIO-United Automobile Workers at the Bendix (N. J.) plant of Air Associates, Inc. The strike has been in progress since July 14.

A board official said the union has accepted the recommendation and that representatives of the company have asked "a few days" for consideration.

The recommendation provides, in part, for immediate return to work of all employes in any way involved in the dispute without discrimination. Issues on back pay would be placed before an arbitrator, and the parties would start negotiations immediately for a collective bargaining agreement. If they are unable to agree, the matters in dispute to be submitted to the arbitrator.

Youth Scour Montgomery For Aluminum

Rural Montgomery County youth was scouring fields and ravines yesterday for discarded aluminum pots and pans, a survey of the rural collection stations by Alfred D. Noyes, county chairman, revealed.

Boys and girls on bicycles were visiting the farms of upper Montgomery County urging contribution to the cause "because Uncle Sam needs airplanes." Every rural station had a sizable pile of aluminum gathered yesterday and prospects were excellent for a bumper crop.

Mrs. Julius Hall, Poolesville chairman, had an old-fashioned aluminum coffee pot "made in Germany" that had been turned in. "I'm sending it back to Germany—on wings,' the owner told her in bringing the pot to the collection center at Mrs. Halls home.

Suburban stations were reporting increasingly heavy loads even in advance of the main drive tomorrow.

Sidney Lust's Maryland theaters today will stage aluminum matinees at 2 p. m. for which admission will be one or more articles of aluminum. The aluminum collected will be turned over to the aluminum campaign committees in the community in which the theater is located.

The Bethesda Theater at Bethesda, Md., will show "Flight Angels" and a sports reel. The Milo Theater at Rockville will present "Arizona Kid" and a Popeye cartoon. The Hyattsville Theater, Hyattsville, Md., will offer "It All Came True" and a two-reel technicolor featurette, "Young America Flies."

The film fare at the Marlboro, at Upper Marlboro, Md., will consist of the "Saga of Death Valley" and a Popeye cartoon. The Cameo Theater at Mount Rainier, Md., will offer "Blondie Has Servant Trouble" and a patriotic reel, "Spirit of 1941."

An interesting short subject, showing the importance of aluminum in the defense program and the uses to which the collection will be put will be shown at all of the theaters.

Rotarians Told 50% Auto Output Cut Is Too High

Washington's Rotary Club members yesterday were told that curtailing automobile production 50 per cent during the next year would scarcely permit replacing cars scrapped in that period and leave no surplus for the use of newly employed defense workers.

A. Burks Summers, president of the General Credit Co., automobile finance corporation here, told the Rotarians at lunch in the Willard that an estimated 2,800,000 cars will be scrapped during 1941. He urged that qualified manufacturers, businessmen, bankers and government economists study the curtailment proposal, so that "every effort" might be made to avoid disrupting America's economy.

The curtailment plan was announced Sunday by Leon Henderson, chief of the defense Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply. His tentative program called for reducing consumption of scarce materials in the auto, domestic refrigeration and mechanical household laundry equipment industries by 50 per cent in the next 12 months.

D. C. Needs More Health Centers, Ruhland Declares

There is an increasing need for additional health centers in congested areas of Washington, where overcrowding adds to the problems of controlling communicable diseases, Health Officer George C. Ruhland said last night.

He spoke over Radio Station WINX on a defense health program sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

"In these areas," said Dr. Ruhland, "are people needing medical and nursing care who have not the means to go long distances to reach clinics, but who, if cared for in their own neighborhoods, would not become hospital patients."

Explaining functions of the Southwest Health Center and outlining plans for another center in the Northwest section, Dr. Ruhland declared:

"It is to reach patients and prevent spread of their illnesses, as well as to save hospital beds for patients whose illness makes hospitalization actually a necessity that these health centers are needed."

Army Medical Unit Graduates 16 From D. C.

Sixteen Washington area Reserve Officers Training Corps members yesterday were graduated from the Medical Field Service School at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., amid ceremonies including a parade on Stark Field at Carlisle Barracks.

The graduates now are candidates for commissions in the Army Medical Corps and for calls to active service.

Those graduating included:

O'Mahoney Urges Use of Minerals In Public Lands

Immediate development of deposits of coal, oil, iron, nickel, manganese and aluminum in Western public lands States to avert a defense shortage and "dislocation of private industry" yesterday was urged by Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming.

Opening a Senate subcommittee study of mineral resources of the public domain, O'Mahoney, chairman of the group, said America has "scarcely scratched" mineral deposits now essential to defense and "our entire civilian economy is being upset with disastrous results to business in every State because we have not known how to use these vast resources."

"It is not too much to say," said O'Mahoney, "that the future of independent industry in this country depends upon a program of this kind."

Jennie Cross, Brush Factory Head, Dies at 73

Mrs. Jennie Cross, 73, president of the Cross Manufacturing Co., Takoma Park, Md., died yesterday at the Washington Home for Incurables after an illness of six years. She resided at 508 Flower Avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

Miss Cross was born in Denmark and came to America as a girl. She settled in Portland, Me., where, in 1896, she was married to the late Jay E. Cross. The couple operated a hydrotherapy treatment establishment in Portland for 11 years before coming to Takoma Park.

The manufacturing plant was established after they moved to Takoma Park. Both were members of the Seventh Day Adventist denominations and of the Sligo Church. Mrs. Cross is survived by two sons, Paul Cross and Leon Cross, both of Takoma Park.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the Takoma Funeral Home at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

All Qualified Labor Is Needed, Says Ethridge

Mark F. Ethridge, chairman of the Commttee on Fair Employment Practice, said yesterday that the defense program would require the use of all qualified labor regardless of race, creed, color or national origin.

Ethridge is vice president and general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Louisville Times. He said that the committee, which organized yesterday, would meet weekly.

"From a practical standpoint," Ethridge said, "discrimination against loyal and qualified workers for any reason is stupid. From the standpoint of democratic aims it is unforgivable.

"Guns, planes, tanks and ships alone will not make us strong. If we are to keep men free, we must take positive steps to widen the base of democracy at home while we help to defend it abroad."

Harrison G. Ward Estate Goes to Widow

The will of Harrison G. Ward, Darnestown, Md., farmer, which has been admitted to probate in the Orphans' Court at Rockville, bequeaths his entire estate to his widow, Mrs. Ara M. Ward, for life, or until she remarries, and provides that upon her death or remarriage it is to go to his children, Mrs. Bertie King, Mrs. Mamie Miles, Mrs. Dula Cissel and J. Garnett Ward.

The instrument explains that the testator's other children and his grandson, Harrison King, had hitherto been provided for. The will was executed November 29, 1940. It names J. Garnett Ward executor.

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Meyer Baturin Funeral Rites Set for Today

Funeral services for Meyer Baturin, 66, of 200 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, will be held today at Danzansky's funeral home, 3501 Fourteenth Street Northwest, at 2 p. m. Burial will follow in the Adas Israel Congregation Cemetery, with Rabbi Solomon H. Metz officiating.

Mr. Baturin died Tuesday night in Emergency Hospital after an illness of several weeks.

More than 50 years ago Mr. Baturin came to this country from Russia and settled in Harrisburg, Pa. Later he lived in Chambersburg, moving to Washington about 25 years ago. Since that time he has been engaged in the clothing business at 115 H Street Northwest.

In Washington, Mr. Baturin was a member of the Adas Israel Congregation and was affiliated with social and philanthropic organizations.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Bessie Baturin, 200 Massachusetts Avenue; three daughters, Mrs. Edward A. Cafritz, Westchester Apartments; Mrs. Henry A. Hirsh, 4022 Fourteenth Street Northwest; Mrs. Larry Glaser, of New York City; one son, Edgar R. Baturin, 2971 McKinley Street Northwest; one sister, Mrs. Louis Sperling, of York, Pa., and one brother, Samuel Baturin, of New York City.

Arcade Laundry Employe Held On Knife Charge

Thomas W. Williams, 1807 California Street Northwest, Negro employe of the Arcade-Sunshine Laundry, was arrested yesterday near the plant, charged with carrying a concealed weapon. Williams told police he had armed himself with a knife after being threatened by strikers. He was released on a $500 bond.

Meanwhile the 350 workers of the Arcade-Sunshine plant remained out on strike which went into its fourth week yesterday. A spokesman for the plant said the union continues to refuse to negotiate.

The 30 workers at the Rubenstein Cleaning & Dyeing Co., 1220 Twenty-third Street Northwest, who sat down in the plant for several hours Tuesday in a "stoppage," have returned to work, it was reported. They are asking management to arbitrate their differences. Negotiations are pending decision of the management, a spokesman for the plant said.

Sightseer's Car Robbed of $381

While Mrs. Beulah Sedan, of Los Angeles, was sightseeing here yesterday, a thief broke into her auto, parked in the 1400 block of Constitution Avenue Northwest, and took clothing and jewelry valued at $381, she reported to police.

Funeral Services For C. R. Colvin Will Be Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow for Clinton R. Colvin, 72, at the Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin Street Northwest. A practicing lawyer here for 40 years, Mr. Colvin died Tuesday night at Garfield Hospital after a long illness.

He was a past master of the Stansbury Masonic Lodge and a member of the District Bar Association. A native of Fauquier County, Va., Mr. Colvin received his legal education at National University.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Stanley D. Woodward; four brothers, Louis, Epps H., Earley G., and Howard T. Colvin, and a sister, Miss Julia M. Colvin. All are of Washington except Earley G. Colvin, of New York City, and Howard T. Colvin, of Alexandria.

Interment will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery, Alexandria.

Peace Group Changes Name, Adopts Slogan

Copyright by New York Times

New York, July 23.—The American Peace Mobilization, which was consistently antiwar during the Soviet-Nazi pact but changed its stand soon after Hitler invaded Russia, today announced the change of its name to the American People's Mobilization. It explained this action was taken by the national board "to meet the needs of A. P. M.'s program shaped to the New World situation." It is subject to approval by a poll of clubs and councils. At the same time the board adopted the slogan, "For Victory Over Fascism," underlining the V for emphasis in line with the European "V" campaign against the Nazis.

Louis R. Lenhart, Garage Man, Dies

Louis Russell Lenhart, 45, proprietor of a garage at Clarksburg, Md., and lifelong resident of the Germantown neighborhood, died in his home at Germantown yesterday.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Genevieve Clagett Lenhart; two children, Betty and Clagett Lenhart; his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Rebecca Lenhart, Germantown, and a sister, Mrs. Harry Kanode, Adamstown, Md.

The funeral will take place at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the Presbyterian Church at Neelesville. The services will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. G. G. Kundahl, and burial will be in Forest Oak Cemetery, Gaithersburg.

Five Reprints From The Washington Post in One Congressional Record

THE WASHINGTON POST is often called "Official Washington's breakfast newspaper." Striking confirmation of the phrase came this Monday, in Congress and at a State Department press conference.

In Congress, a Washington Post editorial and four articles by Post columnists—Barnet Nover, Ernest Lindley, Walter Lippman and Mark Sullivan—were reprinted in Monday's Congressional Record.

At the State Department, the Acting Secretary of State, Sumner Welles, adopted as his own statement the editorial, "Tool of the Axis," from Monday's Washington Post . . . much as the President several years ago adopted another Post editorial as an expression of his views on foreign policy

Government officials feel that they must read The Washington Post because of its complete news reporting, its vigorous but fair editorial page, its many brilliant columnists.

For the same reasons and for its thorough coverage of local affairs and its splendid features, you will find The Washington Post exactly the kind of newspaper you want to read yourself!

Boy, 10; Sister, 8, Get Ride In 'Jeep' to Buy Defense Bond

Marvin B. Cohen, 10, and his sister, Faye, 8, of 1345 Randolph Street Northwest, stepped into an Army "jeep" machine just off Post Square yesterday and proudly rode along Pennsylvania Avenue to the Treasury Building.

Clutched in their hands was a book almost filled with defense savings stamps and $2.25. They walked up to the cashier's office and exchanged the stamps and the money for a $25 defense savings bond.

"Faye gave me the idea of buying the stamps, and then the bond," said the boy. "I was going to get some more electric trains, but she told me that this way I could save money and help my country."

His sister nodded approval of the words, and added, "Maybe he can go to college on the money some day."

Marvin has been saving the money for the stamps since May. Most of it came from what he earned selling papers, and the rest came from his allowance.

The two children were not the only ones to take advantage of the "jeep" ride to the Treasury Department. In fact, all day long, the machine is busy transporting people from the "Defense Midway" at Fourteenth Street to the Treasury where they can exchange their defense stamps for defense bonds.

Defense sales of stamps and bonds since July 1 at the Treasury stand have amounted to more than $20,000.

This noon, Frederick A. Smith, president of the Washington Board of Trade, is scheduled to purchase $5,000 worth of the bonds, while earlier today, the Senate pages plan to make their defense purchases.

Nazi Agents Seek Revolt in Iran

By Ray Brock
Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, Turkey, July 23.—German agents operating in Teheran are attempting to foment disorders and inflame the Armenian population to sabotage and revolt against the present Iranian government, promising money now and territory later for a "greater Armenia" after the war, according to disclosures by high foreign diplomatic sources here today.

Armenian irredentists are being promised an independent Armenia composed of Azerbaijan and bits of former Armenia in Iran, it is learned on the most reliable authority, by German agents operating from headquarters at Tabriz and Teheran.

Tabriz is not an Armenian center but this city serves the Germans best as headquarters for paymasters who provide the funds for the propaganda and for Armenian terrorists who are being instructed in creation of disorders and frontier incidents such as that which occurred five days ago on the Syrian-Turkish border. In this clash, between a dozen and 15 Armenian irregulars armed with rifles and submachine guns attacked the Turkish frontier garrison at Andivar, due south of Gizre at the juncture of the Syrian, Turkish and Iraqi frontiers. The Armenians were driven off by the Turks after brief but bitter fighting.

Smuggling Guns

German agents, it is learned, found fertile territory among the Armenians of Syria before the Allied campaign started against Syria in early June. Fevzi Kawdji, the Arab agent paid by the Reich to foment disorders in Palestine, Syria and Iraq, is said to be working across the Iraqi-Iran frontier, smuggling guns and literature in three or four languages to Armenians in Iran. British diplomats at Teheran, it is understood, have sought to exert pressure upon the Teheran government to expel some of the several thousand German tourists, commercial travelers and businessmen now moving in considerable freedom about the country.

British diplomatic sources here report that some Axis families have left Iran and unconfirmed reports from Istanbul tonight said that more than 200 Germans had left Iran recently. It is known that Raschid Ali, who started the Iraqi coup d'etat and was defeated by the British in the recent Iraqi War, is en route to Turkey from Teheran. Raschid Ali is expected to join his family at Ankara and proceed to Istanbul to establish an indefinite residence.

Other Germans, however, have entered Teheran and Tabriz and this correspondent, who witnessed the infiltration of German "skiing parties," sportsmen, tourists and business men into Hungary and Rumania and an attempted infiltration into Yugoslavia, can report that there is a considerable resemblance in the appearance of the travelers and the technique employed.

Familiar Faces

Indeed, some of the same faces seen in Budapest and Bucharest and in Belgrade—before the Yugoslav government overthrew the pro-German Cvetkovitch government—have been seen during the past few days in Istanbul and Ankara hotels. These Germans carry passports with Iranian visas. They wear the familiar German sports costumes of cheap tweeds with elastic-belted coats and all of them seem to spend money freely in the cafes and restaurants of Ankara and Istanbul.

The infiltration appears to be working on the shuttle system, and as rapidly as one German's residence permit expires in Iran the German packs and leaves, frequently turning over his hotel reservation to his broad-shouldered blond young successor.

German sources in Istanbul and in Ankara, before the departure for the summer holidays of Ambassador Franz von Papen and most of the diplomats from Ankara to the cooler coastal resorts, circulated reports that a large British army is being concentrated in Iraq along the Iranian border, followed by thinly-veiled accusations that Britain has aggressive intentions against Teheran. The Germans cite the transfer of Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell to the Indian command and British diplomatic anti-German activity in the Iranian capital as proof that the British are preparing some kind of action in former Persia.

Admit Reinforcements

The British are making no secret of the reinforcement of their position in the Middle East and Far East, all the way from Burma to Egypt. The British insist, however, that these activities are of a purely preventive and defensive character, pointing out for instance that they have everyhing to gain—including Iranian oil—from continued quiet in Iran and a great deal to lose if Iran is involved in war.

The Turkish government is keenly interested in this situation and Ankara is maintaining a sharp watch over developments at Teheran and Tabriz. The names and the actual intentions of most of the Germans moving in and out of Iran are well known to the Turkish authorities, who keep all suspicious foreigners under close surveillance. While it is not generally known, therefore, exactly how many Germans are in Teheran, Tabriz and elsewhere, it seems reasonably certain the Turks know precisely and may make use of this information in the simplest and most direct manner.

Forget Your Inhibitions—and Jump Around

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

HERE'S WHAT HE MEANS—Movie Dance Director Nick Castle, who says the old-fashioned waltz is gone forever and that jitterbugging is getting rough, illustrates what he means with Billie Lane, dancer from the film version of "Hellzapoppin'"

By the Associated Press

Hollywood, July 23.—"Whadda you care what people think? Get out there and jump around, throw your arms and forget your inhibitions. You'll also forget your troubles."

It's Dance Director Nick Castle talking.

If you've been waiting for the day jitterbugging dies and waltzes return, he advises you not to hold your breath. If he's right (and the movies pay him plenty to be) dancing is going to get rougher and rougher.

"In a while," he says, "you won't be seeing jitterbugging. The popular dance will be a combination of rug cutting and the primitive jungle dances, the kind you do to tomtoms."

He paused to illustrate with a bit of jumping around and arm throwing which shook the wooden stage. It's part of a routine he's creating for "Hellzapoppin'."

"Anything goes," he puffed.

Castle's theory is that dancing—this kind—is good for the mind because it's good for the body.

"What people need now is to get out and exert themselves," he says. "There's nothing like fast dancing to do the trick. An hour or so for the average person and he goes home and to sleep—too tired to worry."

He has another idea, too, a sort of hot-cha square dance—"great stuff for parties."

"Anybody could do it," he enthuses. "Imagine the fun of a rhumba square dance, for instance, rhumba steps in square dance style."

Anticipating a query, he went on: "There's no question of morals in jungle dancing. Folks who want to be immoral don't need dancing. That's always been just a long-hair excuse. Even if it were a good argument, waltzing would lend itself better than fast stuff. Doing a jungle dance, you won't have time to let your mind wander."

British Counting On A. E. F., Says Phil La Follette

Stamford, Conn., July 23 (AP).—Philip F. La Follette, former Governor of Wisconsin, declared in an address prepared for an America-First Committee rally tonight that Britain not only counted on a new A. E. F. but expected American troops to aid in policing Germany for a generation.

"Lord Halifax in his New York speech before the pilgrims and now Sir Robert Vansittart tell us what they propose after the war shall have been won with an A. E. F.," La Follette said. "It is a generation of American and British occupation of Europe—to take 'the present generation of Germans . . . into protective custody.'

"In other words, America's role for a generation to come will be simply this: to place 80 million Germans in a gigantic concentration camp and stand guard over them until the whole of the present generation will have died. Then and only then will our European assignment be completed—that is, if Europe is not by then in the midst of a new and bloodier war generated by the peace terms of the present conflict."

Swiss Bank Pays 2 Million On Judgment

By the Associated Press

A 20-year-old case involving an alleged international fraud was written off the books yesterday when the United States accepted a check for $2,020,769 from the Swiss Bank Corporation.

The story goes back to the World War, when stock of the American Metal Co., later held by a court to be owned by two German corporations, was seized by the alien property custodian. The corporations were the Metallbank and the Metallgesellschaft, of Frankfort-on-the-Main.

In 1921 the Swiss Bank Corporation and the Societe Suisse prevailed upon Harry M. Daugherty, then attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, then alien property custodian, to pay a claim of $6,967,987 based on proceeds from the stock. Daugherty and Miller were indicted for conspiricy to defraud the United States. The case against Daugherty eventually was dismissed but Miller was convicted.

The Societe Suisse sued in 1930 for $700,000 interest alleged to be owing on the claim which had been paid. The United States filed a counter suit for both the full amount of the claim and interest.

The case, tried in 1937, brought a judgment of $14,000,000 for the United States after the court held that the two German corporations, not the Swiss company, were the owners of the seized securities.

The Societe Suisse had no assets in this country, so Justice Department lawyers filed suit at Basle, Switzerland, in 1939. Then the Swiss bank corporation opened an agency in New York and the Justice Department filed a suit against the corporation on the ground that it was jointly liable with the societe.

Yesterday's settlement is the conclusion of that litigation. Justice officials said that the sum paid represented 20 per cent of the original claim with interest at 2½ per cent since 1921.

U.S. Is Heading Nazis in Tank Production

By James G. Simonds
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Tank production in the United States has reached a point in little more than a year which Germany required more than five years of rearmament under Hitler to attain, and already American tanks are superior to those being produced in Germany, Lieut. Col. John K. Christmas, the Army's leading tank expert, said yesterday.

Col. Christmas has just been called to Washington from the ordnance proving grounds at Aberdeen, Md., where he has been directing tests and improvements on new types of combat vehicles, to head a new tank and combat vehicle division of the Ordnance Department. The colonel has been associated with the development of every American tank since 1924. In his new post, creation of which became known only yesterday, he will be in charge not only of production but also of the design of the new light and medium tanks which will be used by the Army, as well as other types of combat vehicles.

The American people should realize that the tremendous victories which the German armies have achieved in Europe and North Africa are won not because the Germans have superior types of tanks but because they have so many of them that they overwhelm their opponents, Col. Christmas said.

The United States Army still has a great deal of ground to cover to catch up with Germany, not only in tank production but also in learning tank tactics, Col. Christmas said.

In addition to the speed with which the American tank production program is being carried forward, he explained, the American tanks are better than those being produced abroad because they are faster and are made of better material.

Discussing the new 29-ton medium tank built by the Chrysler Corporation, Col. Christmas said that it was the result of a combination of as many new engineering developments as was possible in view of the need for speed in production.

He questioned whether critics were correct in condemning it because it was much higher than the German models, and he pointed out that the added height gave its gunners a better opportunity to see their target. Gunners in the more streamlined Nazi models would not be able to see such a great distance.

Recent reports that many American-made tanks have been destroyed while fighting against the Germans and Italians in North Africa are untrue, Col. Christmas added, explaining that the tanks mentioned had proved upon investigation to be British products.

O'Daniel Vetoes Death Sentence For Sabotage

Austin, Tex., July 23 (AP).—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel today vetoed a bill making sabotage punishable by death but said he intended to introduce a more severe version in the United States Senate.

O'Daniel, recently elected to succeed the late Morris Sheppard, said his veto was based on conscientious objection to capital punishment and because research had shown property damage from sabotage could be punished under 21 State and 11 Federal statutes.

"As a safeguard, however," he said, "I intend to carry a copy of the bill with me to Washington and introduce it in the United States Senate, changed only to the extent of providing a maximum penalty more severe than the death sentence."

Such a penalty, he explained, should be an irrevocable life sentence at hard labor.

Queens G. O. P. Decides Against LaGuardia

New York, July 23.—Warren B. Ashmead, chairman of the Queens County Republican Committee, announced today that the Queens organization will not support Mayor F. H. LaGuardia in his campaign for reelection.

John J. Knewitz, Republican leader of the Bronx, has also taken a stand against Mayor LaGuardia. Mr. Ashmead has denounced Mayor LaGuardia for opposing Republican candidates for Governor, and for campaigning for President Roosevelt.

Eccles Criticizes 66 Reserve System Loan Restrictions

Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, yesterday told the Senate committee investigating defense that legal prohibitions hedging the system's making of direct loans to business should either be repealed or that power liquidated entirely.

He added that his organization was better organized to make the loans than the Reconstruction Finance Corporation but that Congress would have to put up more money and take away jobbing restrictions before the system could be of much use to the national defense effort.

"For all practical purposes," he added, "the system is impotent."

Eccles revealed that there was available for the purposes of these direct loans only 112 million dollars in earmarked gold.

Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, said he did not wish to see the Federal Reserve System "degenerate" from its original purpose and become a private banking house. Eccles said, that he preferred to see the private lending powers ended but that if they were not, then the law should be liberalized to permit the doing of a real job. Otherwise the 112 million dollars should be returned to the Treasury.

French Tanker Allowed to Leave Gas at Dakar

Copyright by New York Times

The State Department revealed today that, with the consent of British authorities, the French tanker Scheherazade on her recent trip to Casablanca left 2,000 tons of gasoline for civilian use under United States control at Dakar. The oil is being used for automobiles, farm implements, and the like.

The delivery, Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State said, did not indicate an extension of America's trade policy from French North Africa to French West Africa.

The tanker was taken into Bermuda weeks ago by the British when en route to Casablanca but recently was released to complete her voyage.

Silver Spring Guards First To Be Mustered

Company C, Seventh Battalion, was mustered into service last night in ceremonies at the Silver Spring (Md.) National Guard Armory, the first unit of the Maryland State Guard to be mustered in.

The oath was given to 68 men and 3 officers by Maj. Paul E. Sutherland, assistant G-3 (administration) of the State Guard. Maj. Sutherland congratulated the members on being the first in the State.

Officers of the company are Capt. Mark Patterson, First Lieut. Ronald McDonald and Second Lieut. George A. Hood.

Twenty-eight additional men were enlisted in the Guard at the ceremony. They will be assigned to Company D, now being organized.

The State Guard will take the place of the National Guard, which has entered Federal service.

Maryland Coach Improves Slightly

Coleman Headley, 26, University of Maryland acting track coach, continued to show slight improvement yesterday at University Hospital, Baltimore, where he was taken Sunday night after being shot in a tavern near Laurel, Md.

Physicians said the .38-caliber bullet that penetrated Headley's stomach and lodged near the spine, was removed yesterday. His condition was described as still critical.

Headley was shot at the Evergreen Tourist Camp in an altercation over a slot machine, according to Maryland State police.

6:00 A. M. Reveille. (There was no sense going to bed for that two-hours-and-a-half, anyhow, but we'll try anything once.)

JOHN BOLES

7:38 A. M. Arrive at Warner executive offices to find Bernie Harrison already there, asleep on a typewriter desk. At 7:40, 7:42 and 7:45, in the order named, "Bill" Blumberg, of the New York office; Jay Carmody and Helen Buchalter and "Bill" Ewing stumble down the hall, groping their way in the dark.

8:15 A. M. Arrive at new National Airport, a model of up-to-the-minuteness that looks like a movie set. Rush for cuppa cawfee, explain haste and get (1) napkin (2) spoon (3) sugar (4) cream and (last) the java, so hot it couldn't be drunk in time that was left.

8:30 A. M. Board Eastern Airlines nonstop white ship and everybody goes promptly to sleep.

10:00 A. M. Arrive LaGuardia Airport, New York, bigger than ours, but not better.

10:01 A. M. Met by Bob William, of Warner New York office, and Cadillac V-12.

10:30 A. M. Awakened again to drag up to Suite 552, Astor Hotel.

10:40 A. M. Comes the cellarette, chaperoned by the presumable author of the Bartender's Guide.

Today is the day and 2 p. m. the hour of the "Aluminum Matinees" in five of the Sidney Lust theaters in Maryland. These special events, dedicated to national defense, will be held in the Cameo Theater, Mount Rainier; Bethesda Theater, Bethesda; Hyattsville Theater, in Hyattsville; Marlboro Theater, Upper Marlboro, and Milo Theater, Rockville. The admission charge will be one piece of aluminum ware—or as many more as can be spared for an adventurous life in an air bomber. A special bill of screen entertainment has been assembled for each of the Lust houses. Each will be a bargain for that old article of aluminum you were going to throw away, anyhow. Or even if you weren't.

Always eagerly greeted in Washington, his many friends will be pretty happy to know that John Boles will headline the stage bill at Loew's Capitol Theater the week of Thursday, July 31, in association with Harriet Hoctor, favorite dancing star, and Marty May, comedian, last seen here—if memory serves—at the National in "Three After Three." Mr. Boles will bring one of Hollywood's best voices along with him.

"It Is Later Than You Think"

Auditions of entertainers wishing to appear in the units to tour the nine training camps in and around Washington are coming along quicker than was expected, the response has been so immediate and so great. The D. C. Council of Defense, of which we were speaking here a day or two ago, announces the first auditions for Saturday night at 8, in Central High School, Thirteenth and Clifton Streets Northwest. This will include all those who will have registered in Room 500, District Building, by 7 p. m., Friday.

A New Note Brought to Film

Hollywood, Calif., July 23.—I never miss an invitation to visit a John Ford set. And when I was bidden to take an hour's ride out to see the Welsh village he'd built for "How Green Was My Valley," I accepted with alacrity. If you could only see and feel the spirit of those people as I did yesterday.

LIONEL BARRYMORE

Ford, who has a deeply religious streak in him and is a sentimentalist from way back (and who'll be furious because I am giving him away), is getting a quality into this picture that I don't believe any other man could get. In the first place, it's a wonderful story. He's built an absolute replica of the Welsh village where the story is laid, with the mines at the head of the street, belching black or white smoke—whichever he wants—little cars filled with coal, the whole hill a shag heap, then a long street of little houses with their two-bit garden patches, and at the end of that, a church and cemetery.

Four or five of the actual people in the picture came from that village. Because Ford went to a Welsh church here, loved the way they sang (and if you've ever heard them, it's a haunting memory which you won't forget in many a day), Ford asked the entire congregation if they'd work for him. Some of them didn't like the idea. The preacher said, well, he wouldn't be in the picture but if they would like him to kind of oversee—he could show Walter Pidgeon what he does for his flock.

Because the rains came, Lionel Barrymore is building quite an addition on his house in the valley. When a roof developed leaks, Lionel said, "Let's do the room over. I never liked it, anyway." . . . Richard Himber, co-writer of "Root of all Evil," unfortunately was given an old telephone number of mine which I'd used for 16 years. He was so annoyed by calls that he finally changed his voice. Now when they ask for me, he says, "no, please, this is Japanese spy headquarters!"

Florence George's (Mrs. Everett Crosby) cocktail party for Florence Easton and the musical set was one of those parties that went on and on. Florence Easton did very well for herself on that concert tour back East, and don't be surprised if she makes the Metropolitan yet.

Palace

Possibly the most probable outcome of the Palace's improbable film is that it's good for a second week on F Street, for Clark Gable and Rosalind Russell are its stars. "They Met in Bombay" titles this lurid adventure of two players who are certain boxoffice magnates.

Imagination of the sort which fashions the comic strips must have created this story of the jewel thief who was awarded the Victoria Cross for bravery. And Lois to this primitive Superman is a serene ice-lifter who palms herself off as a baroness and eventually persuades her ruthless boyfriend that lifting his tootsies for the King is better than grabbing gems from his titled subjects.

All of which, of course, is very noble and makes a truly proper parable for our darksome day. But despite their fascinating adventures probably the most bewitching creature they come upon is their common victim, the Duchess of Beltravers, a gay lady of the chorus who grew up to own The Star of Asia and become a celebrated drunkard. She's a figure of great vitality, this willful relic, capitally played by Jessie Ralph. But unfortunately when her gem disappears, so does Her Grace.

Continuing its parable about the poor returns of crime, "They Met in Bombay" follows its early excitement in a luxurious hostel with boredom and penury for our friends in a Singapore basement and an Army hospital. Disguised in an officer's uniform, Gable falls heir to defending the Empire, which he proceeds to do to kingly commendation.

Where Credit Is Due

New York, July 23.

DAVID O. SELZNICK: Laurence Olivier, who now is a member of the Fleet Air Arm, was at the London offices of the Admiralty when the Hood-Bismarck naval engagement was in progress. When the news of the Bismarck's sinking finally came, and the Fleet Air Arm was credited by the War Department with sighting and torpedoing the Nazi warship, Olivier rushed home to tell the news to his wife, Vivien Leigh . . . "The Bismarck's sunk," he shouted, joyfully and Miss Leigh joined him in merriment. "And not only that," Olivier added, "The War Department has given full credit for the sinking to the Fleet Air Arm" . . . Miss Leigh held her husband at arm's length, looked at him admiringly, and then softly said: "Well done, darling."

JACK DEMPSEY

DIST. ATTY. SAM FOLEY: Although you will be the Democratic nominee for reelection, you probably will receive the endorsement of Mayor LaGuardia . . . TOMMY GUINAN: Honeychile Wilder will become the foremost aspirant for the position your sister, the late Texas Guinan, held in the cafe business. Miss Wilder has been eminently successful at The Hurricane, and expects to have her own night club, called "Honeychile's," at the site of the Mon Paris . . . SUMNER WELLES: Ben Cohen won't return to his post as counselor to the American Embassy in London until Harry Hopkins returns from there.

HARRY RICHMAN: Your former vaudeville partner, Jack Waldron—no wat the Cocoanut Grove, and who recently celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary in show business—is slated to take over the Jack Durant role in "Pal Joey," when Durant returns to Hollywood . . . OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN: The man who wrote the lyrics for the Hut-Sut song—the legal adviser to the California Legislative Council, can't explain how he concocted the double talk words employed in this song which is sweeping the country . . . RAJAH OF SARAWAK: At long last your wife, the Ranee, is going home to your island in Borneo. Clipper arrangements finally were made.

NEWSPAPER GUILD: Ring Lardner, jr., who shared the $100,000 which M-G-M paid him and Michael Kanin for the screen play to the new Katharine Hepburn-Spencer Tracy movie, immediately received a joint congratulatory message from his former newspaper colleagues in Manhattan. The wire read: "Can you lend me $50,000 until pay day?" . . . W. C. T. U.: No liquor is being sold on board the "West Point"—the elegant vessel, formerly the S. S. America, which is bringing the Nazi and Italian consuls back to Europe. The captain feared that if the passengers were served any liquor, the Italians and Germans would start fighting each other . . . JACK DEMPSEY: Will you have that story ready for the press, when you return to N. Y. in two weeks?

'One Punch Judy' Invades Boys' Clubs in Brady's C.U. Laugh Hit

By Richard L. Coe

"One Punch Judy," a young lady of whom it's safe to say you'll hear more in the next year or so, arrived in town last night. Boxing, her life's blood, but no sporting event introduced her; Judy's the creation of Playwright Leo Brady and Catholic University's campus theater was the scene of her fisticuffs, as it will be again tonight and tomorrow.

This time the wonder boy of Brookland has written a comedy in which the brashness of childhood's wisdom has a background of Police Boys Clubs, as refreshing a notion as it is funny in execution. The play has wit and pace as well as an admirably healthy spirit about it and should make a delightful E Street attraction (keep your fingers crossed about that child labor law news) and a swell picture to boot.

Something of a tomboy, Judy is manager-trainer of a Police Boys Club champ, but she's also got a feminine side. Very feminine, everyone allows when she senses a film starlet on the scene. This embryo Garbo appears quite logically—she's doing her bit for the Boys Clubs and it's only natural to find her pushing Judy's temperature up when the champ falls under her spell.

Richly Amusing Situations

The be-sweatered Judy weaves a web to win him back that's as involved as all such devices are. A promising challenger, a gold medal, a punch-drunk father and an individualistic kid brother are as important to her scheme of things as the very feminine gown she sports at a critical moment.

Brady has woven this ever-interesting adventure with wisecracks and richly amusing situations, but it is mainly on character drawing that he bases his play. Judy and her brother are delightfully true figures of everyone's earlier years and the champ and challenger are equally real. Only in tieing his threads together does Brady falter and then only to a negligible extent. Judy's attitude to the film star is confusing and the tagline is a trifle long in coming, but these are unimportant on the whole, for further playing will smooth the handling of the scene.

Excellent Cast Scores

Excellent casting has given "One Punch Judy" a tip-top start. Most of the cast is drawn from the Speech and Drama Department's High School Laboratory, with Beverly Baron scoring decisively in the title role and three other players turning in sock impressions. There is the likable William McGuire, admirable as the conceited boxer, a vastly different role from his poetic "Calidore," and 16-year-old Pat Davis playing the greenhorn with ingenuous charm and to vast applause. Declan Klingenhagen makes of the now-he's-lisping-now-he-isn't kid brother a part as merry as the wee brightie in "Watch on the Rhine."

Father Hartke directed the cast, which further includes Quinn O'Connell, Bill Coleman, James Towey, Margaret Cummings, Inez Kuipers, Ed Casey, Anita Gahn and Marie McCabe.

What with its interpolated—and unique—boxing sequence, "One Punch Judy" is a comicly human sock, one which you'll relish as much now as when it hits the screen, as hit it's bound to do.

"KEEP 'EM FLYING!"

LET'S GO! U.S.A. KEEP 'EM FLYING!

It's a grand slogan the U. S. Army has . . . "Keep 'em flying!"

The speedy fighters and powerful bombers that are taking to the air in defense of our country . . . "Keep 'em flying!"

The thousands of new cadets who are being trained to man these planes . . . "Keep 'em flying!"

Yes, it's a slogan that every citizen can be proud of, and that every citizen wants to see fulfilled.

And it's a slogan that applies just as truly to the airlines of the nation as it does to the fighting force . . . "Keep 'em flying!" Because today, more than ever, it is essential to the strength of our union to have the swift, dependable transportation between every section of the country which the airlines are providing for the men, mail and materials of national defense.

United Air Lines recognizes its responsibility in this period of unlimited emergency, and welcomes the opportunity to serve to the utmost of its ability.

Along our Main Line Airway—the strategic central mid-continent route—are many of the nation's greatest cities and most important defense plants; and we are furnishing them today the fastest service in our history!

The Government has helped by letting us retain planes to do so. Additional planes which we had ordered to meet the needs of normal expansion we have turned over to other defense uses.

The action of the Army and Navy in placing airline pilots in a reserve pool, similar to the deferred status of men in defense industry, plus the training by United of new co-pilots in its own schools, has given us the experienced Captains and First Officers to fly our Mainliners. Likewise, key ground operating personnel have been deferred.

Our inventories of replacements—engines, propellers, instruments—have been maintained at normal levels so that the highest standards of operation may be maintained.

With this, and with the whole-hearted support of our 3500 men and women, United is aiding in the speeding of defense work to the limit of its capacity. Because of unceasing demands made upon air transportation by business travelers and shippers, there may be times when availability of space in the air lines may be taxed.

So, just as in certain other business playing an important role in national defense, we ask the public to recognize that with United Air Lines, defense comes first during these emergency times.

Chief Of Police

It is no disparagement of Maj. Ernest W. Brown's services to say that his prospective retirement as superintendent of police is good news for Washington. The genial Maj. Brown has given 40 years of his life to police work. As head of the department for nearly nine years, he has won the respect and good will of the community as well as that of his own force. His withdrawal will be welcomed only because he has passed a reasonable retirement age for police officers, and because the city is urgently in need of more vigorous and energetic direction of its police force than he can now provide.

Whatever may be the specific recommendations of the House subcommittee which has investigated the local police, the need for a general reorganization of the department is now clear. Our police have failed in some instances to keep abreast of modern methods. Their training system is patently outmoded. The fact that the force has only one graduate of the FBI school for police executives and teachers is an indication of laxity that should not be tolerated in the Nation's Capital. Rookies begin their duties, moreover, with only three months of training. No modern police force can be expected to attain efficiency in the complicated task of detecting and preventing crime with such meager preparation. New leadership in the department appears to be the most direct means of instituting a better training program.

Means of eliminating the deadwood on the force should also be devised. The existing trial-board method has not been successful in eliminating all the men whose usefulness as policemen has passed. Why shouldn't the police of Washington be required to meet rigorous physical tests every year, as are members of the FBI? Experience and training are of little value to men who are no longer active and alert. If the new superintendent of police is energetic and alive to his responsibility, he can quickly improve the morale of his men. For the belief that new brooms sweep clean is no mere myth. A considerable percentage of our policemen need to be aroused from their apathetic routine, and only a new chief is likely to give them that stimulus.

It would be a pathetic blunder, however, to assume that every officer in the department should be shifted or have his official head chopped off merely for the sake of making changes. Reports indicate, for example, that the House subcommittee will recommend a transfer for Inspector Arthur Miller, who is in charge of traffic for the department. Now Inspector Miller has been specifically trained for this job and is doing excellent work. It is inconceivable that this segment of the force should be disturbed just after winning the National Safety Council award for Washington last year. The least the Commissioners can do is to select a new chief who will conserve and improve upon any progress which the police have made in recent years.

Why Time Counts

"The Americans have missed the bus, because Germany's start in the war cannot be overtaken." These words appear in Angriff of May 14 under the signature of Dr. Robert Ley, head of the Nazi Labor Front. The words emphasize the two significant facts about this war: first, that the Nazis think of the United States as their ultimate enemy, and are bent upon acquiring enough territory and resources for the final reckoning; and, secondly, that our salvation from now on lies in using our time to prevent the emergence of such a colossus. Senators may find in Dr. Ley's words a spur to action on the President's message on our military establishment.

Mr. Welles' Vision

The representative ceremony at the Norwegian Legation in Washington on Tuesday testified to the organic unity which now binds freemen everywhere. That unity is something for which we may thank Mr. Hitler. Before he emerged like a scourge, freemen had been sunk in forgetfulness of their common inheritance. Religious ties had become weak, common convictions seemed to have been overlaid, and there appeared to have been no genuine and living conviction of truth. Instead the people to whom the torch of liberty had been bequeathed created a new and false god in nationalism which put blood and soil in place of the spirit. There was nothing which gave more than shadowy shape to life till Hitler soared forth to turn mankind into robots and to replace the old organic unity with a mechanical unity.

This organic unity is the real hope that we can create a world society after the travail is over. For in any human organization it is the spirit that counts. The old League of Nations was not so informed. It was a meeting place, and all that the nations did there was to smooth over the ever-recurring situations which arose out of the world chaos. They did not go to the roots of the world malaise. Mr. Sumner Welles, in his talk at the Norwegian ceremony, dealt with those roots. He envisaged another world society after the final and utter destruction of Hitlerism, and he saw it firmly based upon two foundation stones. With the one—international control of armaments—there will be no argument. The other may not seem so acceptable, namely, economic demobilization. Mr. Welles did not mention the word tariff, but a tariff system was not what typified the closed economic systems which were the bane of the prewar world. The real bane lay in embargoes, monopolies, the closed door to raw materials, and other examples of what the economists call "administrative protection."

Peace can be assured only if the fundamental steps mentioned by Mr. Welles are taken by our next world society. The world is now as crowded as Juvenal's Rome. It must live together, or perish; and the only way to live together is to live and let live. What Mr. Welles said has long been recognized as the sine qua non of world peace. But the recognition came as lip service—in the acknowledgment that it was all right for the other fellow to subscribe to, or in material for eloquent speechmaking. For instance, Sir Samuel Hoare, at the beginning of the Ethiopian crisis, said much the same thing as Mr. Welles said on Tuesday. But nothing was done at that time to break up the monopoly over raw materials which the colonial proprietors among the great powers exercised at the expense of world consumers.

Assuredly the opportunity to act as well as talk will return. For this organic unity among freemen is filling in the spiritual vacuum, and freemen so armed must triumph over the dark forces of Hitlerism. And then this unity will be the mainspring of the reconstruction era, for men should then see clearly that only by giving shape to our common life can we insure our own national survival. The conviction in Mr. Welles' voice as he envisaged freemen again on the march is the conviction of the men who are now fighting the war of freedom with a passion and an unconquerable mind which not so long ago seemed to have vanished.

John C. Garand

A correspondent in yesterday's Post, commenting on the tremendous contribution to national defense of men like Glenn Martin and Donald Douglas—men who have spent their lives developing our military airplanes—makes the point that it is high time that we honored the Martins and the Douglases with suitable rewards. And so we should. In fact, a move has already been made which is at least in line with The Post correspondent's general argument. Recently a bill was introduced in Congress which would authorize payment of $100,000 to John C. Garand, inventor of the Garand semi-automatic rifle. Mr. Garand, an employe for many years of the Springfield Armory, which was the first arsenal to produce the new-type Garand rifle, has persistently avoided public recognition or reward. His chief satisfaction since turning over to the War Department all the patents connected with the rifle apparently has been to assist in Garand improvements.

Today we are manufacturing upward of 20,000 Garands a month. A year from now production will be perhaps two and a half times as great. This is encouraging from the standpoint of security, but it leaves Mr. Garand right where he is now—and where, presumably, he wants to be, in his model shop in Springfield. To judge by his past performance, Congress would have difficulty in persuading him to accept a financial grant, though, Heaven knows, he deserves it. Had he sold his rifle to private industry or to a foreign government, royalties would long since have made him a wealthy man. In the circumstances, if he cannot be prevailed upon to accept money for his services, assuming Congressional support, then perhaps some other signal honor can be bestowed upon him—and upon others equally deserving. There ought to be some means by which a grateful nation may acknowledge creative industrial genius.

Japan Nibbles

The militarists who rule the roost at Tokyo have always acted on the assumption that Europe's difficulties are Japan's opportunities. That was true during World War I. It is true today. When Great Britain and France became involved in war in the fall of 1939, Japan made use of their preoccupation with affairs nearer home by moving south in the general direction of Indo-China, Singapore and the Dutch East Indies. This movement was accelerated in the spring of 1940 when the Dutch armies surrendered to Hitler, France fell and Great Britain found herself with her back to the wall.

Since then Japan has been consolidating her position in the south. Visible proof of that was the concession wrested from the feeble hands of the Vichy government whereby Japan secured the right to maintain troops in certain parts of Indo-China. This development had very considerable advantages for the island empire. In the first place, it made it possible for the Japanese to block an important Chinese supply route—the railroad from Indo-China to the Chinese province of Yunnan. Secondly, it provided Japan with new bases of attack on the Chinese armies. Thirdly, it enabled Japan to acquire valuable supplies on her own terms. Last, but by no means least, it meant the acquisition of bases in closer proximity to Singapore and the Dutch East Indies than those which Japan had possessed before.

Japan is not yet ready to attempt a frontal assault on either Singapore or the Dutch possessions in southeastern Asia. And in the north it would be equally premature, and it might be extremely dangerous, for the Japanese to invade Siberia unless and until the island empire is assured that such action could be undertaken in relative safety. Russia, to be sure, is locked in a life-and-death struggle with Germany in Europe. But there is no evidence that her Far Eastern armies are not still large enough and powerful enough to beat back any Japanese assault on Vladivostok. And there is the danger that a war with Russia at this time might result in the bombing of Kobe, Osaka, Tokyo, Yokohama and Nagoya, all within bombing range of Vladivostok.

While waiting for the Russian situation to clarify, Japan has apparently decided to do nothing in the north. Instead she is moving to extend her control over the French territory of Indo-China. Vichy did not hesitate to send French troops to be slaughtered in mandated Syria, but, under the promptings of its Nazi masters, will not lift a finger to protect its own territory of Indo-China from the Japanese. Accordingly Japan is now going to get new and strategically important air and naval bases which will come in handy against the day that an attack on Singapore and the Dutch East Indies becomes feasible. These bases can be used, in the meantime, for further action against China. Thus the new Konoye government will achieve a real victory at practically no cost, and probably at little risk.

Did we say little risk? Well, we wonder. Some of our Government spokesmen are talking big, but it remains to be seen whether the United States and Great Britain will counter Japan's latest move by employing economic sanctions against the island empire. There should be no hesitation any longer to prove to the Japanese that from now on we intend to suit our actions to our minatory words.

THE AUDACIOUS

Around the bend of the raked path
An ancient gardener wheels his barrow;
Patiently plotting for tomorrow,
His small eyes still command the earth.

His stiffened fingers, apt at coddling,
Pry gently loose a three-inch plant.
On his familiar element
He kneels and in it sets the seedling.

A foot apart, defiant of
The dark shape moving at his shoulder,
Under its gaze—insolent builder—
He sets each small relentless life.

Daylight Saving

There is one Government department which would be working under a severe handicap if the daylight-saving program is put into effect. I refer to the Postoffice Department.

Most of us have to get up around 4:30 in the morning, and in the summertime we can use natural light for breakfast. If daylight saving were enforced, thousands of us throughout the country would have to resort to artificial light all year around.

We do not have air-cooled White Houses, Hyde Park acres and cool Maryland estates. Most of our homes, as are all row houses and apartments, are like boilers until after midnight. To rob us of one hour's cool rest is unthinkable. We report from 5 to 6 every morning, according to the section we work.

Comparatively few men have been added to the Postoffice personnel in spite of the thousands of people coming here who receive a large volume of mail from home. Our load is greatly increased, even though all of us do not rate larger territories. Where we had one name in some homes to deliver to, now there are two, three or even more persons at the same address. At the end of the day we are exhausted. Other departments are dismissed when the thermometer creeps up to 96 or 97. We carry through boiling sun or blizzards. Our summer clothing and caps are unbearably heavy. About 50 per cent of us have been denied any vacation whatsoever this year. Many of us feel almost at the breaking point now. I believe that the efficiency of the hardest worked, hardest pushed group of men in the system would be greatly reduced, and the morale of postal workers would be lowered by daylight saving—for us it would be dark torture. Unity Required

No one has been more opposed than I to our entering this war. My position in the beginning was that we should build up an impregnable defense of our Nation, and at the same time furnish all aid to Britain consistent with our welfare and security. This is not our war and I felt that for us to become active belligerents in it would be to jeopardize our liberties, our institutions and run the risk of creating here a totalitarian government—the very thing we would be supposed to be fighting against. However, Mr. Roosevelt and his associates have now gotten us into the war, whether wisely or unwisely remains to be seen. It is now our Nation, right or wrong, and the dictates of our best interests and self-preservation demand that we shall prosecute the war in collaboration with Great Britain with every resource at our command. This being the situation every consideration for our welfare and self-preservation demands that our people shall now support the Government in perfect unity, and that the isolationists should cease their opposition. It therefore follows that the statements in the papers this morning of Senator Wheeler are not only highly inopportune and improper but are treasonable in their effect as they are calculated to create insubordination and mutiny in the armed forces of the Nation, and thereby give aid and comfort to our enemies.

The time for criticism and opposition is past. The situation facing us requires unity among our people and whole-hearted support of the armed forces of the Nation and the foreign policies of the Administration.

Murders In The Dark

There is a letter in The Post of July 19, "Murders in the Dark," signed Walter N. Polakov, director, engineering department, U. M. W. of A. "Murders in the Dark" refers to an article by Westbrook Pegler in a previous Post, about explosions in mines.

Mr. Polakov attributes to Mr. Pegler motives which I do not believe that Mr. Pegler has.

He says that "if Mr. Pegler really wanted to be 'Fair Enough' concerning mine disasters he would not indulge in propaganda of whitewashing the gruesome facts." I just cannot imagine Mr. Pegler whitewashing any gruesome facts. He just revels in "gruesome facts." On the contrary, he persists in dragging all skeletons out of all closets and hanging all dirty linen out on the line for everybody to see.

Again Mr. Polakov says that "Mr. Pegler finds it very convenient for his purpose not to explain what these 'open lights' are. They are the open-flame lamps which miners wear on their hats while working." I think the reason Mr. Pegler did not explain what these "open lights" were was because he honestly thought that everyone knew what they were. All children who have been through the grades know this fact now.

It seems to me that both Mr. Pegler and Mr. Polakov have the same object in view—that is, the betterment of mine conditions for the mine workers. Much more could be accomplished if they would work together instead of arguing about terminology.

'Treason?'

What in your opinion constitutes "an act of treason?"

In a recent issue of The Post I read where Senator Wheeler charged that American naval and marine units would soon occupy Iceland. Then in a more recent issue Mr. Taft disclosed the fact American labor and materials were being used in construction of bases in North Ireland.

These two officials, elected in all good faith by the constituents of their respective States, perhaps feel they have rendered the folks back home a great favor by disclosure of such military and naval actions, but is their conception of loyalty and faith in President Roosevelt and his Cabinet members so shallow as that?

In disclosing prematurely information of such importance the lives of those involved are placed in jeopardy, not to mention the equipment.

And these gentlemen (Congressmen) claim to be for American Defense First!!

Again may I ask what constitutes "an act of treason?"

A Chance To Reply

I do not know Col. Lindbergh and I presume comparatively few of your readers do. In common with most of them, I do not agree with him. He has, however, the right of free speech, and under all the circumstances, he should be given a fair hearing.

When a man is attacked (and perhaps unfairly) by the President of the United States and a member of his Cabinet, common justice and fair play demand that he be given a chance to reply.

Fight For Freedom

Why organize, why fight for freedom? Do not organizations curtail and fighting destroy liberty?

Aren't there already too many organizations and too much fighting? Undoubtedly—but that does not mean we can afford not to organize to fight for freedom.

The Fifth Columnists and their coworkers, Lindbergh, Wheeler and other isolationists and pacifists are organized and have a heap of money back of their organizations.

I call them Fifth Columnists and their coworkers not because I doubt their honesty, sincerity or patriotism, but because they are working for Germany.

They are doing Hitler's job better and more effectively than Hitler could do it himself.

They are doing just what Hitler would like to have them do and for the most part without expense to Hitler.

They would have us limit our commerce to Hitler's will by retaining in effect the foolish, falsely named, Neutrality Act. They would have us refrain from defending our commerce on the high seas and from taking strategic bases to protect that commerce and keep war out of America. They would have us refrain from full, effective aid to those fighting Hitler. They would have us hamstring and render ineffective our entire Army by short-term service in the face of national peril.

If we, the people of America, would let them they would make certain of Hitler's victory and our defeat. But we won't let them. We will organize, we will fight for freedom and "The Fight for Freedom, Inc." will help to do it.

Loyalties And Creeds

Obviously Hitler is under the impression that he has hit upon a subject that will drive a wedge between American Catholics and President Roosevelt by the spectacular publication in German newspapers that President Roosevelt and his sons are members of the Masonic order. This is my answer to Hitler's discovery of the "mare's nest." The following is an extract from Tom Moore's poem: "Come, Send Round the Wine."

Shall I ask the brave soldier, who fights by my side
In the cause of mankind, if our creeds agree?
Shall I give up the friend I have valued and tried,
If he kneel not before the same
altar with me?

Suggestions

You have asked for suggestions relative to the further expansion of The Post.

On coming to this city 20 years ago our choice was The Post. We have seen it become a very satisfactory all-purpose daily paper. However, may I suggest that a nature column would be a pleasing feature.

HARRIET C. ROGERS.
Washington, July 20.

This morning you invited suggestions, so here goes for what it is worth. I live in the country and am interested in news, but I am also interested in live stock and grain markets.

I have often wondered why you did not lay more stress on Baltimore markets. I do not believe that any of your readers buy and sell on the Chicago market, and yet you generally carry this. Baltimore is our market.

It seems to me that many of your rural readers are in the same predicament that I am in. I get The Post for news and editorials and then am obliged to take another newspaper for market news. Confidentially—if Ickes knew this he might ration your rural readers.

The Post Impressionist

Mormon Flight

"Although in woods and tents we dwell,
Shout, shout, O Camp of Israel,
No Gentile mobs on earth can bind
Our thoughts or peace of mind."

So sang a Mormon poetess to her bewildered coreligionists in the winter of 1846. A wild and dissolute mob had forced these people from their beautiful city of Nauvoo. A distinguished delegation of citizens of Illinois, headed by Stephen A. Douglas, had called upon Brigham Young, leader of the sect, and told him that he and all his people must leave the State forthwith. If they failed to do so, the responsibility of this self-appointed committee would end, and the mob would be free to work its will.

Early in January, 1846, the State of Illinois witnessed a most amazing spectacle—a religion was on the move. Owners left their factories, housewives their hearths, farmers their farms, and teachers their schools. The entire city of Nauvoo was evacuated without any attempt being made to sell or lease their holdings. Many left behind their provisions and necessary clothing.

This host, numbering in the thousands, was forced to trek through uncharted wastelands in the dead of winter. From the diary of one of those refugees the following is copied: "The rain poured down in torrents. With great exertion a part of the camp were enabled to get about six miles, while others were stuck fast in the deep mud. We encamped at a point of timber about sunset after being drenched several hours in the rain. The mud and water in and around our tents were ankle deep, and the rain continued to pour down without any cessation. We were obliged to cut brush and limbs of trees and throw them upon the ground in our tents to keep our beds from sinking in the mire. Those who were unable to reach the timber suffered much on account of cold, having no fuel for fires. Our animals were turned loose to look out for themselves. The bark and limbs of trees were their principal food."

That night nine children were born in the Mormon camp.

The Camp of Israel proceeded on through the undeveloped public domain toward the Rocky Mountains. In a week's travels, the Mormons found that they had averaged less than five miles a day. It was then that the specter of starvation arose.

More than 800 families were on the march with less than a fortnight's provisions. Brigham Young told his followers to sell all surplus clothing, bedding, kitchen utensils and furniture to the frontier settlements for whatever could be realized from their sale. Others, who were musicians, were urged to play before non-Mormon assemblies for necessary foodstuffs.

There were in the Camp of Israel scoundrels who used the opportunity to profit from a fellow believer; counterfeiters passed spurious coinage at every opportunity. Others there were, who, acting as commission agents for the brethren, would buy cheap and sell dear.

Then there were the complainers who believed everything was done in the wrong way.

All of these problems weighed most heavily upon Brigham Young. His was the word, and none other would be accepted by his brethren.

He rallied his flock about him and urged them to take fresh courage. If they lived true to their faith, they would become a mighty people. So, heartened, the pilgrims pushed on.

When the weary caravan arrived at what is now Omaha, Nebr., their spirits were at the lowest point. Suffering from malnutrition and exposure, the people murmured against the will of their Lord.

While in their despair, an Army officer came among them. He told the Mormon leader that the United States and Mexico were at war. At the same time he wanted to form a battalion of soldiers from the exiles. Brigham Young seized the opportunity to show all people that his persecuted followers were most loyal to the Federal Government and pledged his solemn word that he would furnish the men. More than 500 volunteered and were mustered into the Federal service.

Then occurred an act of extreme sacrifice and devotion. To the last man, they turned over their uniform allowance and pay to Brigham Young, that those left behind might have food in the coming winter. Then they marched away into history.

With the loss of more than 500 of their most able men, further progress was out of the question for that year. With the soldiers' moneys ($20,000) Brigham Young bought great supplies of corn and other staple articles of food. The people were instructed to dig dugouts or caves in the sides of the hills. A grist mill was set up and a council house built that the Word of the Lord might still be preached to the people.

Scarcely had they started to build Winter Quarters, their name for the settlement, when sickness broke out. Scurvy or "blackleg" appeared and claimed its victims by the hundreds. A visitor noted the ravages of the disease. Said he, "Here at one time, the digging got behindhand. Burials were slow and you might see women sit in the open tents, keeping the flies off their dead children, sometime after decomposition had set in."

Soon the fever abated itself, and the remaining brethren set out to prepare for the winter. The virgin prairie soil was plowed, that much needed grains and vegetables might be planted. And so, as the people regained their physical strength through that summer and winter, Brigham Young counseled them on the greatness of their future heritage, if they persevered.

On April 16, 1847, Brigham Young led a scouting party of 148 souls on the last long trek of the Mormon Church. The trip to the Rocky Mountains was uneventful. So it was, 94 years ago today, on July 24, 1847, Brigham Young arrived in the valleys of Utah on the shores of the Great Salt Lake and laid the foundations wherein the Mormons did indeed become a mighty people as he had prophesied.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Isolationists And Soldiers

LIPPMANN

AS THE DEBATE on extending the term of service begins, we need to remember why this new American Army was first called up in the summer a year ago: if it was necessary to raise a large Army then, it is certainly impossible to begin disbanding that Army now.

For a Congress which decided now to demobilize two-thirds of the officers and men of this partially trained Army would be saying that there was no good reason a year ago for raising such an Army. The Congress which called these men into the Army would have wasted 12 months of the lives of these men and immense sums of the people's money: the country would not have an effective Army though the only conceivable justification in the first place for calling up these men was that the country needed a large Army.

THE FUNDAMENTAL question, therefore, is why—beginning 12 months ago—the United States has needed a large Army. That is the real question for the men themselves and for their families. They have already made and they are making great sacrifices. Congress ought never to have asked these sacrifices of them unless the sacrifices were necessary. The sacrifices can never be justified unless the result is to produce a good Army. To disband these troops now would be to say to the men that they were not really needed in the first place and that their time in the Army has in fact been wasted. For they would go home, themselves only partially trained, and the country would be left without an effective Army.

THE PRINCIPAL bill, namely the Selective Service Act, for raising a large army was introduced into the two houses of Congress on June 20 and 21, a year ago. The date is of the utmost importance. On June 13, the French prime minister, Paul Reynaud, had vainly made a "final desperate appeal" for help; on June 17 Marshal Petain had asked Germany for an armistice, and it was clear that not only France but the French Empire and the French fleet would give up the struggle. Thus the decision to ask Congress to raise a large American army was reached in the very days when Hitler knocked out France—and Britain was left standing alone, her army driven from Europe with the loss of its arms and the British Isles open to aerial attack and invasion, the British fleet subject to destruction and capture.

Before these events it had not been seriously suggested that the United States should raise a large army; after these events there was such an overwhelming popular demand for a large army that, despite the election campaign, Congress voted compulsory service. It was plain to the American people that with the French catastrophe the outer line of defense had broken down, that the threat to Britain was such that the next line of defense might fall, and that we, having only a one-ocean navy, must at once organize an army for the final defense of the North American continent. That is why the army was authorized and that is why the men are now in the training camps. They have been there since the summer of 1940 because in the summer of 1940 the destruction of the Allied armies on the Western Front, the capitulation of France and the dire peril of Britain, threatened to leave all the approaches to the Western Hemisphere undefended.

THE RAISING of this large Army is part of the price we have to pay for our foreign policy during the past 20 years. We disarmed. We exerted pressure on Britain and France to disarm. When France was being overrun in 1940, we not only had no arms to send to the French but, owing to the dominance of the isolationist policy, we were unable to give the French any promise of future assistance if from the French Empire they continued the war with their navy.

Had we been able to say to France in June 1940 what we have since then said to Britain, we should possibly be living in a very different world today. With the French fleet and the empire in Africa, the Battle of the Atlantic would not be in serious doubt. Italy would probably be knocked out by this time. We should not be anxious about Hitler's march through Spain and Portugal to the Atlantic islands and to Dakar. We should have had Indo-China with us instead of its falling to Japan, leaving the Philippines encircled and the southern Pacific gravely menaced.

We should not be feverishly training troops to defend our bases nor getting ready to stand guard in distant places. We are paying a most terrible price today because 12 months ago the United States Government was so paralyzed by the isolationist sentiment that it could do nothing to keep the French fleet and French Empire from surrendering to Hitler.

IT IS all very well for the isolationists to present themsleves as friends of the soldiers and their families. But the plain historical fact is that men had to be drafted, and that these men now have to be kept in service, because the isolationist policy of this country in June 1940 lost us the chance to keep in being the French navy and the French Empire and the French colonial army.

The gap in the defense of the Western Hemisphere, caused by the total loss of the French military and naval power, has had to be filled by a big American Army. Yet there are still public men at large who actually wish to compound this calamitous folly by abandoning Great Britain also and advising her to follow the course of Vichy France. Having learned nothing from a policy which has already compelled us to conscript a large Army and hold it in service, they advocate a course which would compel us to quadruple the Army and never demobilize it.

EVEN TODAY, with the British Empire fighting, we have not enough trained troops to garrison effectively our own immediate territorial possessions—Alaska, the Philippines, Hawaii, Panama, the Atlantic bases. The more we pursue the isolationist line of letting our natural allies fall, the more men we shall need in our army and the longer we shall have to hold them under the colors.

We had to raise the army because we had to let France fall. We have to keep this army because the fall of France has left the whole southern flank of the Western Hemisphere dangerously exposed. The more we let the isolationists determine our policy, the more soldiers we shall need for an endless period of time. The isolationists cannot deny it. Do they not say that we must build, but all alone, an impregnable defense of the Western Hemisphere? With what, but with American soldiers, do they imagine that the Western Hemisphere and its outposts can be made a secure base for the air force and the Navy? It is isolationism which has driven this country to raising a great army and will, if it continues, fasten permanently upon the country the burden of an immense army.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Papers Of Private Purkey

Dear Ma.—

Well I guess I am to be in the army another year at least and it serprises me how I take it in such good hummor. I wood rather be back at my old job in the gas station of coarse but I don't mind being in the army half so much like I did the first few weeks, ma. In a army you lose the sense of time anyhow and instead of asking what time it is like you wood do every few minutes back home you just ask what month it is. A year don't seem so important in a army as it does in civilyun life. I guess this is becuz in civilyun life a guy is always in a hurry to go someplace while in a army he is in no hurry whatever to go places, espeshully to them places we heard talked about so much just now.

In civilyun life every day counts on account of you always figure some big opportunity may pop up next week like getting promoted to general sales manager or meeting millionaire's daughter or winning a auto raffle or something. But in the army you know even ten or fifteen years wood make your chance no better in these respects. That is the great thing about the army, you don't expect too much and you ain't in such a hurry to get it.

It is funny I don't feel soarer over having to peel potatoes and worry over my feet for another year but I guess it is becuz me and the boys had a hunch we was not here as preliminary fighters and wood be kept for the main event. There is very little squawking among the jeeps. Even Otto Bixby, my old boss at the gas station, who is kicking the loudest, admits he was not fool enough to make any plans for 1942.

Anyhow the draft law said in black and white that we could be kept answering bugle calls at 5 a. m. in case of a emergency and if this ain't no emergency from what I read in the newspapers then the Battle of Gettysburg was just a hour of pinochle. Even if we all got released now I bet we wood be called back two soon for comfort and I wood hate to be just getting used to having a bathroom in the same house with me once more and then get a call to get fitted all over again for two wrong army shoes.

I am feeling fine witch is a big serprise to me on account I was sure six weeks of doing anything without a automobile wood make a wreck of me. I am as hard as nails and I don't mean hangnails, ma. In fact I never knew I could find outdoors so interesting. I gess I will never feel normal again unless I am out in a swamp somewhere taking orders from people with loud voices.

If I got home suddenly and heard somebody ask me to do something and say "please" I wood collapse. This will all half to come gradually. When this is all over I will not even be able to walk a block to the delicatessen store for some cold ham for dinner, ma, without carrying a piano or a load of camping equipment on my back.

Well, ma, anyhow I am phizzulophical about it all so do not worry. My outfit has got no orders to go to Iceland or north Ireland or Smolensk or Minskys yet.

Your loving son,
Oscar.

P. S.—My division got decorated by the general today. It marched past a golf coarse full of half-dressed women and old duffers in sandtraps and ignored them all.

Hitler's Plans For A Puppet Regime

Hitler's political plans for Russia's immediate future are guarded as secret as are his strategical plans.

It is highly significant that while the Nazi leaders declare that the war against Russia is the great anti-Communist crusade, they are most reluctant to disclose by what regime they are going to supersede the communism in Russia.

One fact is certain, however. Whatever might be the regime that the Nazis reserve for Russia, they intend to dismember once and forever their great eastern neighbor.

And in this dismemberment Ukraine is going to be one of the greatest shares which the Nazis intend to keep for themselves.

My previous articles recalled the German experience in Ukraine during the World War I. We have seen how, even vanquished, the Germans refused to abandon their Ukrainian plans. When the Nazis seized the power, Hitler had simply started to prepare the realization of old German plans. An information recently obtained in Washington confirms Hitler's Ukrainian projects.

The Russian war prisoners are classified by the Nazis into four different groups, which are differently treated.

The Ukrainians constitute the first group and are told that the Germans are coming not to fight them but to "free" them from the Russian and Communist yoke.

The Russians proper compose the second group.

Members of all Asiatic tribes living on Russia's territory are gathered into the third group.

And the fourth one is reserved for the Jews, who get, naturally, the worst treatment.

But while the Ukrainian war prisoners are promised to benefit by the creation of an "independent" Ukrainian state, they are not yet told by whom this state will be headed.

There is a Russian proverb which says that it is very dangerous to share a bear's skin, before the bear is killed. The Nazi reluctance to disclose their Ukrainian plans has, however, another explanation. It reveals the embarrassment of Nazi experts on Russian and Ukrainian affairs, who, according to the latest reports, prefer to wait for an opportunity to study the reactions of the Ukrainian and Russian peasants, before deciding what kind of regime they are going to impose on them.

It would be, moreover, most dangerous to establish a monarchy-like hetman regime in Ukraine, without having assured the existence of a similar regime in Russia proper.

The Nazis are consequently compelled to prepare several possible combinations of puppet regime for their conquests, without being very sure which of these combinations they are going to employ.

The official German candidate for the part of the Ukrainian Quisling is still, as we have seen it, the 67-year-old former hetman, Pavlo Skoropadski. He proved his obedience to the German orders in 1918. He lived since 1918 on a pension, served to him by the German government. He can consequently be now utilized by the Nazis. Skoropadski is, indeed, a friend and protege of Hermann Goering.

But the old amiable general is greatly handicapped by his social background. He had been one of the richest landlords in Russia. The Ukrainian peasants may interpret his return as the return of the landlords. And this may result in peasant troubles, which the Nazis would prefer to avoid.

Skoropadski's Ukrainian backers are aware of his weakness and try to increase his chances by insisting on the fact that his son, Danilo, who had been brought up in exile and in the Nazi spirit, has a "perfect" understanding of modern social problems.

These backers are, however, not numerous and with few exceptions are of a contestable character.

The only remaining ideologist of Skoropadski—after the death of D. Lipinski, his former Minister to Vienna—is Prof. Dmitri Doroshenko, who published recently in English "History of Ukraine."

And Skoropadski's "general staff" is composed—paradoxically—of former Socialists and even Communists. A former Socialist, Skoropis-Joltuchovski, who already helped the Germans in 1915 by creating for them in Berlin and Vienna the "Union for Ukraine's Liberation," is Skoropadski's "chancellor." Another Skoropadski aide is Krushinski, also a former Socialist, once military aide of Simon Petliura, the chief of the Ukrainian revolutionary army, which chased Skoropadski in 1918 from Ukraine. Prof. Kuzel, chairman of Ukrainian Scientific Institute in Berlin, is also supposed to have been once a Socialist. And there is even a former Communist, Jurii Kosach, who became pro-Nazi and joined Skoropadski.

Skoropadski hopes that these former Socialist and Communist henchmen will help him to forget his social background of a rich landlord.

It is interesting to note, however, that all this camouflage did not help Skoropadski among the American Ukrainians. Of the 32 Ukrainian publications in this country only a couple have ever supported Skoropadski. Skoropadski's main support in this country is the former "Sichova Organisacia," created in 1924 in Chicago. In 1938, on the occasion of Danilo Skoropadski's visit, it had been transformed into the "Union of Hetman's Organisations." It publishes a paper, Nash Stiag, the editor of which, Alexander Shapoval, also a former Socialist, had been once commander of the Ukrainian army which chased Skoropadski in 1918 from Ukraine.

These American supporters of Skoropadski are making a reserve on his social background and give to understand that they are backing him not because of his personal qualities but because of the fact that he symbolizes for them, by his previous record and his ancestry, the idea of an "independent" Ukraine. Many of them add, moreover: "We are ready to accept an Ukrainian state even from the devil himself. But we are not Nazis. The Organization of Ukrainian Nationalists (the Galician Fascists) has become the affiliate of the Gestapo. So we prefer Skoropadski to the O. U. N., as we do not believe that Skoropadski is definitely 100 per cent Nazi."

Unfortunately for Skoropadski, Berlin also does not believe that he is 100 per cent pro-Nazi. And that is why Alfred Rosenberg, Hitler's greatest expert on Russian and Ukrainian problems, prefers the O. U. N. and its leader, Andrey Melnik, to Skoropadski.

Andrey Melnik and his terrorist organization, who have cooperated with the Gestapo for years, have proved their Nazi ideology. But Andrey Melnik is from eastern Galicia, and the Russian Ukrainians, who constitute the majority—32 millions, while the Galician Ukrainians do not exceed 4 or 5 millions—would hardly accept a Galician Ukrainian as their leader.

And this gives a great chance to Alexander Sevriuk, another pro-Nazi Ukrainian who is little known abroad, but who is today more influential in Berlin than Skoropadski or Melnik.

The 49-year-old Alexander Sevriuk, who was born in Luck, Russian Ukraine, had a rather unusual career. At 13 he took part in the abortive Russian revolution of 1905. As a college student he joined the Ukrainian Socialist Party. In March, 1918, at 26, Sevriuk signed, with two other Ukrainian Socialists, the Brest-Litovsk Peace Treaty. Later he refused to recognize the Skoropadski regime and in the fall of 1918 fought in Petliura's Ukrainian revolutionary army. He fled abroad with Petliura, lived in exile, thought at one time of returning to Soviet Russia, but failed to find a base for cooperation with the Ukrainian Communists. He came to France, married a French-Swiss woman, with whose money he published Ukrainian bulletins and when the Nazis came to power surprised all his friends by moving to Berlin, where he joined the pro-Nazi Ukrainian circles.

There he met Alfred Rosenberg, became his adviser on Ukrainian problems and is now probably the most influential Ukrainian in Berlin.

Since he is very ambitious, it is not out of question that if he can prove to Rosenberg the impossibility of reconciling Skoropadski with Melnik, he might become the best candidate for a Quisling's job in the Ukraine.

The Nazis, who are eager to bring together all their Ukrainian sympathizers and supporters, would prefer, however, to impose a government in which the decorative Skoropadski would get the honorary hetmanship, the Fascist Andrey Melnik would be his prime minister and the intriguing and shrewd Alexander Sevriuk would obtain the foreign office of the Ukrainian puppet state.

But any Ukrainian combination with Skoropadski would presume an establishment of a similar monarchy-like puppet regime for Russia proper.

Extending The Draft Term

PEGLER

IT LOOKS AS if nothing would be sacred, nor any reputation safe, by the time the present emergency is pushed away on the library shelves to provide material for a new generation of debunkers. Up to this time in the United States only a few grubby scholars have had the impudence to suggest that the embattled farmers of the Revolution and the heroes who saved the Union in the '60's were not unanimously and constantly loyal and brave. These low characters were silently rebuked by public opinion and their scandalous pot-boilers vanished somewhere, probably onto the two-bit trays of the second-hand bookstores, although our professional soldiers were allowed occasional peeks at the facts when they had arrived at an age when they could know the truth and still retain their faith.

Certainly young Americans were not taught in school that Gen. Washington's soldiers had a discouraging tendency to roll up their issue blankets and go over the hill when their time was up regardless of the military situation of the moment. And the Memorial Day parades of the G. A. R. were not marred by any thought, much less by audible suggestion, that among the thinning blue ranks there might be some drawing pensions under the acts who had checked out promptly in the face of the enemy because their enlistments had expired.

THE DISCUSSION of the need to extend the term of the present emergency forces beyond the year agreed upon has compelled advocates of the President's stand to bring down out of the clutter in the national garret humiliating information which it had been hoping to conceal or deny forever. In order to prove that armies which sign on for brief, stated terms of service in times of military emergency are unreliable, it has been the painful duty of loyal patriots of today to damage beyond repair one of the most beautiful traditions of the Nation.

The Daughters of the American Revolution could endure the resignation of Mrs. Roosevelt delivered as a political rebuke, but the gruesome possibility that some of the patriotic sisters may be in the club on the basis of service by ancestors who took it on the lam before the Red Coats is something really serious. Can it be that a lady who has never tired of repeating that her noble forbear fought with the father of his country must now be compelled to admit, under pressure of facts from the archives, that the old gentleman only went for a brief outing with the general and scrammed at the moment when the struggling Republic needed him most?

IN THIS column business, one receives many letters from individuals who are proud not only of their own Americanism, but grant themselves a little dividend, an advantage over the sons and daughters of the Johnny-come-latelies, by reason of the fact that their ancestors answered the call to arms in various wars back to Bunker Hill.

Any man takes a little risk in boasting of what his ancestors did, for all of us have had many ancestors and if there be one who helped to win a war there is almost certain to be another somewhere who was convicted to stealing a pig. Ancestors average up. If we are entitled to pride in the achievements of some, it would seem to follow that we must assume a due proportion of the shame for the misdeeds of others.

It is nice to be able to trace back one's ancestry through a long line of native Americans, although the number of those who claim to be able to do so seems remarkably high, when it is remembered that a famous Frenchman wrote about 50 years ago that the average American didn't know who his grandfather was and was likely to boast if he did. This aspersion was neatly returned by Mr. Mark Twain, who admitted the truth of the statement, but said that the average Frenchman was tickled to death to know who his father was.

APPARENTLY the fact must now be admitted that many D. A. R.'s and others who take pride in the fact that someone in the family line served with Washington or Grant are able so to boast only because realities, which were notorious and painful then, were quickly and kindly forgotten. Many of the warriors went home while there was fighting yet to do and without being hurt and some without ever having fired a shot in anger or hearing one fired. And this fact had to be dragged out in the interests of patriotism and national safety long after the heroes had been laid away in honored graves.

Probably it will not be necessary to go into minute detail and show who the individuals were who resigned from the great wars of the Republic when their time was up. That would be a needless cruelty to many living Americans.

Army Pilot Badly Hurt In Crash Near Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., July 23 (AP).—Second Lieut. John D. Mainwaring, Army Air Corps cadet, was critically injured this afternoon when his single-seater fighter plane crashed into woods near East Field, Norfolk Naval Air Station.

His plane was said to have gone out of control at a height of 600 feet.

Lieut. Mainwaring is stationed at Mitchel Field, N. Y., and is a resident of Pennsylvania. He was taken to the Norfolk Naval Hospital, Portsmouth.

4 Defy FCC as Hearing Opens On Press Owning Radio Stations

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday started an investigation to determine what policy, if any, it should adopt with respect to newspapers acquiring radio stations. The first day's hearing, held in the auditorium of the Archives Building, was marked by angry language and a torrent of statistics.

Elisha Hanson, general counsel of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, announced that he had advised four subpenaed newspapermen not to appear before the commission.

He made the announcement after the commission, in a formal decision, had denied his earlier petition that it had no authorty to conduct the hearing, and after Chairman James L. Fly had refused to allow him to press his challenge further at this time.

Hanson said that the four men he had advised to ignore the commission's subpenas were Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the New York Sun; Lieut. Comdr. James G. Stahlman, of the Nashville Banner, former publisher of the A. N. P. A. and now serving with the Navy; Arthur Robb, editor of Editor and Publisher, and William A. Thomas, director of the bureau of advertising of the Publishers Association of New York.

Investigator Testifies

The commission did not indicate whether it would take steps to compel the men to appear.

On the witness stand for the better part of the day was Allen W. Saylor, supervising investigator of the commission, who reported that there were 298 radio stations in the United States affiliated with newspapers.

He submitted a table which showed that newspapers take in more than twice as much in advertising revenue as the radio, although the radio has made spectacular gains in the last ten years or so.

The advertising totals for different media in 1940, according to the table, were: Newspapers, 845 million dollars; magazines, 160 million dollars; radio, 200 million dollars; outdoor, 50 million dollars, and farm papers, 15 million dollars.

Elmo Roper, research director for Fortune Magazine, told of public opinion polls taken by his staff which indicated a sensational advance of the radio as a source of news since the time of Munich.

Roper told Commissioner Craven that he did not mean to infer that while radio had gone ahead as a source of news, newspapers had retrogressed.

"I would expect to find both newspapers and radio up as a source of news," he said.

Hanson Angry

At the outset of the hearing, when Attorney Hanson was trying to challenge the authority of the commission to hold the investigation, Chairman Fly said: "Please don't interrupt us further. We are going to proceed with the hearing. You may file your objections at any time."

"Then I'll file them right now," said Hanson angrily, and he handed a brief to the commission secretary.

"Your powers," said Hanson in his brief, "do not embrace authority to adopt any policy or rules the purpose of which is to prohibit persons engaged in the newspaper publishing business from operating radio stations. Being without power to adopt any such policies or rules, you are without power to conduct an inquiry for the purpose of determining whether or not you should adopt such a policy or rules."

The commission, in its decision ruling against Hanson's earlier challenge to its authority, said:

"It seems inconceivable to us that an argument could be seriously advanced against the inherent power of any administrative agency, endowed by statute with power to hold hearings, issue subpenas, etc., to conduct general hearings of the type involved here."

"Informative" Hearing

At the outset, Chairman Fly said that the purpose of the hearings was not to take any action but to inform the commission.

"They may lead us to conclude," he said, "that no policies whatever are necessary. We may decide that legislation is necessary. The commission believes that any discussion of its jurisdiction at this time is premature. . . . The commission is determined to be informed on this question."

Judge D. D. Thacher, attorney for the Newspaper-Radio Committee, a group of more than 100 with both newspaper and radio connections, challenged the authority of the commission to make a distinction based on the personality of the applicant for a license. Chairman Fly denied his request for time to make an argument, pointing out that the questions he raised were not at issue.

Tokyo-Sought Camranh Base Dominates Area

Camranh Bay, on which is located the French Indo-China base which has been suggested as a possible objective of Japanese action, holds a commanding central position in the China Sea, points out a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"By its door passes the traffic stream of one of the most traveled of Asiatic sea routes, while within airplane reach are three of the world's most strategic military and naval bases," the bulletin states.

"Situated on the southeast coast of the broad, sweeping curve of French Indo-China, the Camranh base is roughly halfway between the British stations of Hongkong and Singapore. The former base, on the south China coast, is about 800 miles northeast of the French position; the latter, set at the tip of the Malay States, lies some 850 miles to the southwest. Across the central expanse of the China Sea is located the powerful American base of Cavite, which guards the approach to Manila Bay.

"Camranh base is only about five years old. Begun around 1936, it was scheduled to become one of the leading naval outposts of the French Empire. In addition to its naval facilities, an air field was established as part of the general Indo-China defenses which French colonial authorities were strengthening before the outbreak of the present European war. Among other measures to make her rich but remote possession less dependent on overseas assistance, the French had started operations for the local production of airplanes.

"In any military action in this part of the world, the Camranh base occupies not only a strategic position but one especially favored by nature. The bay is rated as one of the best harbors on the Indo-China coast, providing secure anchorage at all times. It has two harbors, a sheltered inner one, reached by a narrow channel, and an outer one, whose entrances are guarded by two mountainous islands. Both harbors are rimmed by mountains which might offer excellent defense positions in case of attack.

"From the scenic point of view of normal times, the French regarded their possession with considerable pride, calling it the most beautiful naval base of the entire colonial empire.

"It was in the waters of Camranh Bay, in June, 1939, that the French submarine Phenix was sunk, in a practice dive that resulted in a loss of 61 lives."

Aluminum Drive Brings 250,000 Pounds First Day

Mr. and Mrs. Washington and Miss District of Columbia stepped into the kitchen pantry yesterday—and the basement, the garage, and the tool shed—and came up with 250,000 pounds of aluminum for Uncle Sam.

Throughout the first day of the drive to salvage the metal for fighting equipment, collection trucks circulated throughout the city, and small mountains of aluminum sprang up at 13 police stations, 2 fire stations and at Post Square, on Pennsylvania Avenue between Fourteenth and Thirteen and a Half Streets.

The mass of aluminum that soon will be transformed into material for Army and Navy bombers and pursuit ships accumulated with a speed that "will make Hitler sick," as Past Capt. James Pistorio, of the American Legion Honor Guard, said in reporting a mountainous collection in the bin at Post Square.

Aluminum of virtually every description clattered into the 235 collecting trucks of the City Refuse Department and piled up on the heaps at the precincts and Post Square.

Tenth Precinct is an example. There the trucks dumped out articles, including vacuum cleaners, pots and pans, an artificial leg, dentists' instruments, the top of a washing machine, miscellaneous automobile parts, and a pair of tweezers.

James E. Keith, driver of a truck that canvassed from house to house in the Tenth Precinct, typified the day when he reported, "Everybody gives something . . . no one turned us down."

He spoke of such citizens as Mrs. Bertha Hill, resident manager, at Argyle Apartments, 3220 Seventeenth Street Northwest, who, since Tuesday night, had supervised collection of aluminum from her tenants. She spoke scathingly of unknown individuals who marred the apartment house's contribution to defense. In the night they stole more than half of the aluminum that was piled up in the lobby.

She telephoned immediately for a collection truck when additional aluminum was forthcoming from another tenant.

Reported as the day's largest contribution was that of Frank Mirth, a health lecturer of 2000 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, who turned over to the defense council 1,000 pounds of aluminum he had been accumulating for a year in his garage.

The drive was equally successful in its first day throughout the country, officials of Director F. H. LaGuardia's office told the Associated Press in New York. They said the campaign probably would far exceed its goal of 20,000,000 pounds and reach as much as 40,000,000 pounds.

Persons with small aluminum contributions are asked to take them today to the nearest police station. Those with considerable quantities, such as apartment houses, can get pickup service by telephoning NOrth 2140 or NAtional 6000 and asking for the Northwest street cleaning garage.

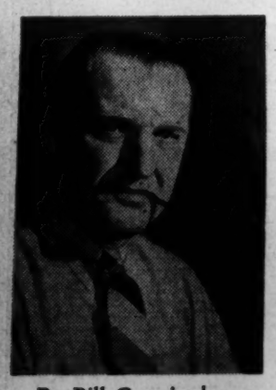
Bill Cunningham's Column:

Famed Spring Bubbles as Lefty Linksmen Drive



By Bill Cunningham

Poland Spring, Me., July 20.—The sidewinders and squaws—meaning the left-handed golfers of these New England plantations and their ladies' auxiliary (aw, shut up)—to the number of more than 12 successfully surv[illegible] annual [illegible] mp meeting up here at Brother Charley Ricker's old home place. Everybody ended on his or her feet, and, up to a late hour at least, there were no bodies that had to be shipped.

Your correspondent toured, not the course—the game's too easy—but the entire 5,000 acres of this world - famous property, with especial attention to that little hole in the ground down under the lip of the hill wherein the cold, clear water of a common-looking New England spring has bubbled 100 million dollars' worth of business in the last 100 years, and is still running as full as it ever did.

It was practically awesome to realize how much history our Larrupin' Lefties were hacking around on these premises. Every time one lifted a divot the size of a bird's nest, he was practically scalping a legend.

The clear, tasteless water from this pleasant Maine hillside, in normal times, girdles the earth. Even now it's shipped to Cairo and into the interior of China.

This entire place began as an ordinary New England farm, and the now world-famous spring was just a plain country water hole down on a lower corner of it. There seems to be plenty of evidence that the Indians regarded it as something unusual for their arrow-heads and relics abound in the vicinity. But they'd moved on and it had lost any especial significance, when the first settler built his cabin in the vicinity in 1779.

Four years later, a preacher from Lebanon, N. Y., came through this general wilderness expounding the Shaker doctrines of Ann Lee, and so profound was his evangelism that every family in the hereabouts, but one, was converted. They formed a Shaker colony, and this current Poland Spring property was exactly where it was located.

Long before this, however, two Ricker brothers, George and Maturin, came across from the Isle of Jersey around the year 1650 to settle near what is now Dover, N. H. Both were murdered by Indians in their mature years and on the same day but both left sons, and eventually, Jabez Ricker, a farmer of Alfred, Me., traded his farm property there with the Shakers for part of their farm here in Poland.

The spring chanced to be on the land included in the swap and both knew it but neither cared. It was Wentworth Ricker, son of Jabez, who started to build a big farm home where the so-called Mansion House now stands on the property. In fact, the home Wentworth built is now the northwest corner of the so-called Mansion House. This was in 1794. The place was completed in 1796.

First Interest Was Curative

First interest in the spring water started around 1800, and, strangely enough, that first interest was curative. It first began when Joseph Ricker, blacksmithing brother of Wentworth who had forged the iron nails with which the original section of the Mansion House was anchored together, lay sick of a fever and the doctor had given him up. He was crying for water.

"Go down to the spring and get a jug," the primitive medico told those watching him, quietly, "and let him have all he wants. It won't make any difference; he'll be dead by morning anyhow."

But Joseph wasn't dead; he was better. In fact, he lived on for 52 years. He said it was the water and the doctor couldn't say it wasn't. Then it was noticed, or so they claimed, that men working in that part of the fields and drinking much from the spring were gradually better of sundry kidney complaints, one of the general afflictions of the still pioneer times. It is even recorded that an emaciated ox placed in there to graze and drink became solid of flesh and restored of power.

At any rate, Hirman Ricker, son of Wentworth, at just about the time of the Civil War decided to exploit the spring as a great medicinal discovery and he interested a famed kidney specialist of the era in Portland, Dr. Eliphalet Clark, who became a profound believer in its therapeutic values.

The Poland Spring property, both the bottled water business and the hotels became one of the most famous on earth through the 80's and 90's and on into the present century.

And about the spring, again. It's as mysterious today, so far as its origin and operation goes, as it was to those old-timers who ascribed to it extraordinary curative powers. None of the Rickers has ever known where the vein is, how it runs, or what makes the spring flow. The best that hired geologists and experts of various sorts have ever been able to guess is that it comes from a great depth, because the flow has never varied, summer or winter, nor has the temprature ever been below 40 or over 45 degrees. But that's all. They don't even know the direction from which it flows onto the property and they're afraid to probe to find out.

To protect it in every possible way, the Rickers, through the years, have acquired 5,000 surrounding acres.

That's the sort of story our lefties were whacking over and around. If the boys had realized the full significance of it, they'd probably have tightened up like wet buckskin on more of those 10-cent putts. Some of those buzzards hack a hole deep enough to ruin anything, including, and principally, thier score.

The Post Fashion Editor

THE MODERN young girl who dons shorts and a shirt in which to go biking would have been ostracized from society had she appeared so "unclad" in the '90's. In the early days of the Mauve Decade when this dangerous sport was first introduced, dressmakers and newly launched fashion magazines were advising simplicity of cut, fabric and decoration in women's clothes for bicycling. One authority on these early sports fashions gives this prescription for bicycling costumes: "The bicycle requires a short skirt, full bloomers, trim shirt waists and a masculine tie."

Miss Jean Gibbons, an ardent enthusiast of Hains Point biking, gives the 1941 streamlined version of this antiquated costume by prescribing a two-piece shorts and sweatshirt outfit.

Skirts Dangerous

In discussing the virtues of shorts in preference to a skirt or short dress, Miss Gibbons said, "Skirts are not only dangerous, but they are also likely to cause much embarrassment. They flare up and easily get caught in the wheel. I only tried a skirt once," she added. "I couldn't keep it under control and finally had to sit on it."

Miss Gibbons believes that the most important thing to watch in biking outfits is that they keep clear of the spokes. For this reason, she does not think culottes are very practical, although she does like them. Her first love is shorts and shirt outfit, especially the type with the longer type English or little boy shorts.

Another type of outfit which Miss Gibbons thinks convenient en route to the biking area, is the one-piece short and shirt with an extra overskirt. "I usually throw the skirt over the handle bars when I get to the Point," she said. White sharkskin or striped cotton shorts with a plain top are the fabrics she likes best.

Low Heels Needed

As a special warning, Miss Gibbons said, "Never wear high heeled shoes. They are most uncomfortable. The moccasin type play shoes are fine because you do not have to wear anklets, unless you want to." She further warned, "Never wear stockings. You will be sure to rip and snag them." Two other admonitions were: Wear a bandanna or bow to keep the hair in place; and especially when near water, wear dark glasses.

Outfits such as Miss Gibbons recommends for biking are available in Washington stores. There are two-piece outfits of shorts and skirt, pleated shorts and "little boy" shorts. The pleated shorts come in pastels and navy sharkskin. There is a deep kick pleat in front and back of them. The little boy shorts are made of a spun rayon and cotton fabric that is rough in texture and they come in red and navy. They reach to a few inches above the knee and have a small cuff. Both types hang neatly and do not flare up.

Right for Bike

On a bicycle built for one, the smart cyclist chooses shorts and a shirt for "free-wheeling." Shorts are especially preferred in the longer length, such as the ones Movie Actress Jean Rogers wears above. The shirt may be of plaid gingham or of the sweatshirt variety that many bikers like. If it is the boy friend's bike you are riding, shorts also come in handy for straddling the bar

Broader Toed Shoes Advised For Summer by 'Foot Society'

By Ida Jean Kain

FOR ONE REASON or another the fashion of open-toed sandals or the less pleasant tendency for feet to swell and ache—we are more foot conscious in Summer than other season. It is easy to believe the statistics that seven out of every ten have trouble with their feet and that the remaining three will have, unless they watch out.

There is so much current interest in feet that an "American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Feet" has been formed in Brooklyn, N. Y., and the founders stoutly insist that they have as much crusading to do as any other cruelty prevention organization.

One of the main causes of foot trouble, they tell me, is failure to have shoes fitted properly. Here is a sample test by which you can determine whether your shoes are long enough. Take the shoe and fit the outside sole—bottom up—to the sole of your foot. The joint of your big toe should coincide with the widest part of the shoe. Both segments act as hinges and when they function together, the foot society people say, you can even get rid of callouses.

Trust Your Sensitivity

You will have to trust your own sensitivity to tell whether or not your shoes are wide enough. If your foot feels the least bit crowded, you probably need a wider size.

In summer, it is suggested that you wear shoes with a wider last and a broader toe than usual to allow for additional foot room. If you are buying shoes now, take a tip from the society and buy them at the end of a day's work or shopping. At such a time your feet will be larger and more sensitive and you can be more certain of correct fitting.

After you have gone to the trouble of having shoes fitted properly, take care of them. Don't go around in run-over heels, or you will throw all the 26 bones of your feet out of alignment. You will also throw yourself off balance an develope backache and headache.

Having gone to such pains about your shoes, don't spoil everything by wearing stockings that are too small. Many a woman who orders a size eight should ask for an eight and one-half. The best rule here is to have your stocking half an inch longer than your foot. That gives you toe room.

Contrast Baths Help

If what you want is foot aid, take contrast baths, first hot, then cold. Scrub your feet vigorously to bring up the circulation and dry them thoroughly. Then use one of the powder perspiration checkers or give them an alcohol rub as the final touch. You might also like to sprinkle the inside of your shoes with foot powder on the very hot days.

A little foot exercise is an ecellent thing. When you are brushing your teeth of a morning, make a habit of standing pigeon-toed on the outer borders of your feet, toes curled under. And keep your feet flexible by wearing flat-heeled shoes around the house.

New Finishes Beautify Even Coarse Woods

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

THE FINISHING of wood has from earliest times inspired loving craftsmanship. Paint of some sort has been known almost as long as we have a record of man's activities, and stains, waxes and varnishes have long been used for treating wood grains.

Curiously enough, there has been rather little change in the treatment of wood surfaces since man first developed certain standard surfaces. These have been improved and perfected, especially within the last decade or so, almost beyond recognition, but the ideas were essentially the same.

Designers Tackle Problem

Now, however, modern designers have turned their attention to finishes as well as to function and style and their efforts, in collaboration with those of the chemists, have resulted in some provocative innovations. A French specialits in the field, Georges Frank, lectured recently about several new methods he had worked out, ullustrating his talk with samples of wood finished in various ways.

The most arresting were the pastel tinted woods with the wood itself dyed with analine dyes, like fabrics. He also had pieces of wood which he had given a two-tone finish, using one color in the grain of the wood and another for the surface finish. Engraved wood textures were presented also, these achieved by an acid process.

This expert made a point of the most common difference in French treatment of wood and ours. In France, the finishing of wood is largely a hand process with legibility of the weed grain as the end in view, the finish developed chiefly to enhance it. Here the tendency has been a factory process aimed to cover up the wood itself with dark stains and heavy varnishes—a technique we learned first from the French by the way.

Seeks Happy Medium

Frank believes that in the finishing of fine woods a happy medium between these two extremes is the best solution . . . keeping the inegrity of the wood as the French do but achieving this by our factory methods.

His special processes are aimed at treating cheap coarse woods, suggesting ways of making them more interesting and usable . . .

Sisters, Aged 20 and 22, Feel They Should Leave Father's Home, Because of Stepmother's Jealousy; Family Friend Asks How to Advise Them

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Two sisters, one of whom is 20 and the other 22 years of age, live with their father and stepmother. Because of the stepmother's jealousy, the home situation is such that the girls feel they should move to themselves. Their combined incomes average $170 a month and their jobs are secure. Also, they get along very well together.

I personally believe such a move would make for the happiness of all concerned, and since they have asked my advice, I am turning to you for suggestions. They would like to be within walking distance of downtown. Can they go to the Y. W. C. A. or some similar place, where they would feel sheltered? As a long-time friend of their mother's, I would want them under the safest auspices. FAMILY FRIEND.

DEAR F. F.: The local Y. W. C. A. maintains housing accommodations for 130 permanent guests, in the Strong Residence, located at 1011 Seventeenth Street Northwest. But with additional thousands of girl Government workers arriving in Washington every month—many of whom turn first to the "Y" for living quarters—the current demand on the permanent residence facilities far outstrips its capacity to provide.

However, the "Y" has additional accomodations for 60 transient guests, who have the privilege of remaining for two weeks—on advance reservation—while looking about for a permanent abode. Also, the "Y" has a room registry service—operated in the administration building, at Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest—which provides girls in search of "safe hospitality" with a list of approved available rooms-for-rent in private homes.

The Committee of Rooms Registry, a committee of women volunteers, inspects all rooms in private homes that have been proposed to the "Y" as desirable for girls (like these two) who wish to live "under the safest auspices" away from their families. And Miss Irene Dixon, director of the "Y's" permanent residential program, is in her office every Wednesday evening, from 7:45 to 9:30 o'clock, to confer with young women who want reputable, disinterested guidance in "settling" themselves in a wholesome environment. With the aid of the Rooms Registry Service, it is possible Miss Dixon could place your two young friends in that "sheltered" atmosphere they have in mind.

However, it is not unheard of, today, for girls of 20 and 22, who have "secure jobs," and who are accustomed to being self-supporting, to live away from home, without the equivalent of parental chaperonage, and to do so with credit to themselves and their families. Thus, these girls shouldn't feel bound to seek a "sheltered" atmosphere, as proof of their good intent, supposing it is absolutely necessary to their peace of mind to live apart from their stepmother. If they have a creative interest in (and aptitude for) homemaking, they might be as comfortable and, with the exercise of good judgment, as safe living in an apartment building or in "light housekeeping" rooms as they woud be as "paying guests" in a so-called "private home."

I would like to remind them, however, to think well before leaving their father's home—perhaps in a spirit of stiffnecked rebellious resentment of their stepmother's presence there—and trying to live on $170 a month. Accustomed, as they have been, to operating on a rent-free basis, they probably would find it uphill going (at least at first) to feed, shelter and clothe themselves and partake of some social life, on their modest earnings, which they have doubtless oeen accustomed to drawing upon more as a "personal allowance" than as a means of support.

In acting hastily about leaving home, they might find themselves "out of the frying pan and into the fire"—completely cut off from and longing to get back to the familiar, comfortable security of their father's house, which they had never fully appreciated while it was at their disposal.

Three Exercises To Slim Ankles

Hollywood, Calif.—Bob Vreeland, who directs the dance numbers at Warner Bros., recommends three exercises for slimming the ankles. They use practically the same movement employed in ballet and tap dancing.

The exercises should stand with heels together and toes turned out as far as possible, then rise up and down until the muscles become tired.

Ankle-bending is akin to the tap routine. The exerciser sits in a straight-back chair with her legs straight out, rotates her feet round and round, then up and down.

Bob's third exercise slims the hips as well. Our lady fair lies on her back and stretches her toes toward the floor.

Society Here Welcomes 2 Outstanding Women

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Helen Gahagan, Of Stage and Screen, Arrive for Civilian Participation Committee Session

By Patricia Grady

Two fascinating ladies—both schooled in things political— arrived in Washington yesterday for a few days' visit. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman—"Daisy" to friends and acquaintances alike—came down from New York to stay with Mrs. Robert Low Bacon and Mrs. Melvyn Douglas, Helen Gahagan, of stage and screen fame, flew in from Hollywood for a short sojourn with Miss Minnie Mae Fleming at her Shoreham apartment.

MRS. J. B. HARRIMAN

Both Mrs. Harriman and Mrs. Douglas are here to attend the meeting, arranged by the White House, of the Civilian Participation Committee, which will act as an advisory and planning body in the organization of the Office of Civilian Defense. Mrs. Harriman will return to New York today after the meeting. She is staying at Miss Mary Canfield's apartment overlooking the East River.

The news that Mrs. Harriman brings with her is that she is planning to move into her Foxall Road home, Uplands, early in September. She promises that her Sunday suppers will start again in the fall. So famous was her salon in the past, so stimulating and important were the participants, that the groups became known as the "teacup chancellery."

Still handsome in her seventies, the tall, white-haired former Minister to Norway is never happy unless she is doing something. While in New York she has been working hard on the Committee to Defend America and even a fractured ankle, which she suffered last week, hasn't prevented her from spending every day at her desk.

But even "Daisy" Harriman couldn't face a Washington social winter without a little rest, so she is planning to spend August with some of her family at Martha's Vineyard. Four generations of feminine Harrimans will be at the summer resort. "Daisy" herself; daughter, Mrs. Harriman Russell; granddaughter, Mrs. John Lewis, and great-granddaughter, "Daisy" 2d.

Mrs. Harriman is one of those who has a personal stake in the European upheaval, not only as a former diplomat and as a public-minded citizen, but also as a housewife. Her furniture, which had been ready for shipment back to the United States when she returned, was picked up off the docks and interned in Norway "for the duration." But if Uplands were furnished in orange boxes and saw horses, the great and near-great would still flock there, for there is only one "Daisy" Harriman.

HELEN GAHAGEN

Mrs. Douglas, whose dramatic brunette beauty hints of her many successful years behind the footlights, has recently focussed her talent on a political stage. From an interest in alleviating the conditions under which the Pacific Coast migratory workers labored, her activities became intensified and augmented until she was taking a very real part in the national political picture. "Through the ballot comes the benefit," says Mrs. Douglas, and she is practicing what she preaches as Democratic National Committeewoman from California.

Though she plays a part in Hollywood social life as the wife of the handsome and versatile screen actor, Mrs. Douglas somehow manages to find time to be a devoted mother to two small children, an excellent speaker, an able organizer of women's groups, and a leader in the effort to unify public opinion behind national defense. In her touring of the West and trips to the East, Mrs. Douglas finds that the civilian population is 90 per cent behind our foreign policy and is just waiting to be told what to do. The other 10 per cent, she says, is unfortunately the vociferous group and the group by which we are judged in other parts of the world. And the stars of Hollywood, she is convinced, are bearing a heavier load per capita in the defense effort than any other professional group in the country.

Mrs. Douglas will be entertained at a luncheon at the Shoreham tomorrow, given in her honor and that of Mrs. Thomas McAllister by Miss Fleming and Mrs. May Thompson Evans. Mrs. Douglas and Miss Fleming were classmates at Barnard College.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot has returned to Washington for a few days from her home, Gray Towers, in Pennsylvania. She is also a member of the Civilian Participation Committee.

Miss Schlitzkus Names Attendants

Miss Ruth Schlitzkus, who will be married to Peter Tyler Harkess on Thursday, July 31, has selected her attendants for the ceremony. Miss Maybelle Blaeuer is to be her maid of honor, and her sisters, Mrs. Leon Adkison, of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Marvin Fertsch, of Austin, Tex., will be bridesmaids.

Private William Harkess, of Fort Meade, Md., will serve as best man for his brother and the ushers are Steve Childrey, Ralph Patterson, A. Hunter Pritchard, Robert L. Sammons, John Gordon Mein and Dr. John A. Swartout.

Several parties have been given in honor of the couple, whose wedding will take place at Calvary Baptist Church. Miss Marguerite Marlowe, Miss Christine Fassett and Miss Alice Johnston have each entertained at showers

Frances Clark Has Guest From Pittsburgh

Miss Frances Annette Clark has as her guest Miss Katharine Kountz, of Pittsburgh, who was graduated last month from Smith College.

Miss Clark and her brother, Lieut. Robert E. Clark, U. S. A., accompanied by Miss Kountz, will go to Rehoboth Beach for the weekend.

Miss Clark to Wed D. E. Patterson

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hamlet Clark announce the engagement of their daughter, Roberta Mary, to Douglass Edward Patterson, of Florida and Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Montgomery Patterson, of Mineola, Fla.

Miss Clark is with the Treasury Department and Mr. Patterson is chief supply clerk and staff sergeant with the 121st Observation Squadron, District of Columbia National Guard.

The wedding will take place July 30 at 8 p. m., at the National Memorial Baptist Church.

Wilmerdings Return From Connecticut

Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding have returned from Black Point, Conn., where they spent the weekend.

On Saturday Mrs. Wilmerding will go up to her family's home in Far Hills, N. J., where her children are spending the summer. During the summer she is more or less commuting, spending the week in Washington and going to Far Hills over Saturday and Sunday to see the children.

MISS JUNE AINSLIE COE

Miss June Coe Engaged to Wed

Arthur Paul Coe announces the engagement of his niece, Miss June Ainslie Coe, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Coe, jr., to Lieut. John Stephen Ramsburgh, U. S. N. R., son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Ramsburgh, of this city.

Miss Coe attended the Drew Seminary at Carmel, N. Y., and the National Cathedral School for Girls. Her father, the late Henry C. Coe, jr., was the son of Col. Henry C. Coe, a prominent surgeon of New York City. During the World War Col. Coe was in charge of the mobile hospital units in France.

Miss Coe is a granddaughter of the late Mrs. Sara Werden Coe, noted authoress and lecturer. She is a descendant of Priscilla Alden.

Lieut. Ramsburgh attended George Washington University, where he was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. In October of last year he was called into the naval service after having been associated with the Riggs National Bank for a number of years. He is now on active duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics, Navy Department.

Lieut. Ramsburgh is the brother of Mrs. Lawrence L. Gourley, of this city. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Sons of the Revolution and the Army-Navy Country Club.

The wedding will take place in St. Alban's Episcopal Church on September 16 with the Rev. Charles T. Warner officiating.

Gen. Scanlon To Stay in D. C.

Reversing the usual order in blitzed countries, Gen. Martin Scanlon, who is in this country, left his wife behind in London. But now orders have been changed and he is to remain here. Gen. Scanlon, one-time commandant of Bolling Field, has been our military attache for air in London for several years. He was there before the war and was slated to return here in 1939. But the authorities decided to leave him in London when war broke out rather than send a new man over.

Mrs. Scanlon, it seems, prefers the bombs of London to the heat of Washington!

Two Entertain At Dinner Party

Mrs. Helen Hicks Baker and Miss Frances Kearby entertained at a dinner last night at the Olney Inn.

Among the guests were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Royal E. Ingersoll, Senator Raymond E. Willis, of Indiana; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Ingersoll, jr., Miss Alice Ingersoll, Miss Marie Mount, Charles Carr, Everett Watkins, Miss Martha Ellyn Slayback, Mrs. William Lesh and Charles Rhetts.

Mrs. Vandenberg Goes to California For Week's Visit

Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, who has been at her home in Grand Rapids, Mich., since early summer, has gone to San Francisco for a stay with Mr. and Mrs. Merle Thorpe, of Washington. She joined them in Chicago and the party went West together.

After a week in California Mrs. Vandenberg will go to the Vi-Ral Ranch, on the Pecos, near Santa Fe, N. Mex. There she hopes to rest. Mrs. John LaGorce, of Washington, will join her at the ranch, which belongs to Ralph Innis. Mr. Innis is a great friend of Robert Mehonay, who recently came here to work at the OPM and is living at the Wardman Park.

Miss Arla Yochum Will Be Hostess

Miss Arla Yochum will be hostess at a supper party next Wednesday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Yochum, for her bridal party. She will be married on Saturday, August 2, to John J. Grolig 3d. The ceremony will take place at 2 o'clock in All Saints Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Henry Teller Cocke officiating.

Miss Marye Moyer will serve as maid of honor. Last week Miss Moyer and one of the bridesmaids, Miss Evelyn Webber, were hosts at a shower in honor of the bride-elect. Another party in honor of the couple given last week was a supper fete at which Mrs. John de Wolf Northrup was hostess.

The remaining attendants include Miss Peggy McNamara, Miss Marion Davis and Miss Gloria Chance. William Greenig will serve as best man for his brother and ushers will be Marion Hale, Earl Hurdle, James Connelly and David Campbell.

Group Feted At Hatch Home

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hatch, who have been giving informal swimming parties at their home near Falls Church, Va., were delighted when a friend offered to present them a raft for their small lake. However, when it arrived it was so big that the problem now is to get enough water to surround it!

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Hatch were hosts to a group of neighbors for swimming and cocktails. Among those present were Mrs. Frederick Richardson, the Misses Randolph and Phyllis Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pozer and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Perry.

Mr. and Mrs. Hatch will be off today for Newport. After a visit there they will go to Canada for a stay.

Mr., Mrs. Childs Back After Weekend At Shelter Island

Stephen L. Childs, the Counselor of the British Embassy, has returned to Washington with Mrs. Childs after a weekend at the New Prospect Hotel, Shelter Island, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Childs had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Niel Morgan. They had come to Shelter Island from Next Day Mill Englewood, N. J., the home of Mrs. Morgan's mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Childs plan several more weekends at the island resort, for their son, Ivan, is spending his summer holidays there.

To Wed in Fall

Mr. and Mrs. W. Harold Grable, of University Park, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty Jane, to Richard H. Bragg, son of Mrs. Elsie M. Bragg, of University Park. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Mrs. Peck has come to Washington recently from Shanghai, where Col. Peck was commandant of the Fourth Regiment of the Marine Corps. For the past two weeks, Col. and Mrs. Peck have been the house guests of Gen. and Mrs. Holcomb. They have taken an apartment temporarily, until their home is ready for occupancy.

Elizabeth Milne Becomes Bride

A distant wedding of interest to Washington was that yesterday of Miss Elizabeth Alura Milne, of Fairmont, Minn., to Dale Shaffer Mark, of Washington. The couple were married at the First Congregational Church in Fairmont, Minn., the Rev. H. W. J. Urquhart officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Stubbs Milne, of Fairmont, and Mr. Mark is the son of Mrs. LeRoy Mark and the late Mr. Mark.

The couple exchanged their vows in a setting of yellow gladioli and aqua tinted asters. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of silk mousseline de soie and imported Chantilly peau d'ange lace. The dress had a sweetheart neck, a closely fitted shirred bodice and long sleeves. The skirts were gathered at the waist with an elaborate applique design of the lace and her veil of illusion was caught with a crown of orange blossoms and covered the train. She carried white orchids and gladioli showered with swainsona.

Miss Lenora Guseman, of Houston, Tex., was made of honor, wearing a gown of yellow chiffon with a picture hat of matching shade. She carried a fan-shaped arrangement of yellow begonias with a background of yellow ostrich plumes.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Patricia Walker, of Minneapolis; Betty Protzeller and Betty Lou Nelson, of Fairmont, and Miss Mary Mark, of Washington, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Marjorie Johnston, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. They wore sea-blue chiffon with matching picture hats and carried flowers like the maid of honor's. Little Roberta Flynn, of Fairport, was flower girl, dressed in yellow chiffon and carrying a small yellow muff with streamers.

John W. Mark was best man for his brother and the ushers were John D. Mooney, jr., Jesse C. Gram, Robert H. Brodt and John R. Johnson.

A reception at the Fairmont Hotel followed the ceremony. Mrs. Milne wore a lace frock and the bridegroom's mother chose green lace and georgette. Both wore shoulder corsages of lavender orchids. Assisting were Mrs. W. L. Webb, Mrs. W. F. Kasper, Mrs. Robert Flynn, Mrs. H. W. J. Urquhart, Miss Mary Kasper and Miss Eileen Green.

After a trip to Canada, the couple will live in Bethesda. The bride attended Oak Hall School in St. Paul, Minn., and Cornell University and was graduated last June from National Park College here. Her husband studied at Augusta Military Academy and George Washington University.

Many D. C. Folk At Virginia Beach

Among the Army contingent now stopping at the Cavalier Hotel at Virginia Beach are Maj. and Mrs. Robert L. Richardson, of the Quartermaster General's Office, and Maj. William W. Carlton.

Others there from Washington include Mr. and Mrs. John Hammond Bradshaw, jr., Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Hussey, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson M. Watts and Mrs. Watts' mother, Mrs. C. W. Greenway; Mrs. Robert F. Bradbury, Mrs. Susan J. Espey, Miss Elsie Mae Atwood, Frank Roberts, Ray Adams, John Harvey, William L. Browning, Robert Lodge, John R. Blake, Harold Harwood, Walter M. Johnson and John W. Hardell.

Mrs. Charles M. Thomas and her son, Gregory, of Rockville, Md., have joined Mr. Thomas at the Cavalier.

Miss Jewell Is Wed To Lieut. Myhre

Announcement is made of the marriage, July 19, of Bobby Jewell, daughter of Mrs. Frank Carson Jewell and the late Col. Jewell, to Lieut. Floyd B. I. Myhre, son of A. J. Myhre, of El Cerrito, Calif., and the late Mrs. Myhre.

The wedding took place in the chapel of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Chaplain William N. Thomas officiating.

Miss Thurman Engaged to Wed

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Harry J. Malony announce the engagement of Mrs. Malony's daughter, Miss Dorothy Anne Thurman, to Second Lieut. William Warren Neely.

Miss Thurman is the daughter of the late Maj. Allen G. Thurman. She was graduated from the Baldwin School, Bryn Mawr, Pa., and attended George Washington University, where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi.

Lieut. Neely attended Randle's Preparatory School and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in February, 1941. He is the son of Mrs. Earnest Monroe Neely and the late Mr. Neely, of Tucson, Ariz.

The wedding will take place in the near future.

Porter–Balderson Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew D. Porter, of Chevy Chase, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Audrey Gloria, to Wilmer H. Balderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Balderson, of this city.

Miss Porter attended Strayer College. Mr. Balderson was graduated from the Washington College of Law and is a member of the District of Columbia Bar. He is now legal librarian of the Farm Credit Administration.

The wedding will take place in the early fall.

Vocalists Feted By Mrs. Beale

Mrs. Truxtun Beale entertained at a party last night in honor of Elsie Houston, Brazilian soprano, and Alexander Smallens, soloist and conductor of the Pan American program given last night by the National Symphony Orchestra at the Watergate. The party took place at her historic home, Decatur House, on Lafayette Square.

The diplomatic representatives who were honor guests at the concert—and some went on to Mrs. Beale's—included the Brazilian Ambassador and Senora Martins, the Ambassador of Colombia, Dr. Gabriel Turbay, the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Caceres, the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de De Bayle, the Minister of Paraguay and Senora de Soler, Dr. L. S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan American Union, the First Secretary of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Rodriguez, the Counselor of the Ecuador Embassy and Senora de Anderson, the First Secretary of the Legation of El Salvador and Senora de Alfaro and the First Secretary of the Mexican Embassy and Senora de Cuervo.

With the exception of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, the entire program of the concert was devoted to the music of the Latin-American countries.

Kasenhagens Have Newly Born Son

Dr. and Mrs. Leo Kasehagen 3d, announce the birth of a son, Leo 4th, on Sunday, July 20, in Tamaqua, Pa.

Dr. and Mrs. Kasehagen were married in Pittsburgh in July, 1936. The young son is a direct descendant of Capt. Thomas Graves, who came to this country in 1608 in the Mary and Margaret, and was a burgess in the first legislative assembly.

Dr. Kasehagen is the son of Mrs. Leo Kasehagen, of 1353 Jefferson Street, Washington. He was connected with Carnegie Institute of Technology for some years, but is now doing research work for a large commercial firm in Tamaqua. Graduating from Carnegie before he was 21, he was one of the few to receive his commission as second lieutenant some months later.

Mrs. Kasehagen, the former Miss Eleanor Duffy, also a graduate of Carnegie, is a granddaughter of one of the pioneer settlers of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Craddock Makes Daughter's Troth Known

Mrs. Charles Granville Craddock, of Lynchburg, Va., announced the engagement of her daughter, Cora Fields, to Cleveland Amory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Amory, of Milton, Mass. The wedding will take place early in the fall.

Both Miss Craddock and Mr. Amory work in Washington and will make their home here after their wedding.

Announce Engagement

Lieut. Comdr. Paul Wrenn, U. S. N., and Mrs. Wrenn, of Mare Island, Calif., announce the engagement of their daughter, Margot Lucile, to Ensign John Collier Beckett, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Bergie Beckett, of Palo Alto, Calif.

Mrs. Holmos Reviews Far Eastern Status

A basis for peace in the Far East can be accomplished only if China is free, Mrs. Arthur J. Holmos said in a talk yesterday to the foreign policy department of the District League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Holmos, a member of the league, based her talk on a review of the book, "Prerequisites to Peace in the Far East," by Nathaniel Peffer, issued by the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Peace cannot be stabilized in other parts of the world until the Far Eastern situation is settled, she said, at the meeting at the home of Mrs. M. O. Lorenz, 3510 Porter Street Northwest.

Japan would not reach her highest point of efficiency by conquering China because, if she could do so, she would have to deplete her own resources to such an extent that she would be in no position to effect the necessary reorganization of herself and China, Mrs. Holmos said.

She stressed the point that nations like the United States and England could make long-range investments by lending money and technicians to China, for such nations could afford to wait for returns on investments, she said.

Mrs. Holmes' intensive study of international relations began in her college days, when she majored in that subject at the University of Minnesota.

The foreign policy department yesterday began a study of the political and economic situation in Russia. Mrs. Lorenz, former president of the league, spoke on Russia's geography and ethnic groups.

Russia has approximately 160 different ethnic groups to which she has given autonomy to the extent of letting them speak and teach their own languages, Mrs. Lorenz said. Therefore, because of that privilege, there will be a tendency toward solidifying non-Russian people behind Russia, Mrs. Lorenz said.

She pointed out that the Russian population is so widely distributed that even if Germany should take large cities, the conquering of the country would not be assured.

Overseas Service Unit Members to Broadcast

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, member of the Washington unit of the Women's Overseas Service League, and Mrs. Helen Crean, president of the unit, will discuss its activities in the emergency on a program over station WWDC at 5:15 p. m. today. They also will reminisce about their experiences in the last war.

They will appear on a program arranged by Carolyn Vance, with Christine Andersen and Jay Owen taking part.

Chevy Chase Women To Honor Rep. Byron

Representative Katherine E. Byron (Democrat), of Maryland, will be honored at a dinner of the Women's Democratic Club of Leland, Chevy Chase, Md., at 7 p. m. Thursday at Olney Inn.

Gov. and Mrs. Herbert O'Conor and members of Congress from Maryland will be guests, Mrs. Phillip Fischer, president of the club, said.

Counselor Airs Defense Job Possibilities

Job possibilities for workers in the defense program were discussed by Miss Alice Wakefield, vocational counselor of Strayer College, yesterday afternoon on the Business and Professional Women's Club period over WINX.

"In Washington, alone, approximately 175 persons have been inducted into the Government service each day for the past three or four months, with approximately 85 per cent of these positions in the clerical classification," Miss Wakefield said.

In the country as a whole, of the more than 15,000 persons newly employed by the Federal Government each week during the past several months, the great majority outside Washington have been skilled mechanics for Navy yards and Army arsenals, she pointed out.

In reply to a question by the interviewer, "Would you advise an older woman to train for one of the Government jobs now open?" Miss Wakefield said: "The answer would depend on the older person's mental attitude, health, personal appearance and personal job contacts. In general, it is probably wiser to develop some vocation more in line with the housekeeping duties which have been the older woman's responsibility for many years, than to try to compete in a market where a premium is placed on the flexibility and skill of youth."

She pointed out that if the older woman had had some years of successful office experience before marriage, she might be justified in attempting to train again for such work.

Restore Food Safeguard, P.-T. A. Urges

The District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers, through its executive committee, yesterday had sent a letter to the Commissioners to urge that "necessary legislation be enacted to permit city food inspectors to condemn on sight food products considered unfit for human consumption."

The letter, signed by Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president, stated that "since the suspension of this power constitutes a serious health menace, particularly during these hot weather months, it is further urged that this protective authority be renewed as speedily as possible by amendment of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetics Act of 1938."

The name of Mrs. Lucian Jordan, fifth vice president in charge of the department of health in the Congress of Parents and Teachers, also was attached to the letter.

Kamp Kahlert Girls Will Make 2-Day Boat Trip

A two-day schooner cruise will be taken next week by 28 girls at Kamp Kahlert, the Washington Y. W. C. A. camp at Sudley, Md.

Campers who will take part in the outing are: Janet Ellis, Betty Evans, Betty Logue, Elinore Palmiere, Joan Wunder, June Martyn, Eleanor Brandt, Mary McCallum, Allie Mae Smoot, Betty Varty, Helen Brewton, Cathie Boisseau, Royellen Crampton, Georgette Caskie, Peggy Michael, Betty Powers, Pam Raum, Anne Paxton, Leah Todd, Joyce Wright, Florence and Bernice Tolstoi, Joyce Fox, Jane Davis, Harriet Gluck, Mary Lou Jensen, Bonnie Ross and Jane Writen. Counsellors for the cruise are Margaret Hamilton, Mary Sartwell, Charlotte Jenkins and Catherine Richarson.

"A gypsy day," starting with a breakfast "cook-out" and a treasure hunt, being planned for Thursday by members of the campcraft group for campers not making the cruise. The following evening there will be a "talent hunt" to find out the skills and hobbies of the campers.

A group in Indian lore will work next week for a special evening program under "Chi" Lincheze, Navajo.

City Club Women To Give Aluminum

Scrap aluminum for national defense will be brought by members of the Women's City Club to the weekly social meeting at the clubhouse at 8 o'clock tonight.

'Space Ship' Takes Fledgling Naval Pilots To Dizzy Heights Without Leaving Earth

This is another article by John O'Reilly, who is making a tour of United States naval training bases.

By John O'Reilly

Pensacola, Fla., July 23.—Mechanization in the United States Navy is approaching such extremes that the Navy has to keep on its toes to devise means of training young men to operate the machines placed at their disposal. Man, in other words, is producing machines of such mechanical perfection and performance that it is almost beyond his powers to put them through their paces.

The best example of this is the case of those airplanes designed to operate at terrific heights.

But strange things happen to the human system at high altitudes. Under the reduced oxygen supply of the upper strata the flyer gets an exaggerated sense of his own ability. He thinks he is some sort of superman, whereas in reality he is only getting giddy and lightheaded.

It is hard to convince cadets these and other weird symptoms actually take place in the air.

To meet this situation the Navy has devised a 13-ton, low-pressure chamber in which students may get all the sensations, reactions and mental high-jinks of going up and poking around the stratosphere without leaving the ground. It has been dubbed the Space Ship and has just been put into the training schedule here at the Naval Air Station. This correspondent had the privilege of joining the second group of cadets to use the stationary strato-scooter.

Myself and ten cadets entered the hangar which the Space Ship never leaves. There we met Lieut. T. D. Boaz and Lieut. H. J. Rickard, Navy physicians, and inspected our stratospheric jaunting car. It was a steel cylinder, painted gray.

We trooped into the Space Ship and took the seats along either wall. Dr. Rickard, who was to make the ascent with us, helped us adjust the oxygen apparatus against the time we would use it.

Then we took some tests. One was to stretch rubber bands across pegs of corresponding colors at either end of a board. It was simple. I did it in a minute. Then we were given a sheet with a lot of letters on it. The game was to cross out all H's followed by R unless R was followed by W. Tricky, but it was not too difficult. This done, the door was bolted. There was a hissing sound and the altimeter showed we were ascending at about 1,000 feet a minute.

From a microphone outside the ship Dr. Boaz warned us we were due for a tratospheric jag. Our symptoms, he said, would resemble the signs of too much alcohol.

We were going up fast and we kept swallowing to equalize the pressure in our ears. I began to feel confident. There would be nothing to this business, I thought. I made notes on a pad but soon found myself writing nonsense. Some of the cadets were grinning in silly fashion. Others were as solemn as owls. I began to feel pressure in my stomach.

"Wish I had eaten only one egg for breakfast," I thought.

We had leveled off at 20,000 feet and I began to feel depressed. I began watching C. P. Brorein, a cadet facing me from the other side of the ship. When we started up he had a heavy coat of tan. Now his face was a light yellow. It was also without expression. Suddenly his body stiffened. His legs shot out straight and his head jerked to one side. My impulse was to jump to his aid or call the attention of the instructor, but I seemed to have lost the ability to move. My limbs declined to obey my thoughts. It was only a second until Dr. Rickard had clapped an oxygen mask over the cadet's mouth. He revived in less than a minute and kept the mask on. I watched him with a dull fascination.

Hovering there at 20,000 feet we repeated the tests. I had removed the oxygen mask as soon as my head cleared. This time it was a terrific job to put the rubber bands over the right pegs.

After these tests we were all ordered to start taking oxygen. It made life worth living again. From outside the instructor's voice was saying, "Under oxygen we will proceed up to 28,000 feet."

With the good old oxygen filling our lungs, it was an easy hop. We hovered there, taking the tests for the third time. The results were much better at 28,000 feet under oxygen than at 19,000 feet without it.

As we dropped the heat and humidity increased steadily. By the time we were back at sea level we were dripping perspiration. Then there was a clank and the door of the Space Ship swung open. We filed out to find we were back in the hangar at Pensacola. It dawned on us that we had never left it. But we knew a lot about what happens to you at high altitudes and we had taken none of the risks of an actual first high-altitude flight.

Tugwell Slated To Be Governor Of Puerto Rico

Rexford Guy Tugwell, former Undersecretary of Agriculture and one-time leader of the Roosevelt "Brain Trust," shortly will reenter the Federal service as Governor of Puerto Rico, it was disclosed last night.

He was offered the post by President Roosevelt at a recent White House luncheon conference, the first time the former Columbia professor has been on the appointment list for many months.

Tugwell also has been offered the chancellorship of the University of Puerto Rico and may accept both jobs.

The resignation of Guy W. Swope, incumbent Governor of Puerto Rico, has been received here. He will be offered the job of director of Territories and island possessions in the Interior Department. His reason for resigning is said to be that he hopes to be the Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania in 1942.

The Road Will be Fixed!

Seattle, July 23 (A.P.).—The Woodinville Community Club, seeking improvement of the Woodinville-Bothell Highway, has posted signs along the road reading:

"If the highway department does not fix
"This crooked road of floating bricks
"We'll vote them out of politics."

Curb Service in Alabama

Montgomery, Ala., July 23 (A.P.).—A young man and his fiancee came by highway patrol headquarters at 11 p. m. with a marriage license. They'd been unable to find anyone to marry them at that hour. Headquarters radioed Patrolman Wade Bradley to come in off the highway. He came in, heard the story and promptly married them. He's an ordained minister, too.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Justice Dept. Puts 'Squeeze' on Employes

Justice Department is literally putting the "squeeze" on its employes. Its object is to protect some employes from the inconvenience of moving elsewhere by squeezing all employes into smaller quarters here. A general reshuffling has provided more than 20,000 square feet of office space, or nearly 80 offices, where 200 new employes are being placed. The Great Hall of the department has been taken over by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Some fingerprint files are being kept there. Thurman Arnold has moved his library into a corridor and many officials are sharing offices with their secretaries.

The pressure had been on the department to move several hundred of its employes out of the city to make way for defense employes. A committee concluded that the only employes who could possibly be moved were in the Immigration and Naturalization Service and perhaps some few employes in the Lands Division Many of the immigration employes, whom it was proposed to transfer, were "temporaries" and officials objected strenuously to the transfer of these workers to another city where they would be fired within a few months. It is now doubted whether any Justice employes will be transferred.

Ben Abbott has been appointed chief clerk of the Navy Department. He succeeds William Bergman, who has been made chief clerk in the Secretary's office . . . The bill that would create a Navy civilian police force to round up spies and saboteurs is in conference. The House authorized three million dollars for the force but the Senate cut it to a million. Another Senate amendment also would give the Navy Secretary authority to select men for the force either from civil service or in any other way he chooses.

Leich Promoted

The personnel office of the Civil Service Commission seems to be the springboard to bigger and better things. The commission has had five men as personnel directors within the last two years. Harold H. Leich is the latest to be promoted out. His new job will be to examine and recruit executives for Federal jobs . . . Incidentally, more than 30,000 applications have been received for the executive officer test. Henry Reining was loaned to the commission to prepare applications for the test.

RFC is about ready to approve construction plans for several new Government girls' dormitories here . . . The Y. M. C. A. is understood to be planning an addition to house 500 single men. If the Y. M. C. A. goes through with its plan, the Government won't finance construction of a men's dormitory now . . . E. R. Ballinger, former personnel director at the Treasury Department, is an administrative officer in the quartermaster general's office.

Several New York Congressmen are working furiously for the transfer of several Federal agencies to the big city. They sound off about the concentration of Government employes here. Their faces would be red if they only realized how many Federal workers are in New York City. The number is nearly 100,000, which is one for every two workers here. And after all, Washington was meant to be the Nation's Capital.

It's a fact that every city along both the Eastern and Western seaboards has had its population of Federal workers increased enormously within the past year.

Philadelphia is trying to lure Federal agencies, but the city now has more than 80,000 Government employes. San Francisco has more than 48,000 such employes and Chicago and Boston each have more than 30,000. These figures are being weighed by officials who will decide which agencies are to be moved from here and where they shall go.

D. C. Stations Benefit In Navy Bill

Shore Facilities To Be Developed; $244,268,500 Plan Passes House

The House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday a bill authorizing expenditure of $244,268,500 by the Navy for development of shore facilities at more than 100 stations, including $570,000 in the District of Columbia.

Also authorized in the bill is $1,680,000 for expansion of the District of Columbia Naval Medical Center in nearby Montgomery County, Md.

Projects in the District authorized by the legislation are:

Construction of a three-story, reinforced concerete building at the Naval Research Laboratory, Bellevue, to house all supply department activities; cost, $235,000.

Construction of an ordnance storehouse for the Naval Magazine at Bellevue; cost, $90,000.

Additional aviation facilities, including buildings, at the Reserve Aviation Base, Anacostia; cost, $120,000.

Ten projects in Virginia costing $7,438,000 and four in Maryland costing $1,985,000 are authorized by the bill.

The Virginia items include establishment at the Naval Operating Base at Norfolk of a fleet school to match the only other such school—at the destroyer base in San Diego, Calif.

The bill, authorizing expenditure of 300 million as introduced last week by Chairman Vinson, of the Naval Affairs Committee, was cut to $244,268,500 by the House.

One committee amendment adopted by the House reduced the District Medical Center authorization from $1,970,000 to $1,680,000.

Other committee amendments approved by the House:

Naval Magazine, New Orleans, $2,300,000 for development of storage facilities earmarked for Gulf Coast area instead of being limited to New Orleans.

Annapolis, Md., naval radio station, amount for additional radio facilities reduced from $140,000 to $40,000.

Paris Island, S. C., marine barracks, $120,000 for additional radio facilities eliminated and $25,000 for magazines at Hilton Head Island substituted.

The House added these to the bill at the committee's request: Indianhead, Md., naval powder factory, buildings and accessories, $55,000, and Neuse River, N. C., marine aviation base, radio facilities, $120,000.

N. Y. Arraigns District Woman In Gem Theft

Mrs. Margaret Boyle, 48, 2426 Tracy Place Northwest, daughter of the late Charles C. McChord, once chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, was arraigned in New York City yesterday on a grand larceny charge preferred by a jeweler who said she had stolen $54,000 in jewelry on the pretext that she could sell it to James Roosevelt, Mrs. Jesse Jones and other prominent Washingtonians.

Assistant District Attorney Harold X. McGowan told the court that a Fifth Avenue jeweler, Jack Blauweiss, had sent the jewelry to Mrs. Boyle, who, unable to sell it as she had promised, pawned it. She sent the jeweler part of the money, he said, representing it as installment payments, and thus obtaining additional consignments from the jeweler.

Preston M. Neilson, Mrs. Boyle's attorney, said his client had made "a dreadful mistake" but had not intended to steal. Magistrate Peter Abeles, in Felony Court, held her in $2,500 bail for a hearing Tuesday.

Mrs. Boyle's family lived in Washington for many years and she made her debut here. Her father was a well-known attorney, serving a long period on the ICC both as member and chairman. During the first World War, he was a member of the Railway Wage Commission and arbitrator in the War Labor Board. He died in 1937.

50 Boys Enjoy Outing on River

As part of the summer program of the Central Young Men's Christian Association, some 50 boys of the boys department yesterday journeyed to Marshall Hall, Md., by a Wilson Line steamer for a day's outing.

Director of the cruise was O. I. Bergstrom, who is in charge of the boys' department during the summer while R. H. Gaber, boys' work director, is in charge of Camp Letts, the Central Y. M. C. A. boys' camp on the Rhode River near Annapolis. Bergstrom was assisted by other members of the boys' department staff.

Shiloh Baptist Church Choir Gives Concert

By Ray C. B. Brown

Community Center Department and National Capital Parks Service present. Shiloh. Baptist. Church Choir on Wednesday night at the Sylvan Theater Director: Wilhelmina Patterson. Program of American Negro spirituals and songs by Bach, Christiansen, Dett, Shvedov, Lvovski and Chaikovski.

According to custom, one of the summer festival programs at the Sylvan Theater is assigned to the Negro musicians of the city, and this year the choice fell upon Shiloh Baptist Church choir which was directed last evening by Wilhelmina Patterson. A clear sky and cool air favored the concert, which was well attended by auditors spread over the sloping sward at the southern side of the Washington Monument and massed in the chair section near the stage. The vested singers, about 70 in number, did credit to their director.

BROWN

The first part of the program was devoted to religious songs of the formal type involving part-singing and marmonic counterpoint. Dett's "Gently, O Gently Lead Us" and "Son of Mary" were followed by Christiansen's "Beautiful Savior." Bach's "When Thou Art Near," Moand harmonic counterpoint. Dett's arangement of Thomas Campion's "As By the Streams of Babylon." A group of Russian liturgical songs included Shvedov's "We Praise Thee," Lvovski's "Gospod Pomilui," sung in English, and Chaikovski's "On, O Thou Soul."

It was the second half of the concert which proved the most interesting both in content and in performance. This consisted of arrangements of American Negro spirituals by Robert Nathaniel Dett and William L. Dawson, both of whom have distinguished themselves in this line. Among the numbers were "Sooner Will Be Done," "O What a Beautiful City," "Ain't That Good News," "Somebody's Knocking," "O Hear the Lambs A'Crying" and "Don't Be Weary, Traveler."

Among the folk songs of the world the spirituals occupy a unique position not only because of their origin, but also because of their distinctive beauty and idiomatic flavor. The naivete often occuring in the words is a part of their spontaneous charm, and in no way detracts from the dignity and earnestness of the music.

Brazilian Diva Says Music'll Unite Americas

"Music will be one of the main agencies in bringing the people of South America and the United States together," Elsie Houston, Brazilian soprano, said yesterday after she arrived here to appear as soloist on the Pan American program at the Watergate.

"Jazz has done much to help South Americans understand people here, and South American music played in the United States is helping you to know us," said the singer who will soon go on an eight-month tour of this country.

She has some very sharp opinions on foreign affairs which she wouldn't divulge.

"The easiest way of having people understand me," Miss Houston went on, "is through songs. Although it may be slow to come, I believe that music will bring about much better understanding among countries."

The author of one book, Miss Houston is planning to write another about South America. She was born in Rio de Janiero and has sung in South America and Europe.

Since coming to this country in 1937, Miss Houston has divided her time between the supper clubs and the concert halls. She recently concluded a seven-weeks' engagement at the Rainbow Room in New York. She has sung with the New York Philharmonic Symphony in Carnegie Hall, and with Jose Iturbi and the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra.

Tonight, she will sing a program of South American songs.

Lucy Monroe to Lead Watergate Sing

The first community sing ever to be presented in this country with a full symphony orchestra will be given on Wednesday evening, August 6, at the Potomac Watergate under the title of "Sing, America, Sing." The concert is dedicated to the United Service Organizations.

For this occasion, the National Symphony Orchestra will join forces with Lucy Monroe, director of patriotic music for RCA-Victor, who will lead the singing, and Charles O'Connell, director of artists and classical recordings for the same company, who will guest conduct the orchestra.

Four Nurses From Torpedoed Ship Arrive Here

Four Red Cross nurses, who survived the torpedoing of their Britain-bound vessel and 12 days at sea in a lifeboat, arrived last evening in Walter Reed Hospital, for treatment and rest after their harrowing experience.

Exhausted and hollow-eyed, the four nurses were rushed here by plane from Norfolk, where they had been landed from Iceland by a Navy transport. They were suffering rom frost-bitten feet, shock and malnutrition.

The nurses, who left with a party of ten early in June for war relief work in England, are Marion Blissett, Detroit; Victoria Pelc, Auburn, N. Y.; Rachel St. Pierre, Boston.; Lillian Pedcinax, Albany. Two others landed in Ireland; four are still unreported.

Granville Gude Reelected Director Of Florist Society

Granville Gude, of Washington, was reelected a director of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists at the organization's convention which closed last night at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Alec Henderson, of Chicago, was reelected president. Gude was named for a three-year term, as was Hubbard White, of Medina, N. Y., a new director. The society established six fellowships for graduate students at six universities which offer such courses.

Some 300 florists attended the convention, which opened Monday.

Emerson Snyder Elected President Of Credit Men

E. Emerson Snyder, of Raleigh Haberdashers was elected president of the Associated Retail Credit Men of Washington last night to succeed Joshua P. Stedehouder, of Lansburgh & Bro.

Others elected at the annual meeting, held at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club, were Samuel E. Collegeman, vice president; John K. Althaus, secretary-treasurer, and Charles W. Prettyman, assistant secretary.

New directors named were the officers and Harry N. Aiken, Leo Baum, Benjamin Blanken, A. Coonin, William F. Hisey, Charles M. Keefer, Elsie M. Lee, Roscoe W. Reichard, Herbert J. Rich, Frank P. Scott, Stedehouder and Ben Stein.

In accepting the presidency, Snyder said newcomers to Washington, arriving in unprecedented numbers, have "very generally" brought good credit records with them.

D. C. Business In Spotlight On Hill

Dupont Circle Apartment Leasing May Be Discussed By One Committee

A half-dozen Congressional committees will concern themselves today with many items of District business, not the least of which is the controversy over the Government's leasing of the Dupont Circle Apartments.

Three Public Buildings Administration officials—W. E. Reynolds, the commissioner; Clay J. Guthridge, chief of space control, and E. R. Witman, fiscal manager—have been summoned to appear before the House Buildings and Grounds Committee.

Ostensibly, the committee will open hearings on resolutions by Representative Sabath ((Democrat), of Illinois, to authorize the President to move Federal agencies out of Washington to relieve the congestion of defense workers here.

Probe Expected to Develop

Actually, however, the session is expected to develop into an investigation of the Government's practice of leasing residential buildings for offices. Representative Downs (Democrat), of Connecticut, who introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of the Dupont Circle controversy, is a member of the committee.

The hearing will get under way at 10 a. m. in the committee's room in the old House Office Building.

At the same hour, on the Senate side of Capitol Hill, subcommittees of the District and Judiciary Committees will open simultaneous hearings on the nominations, respectively, of Guy Mason to be District Commissioner and Assistant Attorney General Matthew F. McGuire to be justice of the District Court. Mason, lawyer and former newspaperman, was named by President Roosevelt to succeed the late Melvin C. Hazen. McGuire was appointed to succeed Justice Peyton Gordon, retired. In each case the hearings are expected to be short, with confirmation of both nominees a matter of course.

Other Hearings Scheduled

The Mason hearing will be before a subcommittee headed by Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, and will be held in the room of the Territories and Insular Affairs Committee in the Capitol. The McGuire hearing will be conducted by Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas, in the Judiciary Committee room, also in the Capitol.

The Senate District Committee room will be the scene of the opening of hearings on the Hunter recreation bill, a measure to merge under a seven-man, citizen-dominated board all play facilities in the Capital.

At the same time—10 a. m.—District Commissioner Gen. Charles Kutz and representatives of the Washington Building Congress will appear in the House Claims Committee room to testify on the Randolph bill to modernize the District's 35-year-old fire-safety laws.

In a sixth session on District business, members of the House Police Investigation subcommittee will meet behind closed doors in the District Committee room.

2 Washingtonians High in College Entrance Exams

Two Washingtonians were among four members of the graduating class of St. Albans School who scored 96 per cent or better in recent College Entrance Board examinations, it was announced yesterday.

Ernest Graves, jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Ernest Graves, 1935 Phelps Place Northwest, and Joseph Harry Cunningham, 2d, son of Col. and Mrs. Harry F. Cunningham, 4733 Resevoir Road Northwest, each made 96. Graves recently entered the United States Military Academy and Cunninghm has been awarded one of four corporation scholarships in the freshman class at Haverford College.

Baltimore Man Thanks Capitalite Who Found Wallet

A Washington Post reader in Baltimore wrote to this newspaper expressing his gratitude to an unidentified Good Samaritan who sent the Baltimorean his wallet and $10 which he lost here last Tuesday.

The man who signed the letter George Arbeit, of 2220 Linden Avenue, Baltimore, said he lost the wallet and money while on a visit here.

The wallet and $10 were returned to him by mail but the finder did not identify himself. "I am extremely grateful" wrote Arbeit in asking The Post to publish his appreciation.

Chest Organizations Making Up Budget

Organizations and groups in Fairfax County desiring financial assistance from the county community chest for the year beginning January 1 are requested to communicate with Beverly M. Coleman, of McLean, chairman of the budget committee not later than August 15.

It was explained that the budget committee is taking precautions that every legitimate charity and character building agency will receive assistance, while at the same time assuring that there will be no overlapping.

No, Chum, That's Not Chum

WELL, DOGGONE—Mrs. Kitty Travers, of 1730 Seventeenth Street Southeast, looks curiously at the dog she thought was Chum, missing bulldog owned by Lieut. Joel Parks, of the Boulevard Apartments, Alexandria, Va. Mrs. Travers has named this dog Butch. The pet, which seemed to fit the description of Chum in yesterday's Post, followed her home. She notified Lieut. Parks, but sadly enough it wasn't the right dog. Now, all parties concerned will be grateful for information leading to the "home-coming" of both Butch and Chum

Paralysis Fund Sets Record Of $2,104,460

Record sums to fight infantile paralysis were raised this year by the President's Birthday Celebration and the District ranked eighth among the ten leading States in amount of money raised.

The committee in charge of the 1941 celebration presented this information to President Roosevelt in a report at the White House yesterday and the President's reaction was:

"I am perfectly thrilled over the results of the Birthday celebration. It is certainly wonderful news and you and all those associated with you have done a handsome job. I need not tell you how very deeply I appreciate all that you have done and are doing in this great cause."

The 1941 campaign raised a national total of $2,104,460 for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said Keith Morgan, chairman of the committee and head of the group that called on the President.

This record total was $697,214 more than the $1,407,245 raised in 1940, the previous high mark.

Expenses ran slightly more than six per cent of the total net amount raised, the Committee said.

About half the funds are used by State and County chapters of the foundation for local relief of victims of the disease, while the other half is expended by the National Foundation to combat epidemics on a Nation-wide scale, and for other scientific attacks on the problem of infantile paralysis.

The group that called on the President included George E. Allen, vice president of the foundation and a former District Commissioner.

"Out of affection," Mr. Hazen ordered silver loving cups given Mrs. H. Lynn Colvin, Mrs. E. Millburn Colvin, jr., Mrs. Melvin Hazen Colvin, Emery Gallilher, secretary of Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat (of the District Court); Mary Faunce Edwards, Dorothy Davis Armond and to his secretary, Ralph A. Norton.

Mr. Hazen gave $100 each to his maid, Helen Clarkson, and to the Catlett (Va.) Methodist Church. He left his silver service to Dr E Millburn Colvin, jr, and his guns and pistols to Dr. H. Lynn Colvin.

Mr. Hazen provided that his executors be allowed to purchase his Nokesville, Va., farm(Pilgrims Nest, for $3,000, if they wished.

Boy, 10, Hit By Truck Here; Leg Is Broken

Ten-year-old Donald L. Lee, of 6515 Eighth Street Northwest, had his leg broken yesterday when he was knocked down by a truck in the 5900 block of Georgia Avenue Northwest.

Police said he got off a street car and ran into the side of the truck, operated by William Brown, Negro, 28, of 947 Florida Avenue Northwest. Witnesses said one of the wheels passed over the boy's leg.

He was given first aid by a passing physician and taken to Walter Reed Hospital.

Robert Wohlsarth, 10, of 9201 Connecticut Avenue, North Chevy Chase, Md., was in a serious condition at Washington Sanitarium and Hospital, Takoma Park, Md., last night after being struck by an automobile while cycling.

He was struck, police said, by an automobile operated by Lawrence Eaton, 19, of Kensington, on the Garrett Park-Kensington Road Tuesday night. The boy was unidentified until yesterday when a nurse heard him whisper his home address.

Nearby Hanging Declared a Suicide

Alexandria Coroner John Sims yesterday issued a certificate of suicide in the death of a man identified as James W. White, 52-year-old carpenter, of Lovingston, Va., who was found Monday hanged to a tree on the old Hume estate in Alexandria.

Girl Slain By Suitor Is Buried

Second Robbery Charge Placed Against Guy Oden, Confessed Killer

They buried 15-year-old Ellen Cannon on a green slope of Fort Lincoln Cemetery yesterday afternoon as her killer and former sweetheart was faced with another charge at District Jail.

The services at Zurhorst funeral home, 301 East Capitol Street, were conducted by the girl's uncle, the Rev. George Cannon, pastor of the Washington Highlands Baptist Church.

"It is hard enough," he told the relatives, neighbors and school friends who crowded the auditorium to overflowing, "to conduct a service for one you do not know, but when it is for one that you love it is doubly hard.

"There is no need for me to eulogize that little girl lying there," he went on. "We all knew her. We all build our monuments. Not of marble and granite, but in the living memories of those we leave behind us."

The girl's mother, Mrs. Emma Holloway, sat dry-eyed throughout the funeral oration with her daughter's step-father and nine brothers and sisters.

"We live in a world of shadows," said the preacher. ". . . Oh death where is thy sting. Oh grave where is thy victory."

When the hymn, "Face to Face With My Redeemer," was played, Mrs. Holoway, veiled in black, began to weep.

The services completed, members of the family filed past the casket for a final glance at the girl's body. School chums followed them to gaze solemly into the face of the girl with whom they had laughed and joked a week ago.

Six boys, junior high schoolmates of the girl, carried her casket to the hearse. The sidewalk was thronged with girls and boys of teen age—friends who could find no room inside.

Meanwhile, a second robbery charge was placed yesterday against Guy Oden, the 19-year-old confessed murderer. He was charged with snatching a pocketbook containing $8 from Lillian Gaghan, of 655 K Street Northeast, as she walked with Mrs. Dorothy McGee, 444½ H Street Northwest, at Fifth and H Streets Northeast July 2.

Both women identified pictures of Oden as the youth responsible for the robbery, according to Detective Sergts. L. N. Wilson and E. E. Scott, who placed the additional charge against Oden.

The youth was charged Monday with holding up a cleaning establishment July 15 and taking $26.

Oden is in jail awaiting grand jury action.

DiMaggio, Keller Homer, Yanks Beat Indians

Mulloy Upsets Kovacs in Sea Bright Tennis

Russo Allows Only 5 Hits To Win, 3 to 2

New York Increases League Lead to 9 Games; Cleveland Uses 3 Pitchers

By the Associated Press

New York, July 23.—Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller smacked a pair of home runs in the fourth inning today to steer the New York Yankees to a 3-to-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians and increase the Yanks' first-place margin in the American League to nine full games.

The Indians took the field with Second Baseman Ray Mack benched and an almost entirely revamped batting order, but their efforts to pull back into the pennant race were stymied by the Yanks' one big inning and the five-hit hurling of Lefty Marius Russo, who attained his ninth triumph against six defeats.

Cleveland used three pitchers, Southpaw Al Smith, Joe Heving and Clint Brown in that order, to suppress the Yankees to seven safeties, but DiMaggio opened the fourth with a rifle shot into the left-field stands for his twenty-second homer of the year. Then with one out Buddy Rosar walked and Charley Keller slammed a drive into the right-field stands for his twenty-third round-tripper.

Load Bases Twice

The Yankees twice loaded the bases with one out. In the second inning a walk and two singles did the trick only to have Russo ground into a double play, and in the fifth Johnny Sturm singled, Tom Henrich doubled and Joe DiMaggio was purposely passed to bring about the removal of Smith, but Heving made Joe Gordon and Rosar ground out. Heving did not allow a hit in 2 2-3 innings and the lone single off Brown came after two were out.

The Indians had Russo on the run in the third when Oscar Grimes and Gene Desautels singled in succession to open the inning. But Russo picked Grimes off second, struck out Smith and escaped with only one run against him on a single by Larry Rosenthal.

Then he held the Indians to one his until Gee Walker homered into the right-field stands at the start of the ninth.

DiMaggio to Keep Old Number 5, Says McCarthy

By the Associated Press

New York, July 23.—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees has turned thumbs down on a suggestion that Joe DiMaggio wear No. 56 on his uniform in token of his recently having set a big-league record of hitting in 56 straight games.

"Nope, that would be too much weight for Joe to carry," said the Yank pilot. "It would place him under a certain pressure, like having his batting average printed on his back. Besides, Joe's too modest for a thing like that."

Riggs, Parker And McNeill Are Winners

Hecht Also Advances Into Quarterfinals; Greenberg, Talbert And Sid Wood Lose

By Sid Feder

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Sea Bright, N. J., July 23.—Old man upset finally hit the men's half Sea Bright Invitation Tennis tournament today and wiped highly regarded Frank Kovacs out of the quarter-finals, although all the other seeded stars had a comparatively easy time getting by.

Kovacs, the Nation's third ranking amateur and fourth-seeded in this tournament, cracked under the pressure put on by unseeded Gardner Mulloy, the 24-year-old Florida lawyer. Fresh from his victory in the Sullivan County, N. Y., tournament at Grossinger Lake last week, Mulloy trounced his Oakland, Calif. rival 3—6, 7—5, 6—4 and marched into the quarter-finals.

Meantime, the three top-seeded racquet-swingers, Don McNeill, Bobby Riggs and Frankie Parker, encountered only mild resistance. The ranking foreign list was split when Francisco Segura, of Ecuador, bowed out while Ladislav Hecht, former Czech Davis Cupper, remained in the running by whipping little Bitsy Grant.

No Women Surprises

The women's singles reached the semifinals without surprises, although unranked Helen Bernard, of New York, still survived, along with the seeded stars—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, of New York, and the Californians, Helen Jacobs and Dorothy May Bundy.

Mulloy beat Kovacs at his own game—power—and forced the lanky Californian into repeated errors. Kovacs lost his touch in the second set when Mulloy broke his service twice.

Top-seeded McNeill scored a 6—1, 4—6, 6—1 victory over Seymour Greenberg, of Chicago, whose left-handed slants annoyed the national champion only briefly in the second set. Riggs, the tournament's defending champion, turned back stubborn Billy Talbert, of Cincinnati, 6—4, 8—6, while Parker, beginning to hit his stride on grass, ousted Sidney Wood, the former Davis Cupper, 6—0, 7—5.

Wayne Sabin Wins

Rounding out the quarter-final bracket, Hecht eliminated Bitsy Grant, 4—6, 6—2, 6—1; Wayne Sabin, of Reno, won over Segura, 6—1, 0—6, 6—3, and the California doubles partners, Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder, downed Joe Fishbach, of New York, and Bill Crosby, of Oakland, Calif., respectively. Kramer won at 10—8, 8—6, and Schroeder at 6—2, 6—0.

In the women's quarter-final, top-seeded Mrs. Cooke defeated Mrs. Margaret Osborne, of San Francisco, 6—1, 6—3; the veteran Helen Jacobs conquered Hope Knowles of Philadelphia, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Bundy advanced over Mary Arnold of Los Angeles, 6—2, 7—5, and Miss Bernhard toppled Mrs. Millicent Hirsch Lang, of New York, 6—2, 6—1.

In tomorrow's men's quarter-finals, McNeill faces Schroeder, Parker opposes Sabin, Riggs tackles Kramer and Mulloy takes on Hecht.

Horter McVeigh, Young Pro Golfer, Fatally Injured

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 23.—Horter McVeigh, assistant professional at the Red Run Golf Club, was fatally injured at 3 a. m. today as he returned from a party in honor of his twenty-first birthday.

McVeigh won a starting berth in this year's P. G. A. championship at Denver, but was refused the right to play because he had not been a member of the association long enough.

Born in New Jersey, McVeigh moved with his family to Tampa, Fla., and there, at the age of 13, he began to play golf. He was an outstanding baseball player in high school and was offered trials by the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Al Shelhamer To Ride Whirly At Arlington

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 23.—Ben Jones, trainer of Warren Wright's Whirlaway, announced today that Alfred Shelhamer, 23-year-old jockey from Bayfield, Colo., will ride the 3-year-old champion in the $60,000 Classic Stakes at Arlington Park Saturday.

Shelhamer is under contract to H. G. Bedwell, of Maryland, and has done most of his riding in that State. He steered Wright's juvenile Some Chance to second place back of Sun Again in the recent Arlington Futurity.

Jones and Owner Wright decided on Shelhamer after a 20-minute conference this afternoon. The young jockey was up on the Wright star when he worked a mile and a furlong in 1:51 3/5 easily last Tuesday morning and Jones said that trial convinced him Shelhamer is a good, steady rider, strong enough to keep Whirlaway from returning to his old fault of bearing out.

Eddie Arcaro originally was scheduled to ride the Calumet Farm star but now is under suspension in the East. It was reported that Georgie Woolf, now riding at Hollywood Park, Los Angeles, had been engaged for Saturday's stake, but Jones said neither he nor Wright had been in touch with Woolf.

Wakefield Fans, Strikes Out, Whiffs In 4 Times at Bat

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 23 (AP).—Ed Albosta, leading pitcher of the Piedmont League, turned back Dick Wakefield, $45,000 prize rookie of Detroit who had been sent here for seasoning, four times in one game tonight.

Hurling for Durham, Albosta defeated Winston-Salem, 4-0. The first time up, Wakefield fanned. The second time up he was safe on an error by Stan Rojek, Durham shortstop, and the third time he struck out. With the bases loaded when the outfielder came to the plate the fourth time, he whiffed.

P. G. A. Will Attempt to Bar Betting Books at Tournaments

Golf Body President to Present Motion Before Committee to Halt Gambling

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 23.—The best bet in golf at the moment—with the possible exception of one that says Ben Hogan will be in the money at St. Paul this weekend—is that there will be no organized betting at future tournament sanctioned by the Professional Golfers Association.

The P. G. A. president, Tom Walsh, said today he will take before the association's executive committee a motion to bar from all P. G. A. tourneys any such betting "book" as was made this past weekend at the $5,000 Chicago Open championship at Elmhurst Country Club.

"Baseball had to employ commissioner Landis and pay him $85,000 a year after gamblers hurt the sport," Walsh said, "and we of the P. G. A. will not allow the gambling element to take a foothold in golf. We've built a reputation that our tournaments can be enjoyed by the public without 'mutuels' or 'books' and we don't intend to see that reputation damaged."

The "book" at the Chicago Open was run at the ninth green, with odds listed on some 30 players. Hogan, eventual winner, was the wagering choice at opening odds of 4 to 1. This was cut sharply to 2 to 1 when Belting Ben started with a first round 66. A large sign —"Place Bets Here"—was particularly annoying to P. G. A. officials.

CHIPS TO THE GREEN: Another fast field will go in the St. Paul Open next Friday, but Hogan should have no trouble placing in the money for a fifty-second straight tournament . . . He and Sam Snead are mentioned as likely favorites, but to won "Slamming Sam" will have to be a lot steadier on the greens than he was this past weekend. . . .

President Walsh, of the P. G. A. thinks Hogan's money-streak is one of the best things to happen to golf in sometime. . . . "The way that 140-pounder belts that ball has convinced a lot of duffers that they don't have to weigh 200 pounds to drive a long ball," Walsh says. . . . A spectator, watching Ben go last Sunday, remarked: "That Hogan isn't a golfer, he's a machine" . .

Frank Walsh, veteran pro of Rumson, N. J., rates a bouquet as No. 1 "picker" of the summer . . . He selected Craig Wood to take the National Open and Vic Ghezzi the P. G. A. crown.

Tony Zale KO's Harris in 1:40 Of 1st Round

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 23—Tony Zale Gary, Ind., National Boxing Association middleweight champion, knocked out Ossie (Bulldog) Harris, Pittsburgh, Pa., with a right to the jaw in the first round of their scheduled ten-round bout in the Chicago Stadium outdoor arena tonight.

Zale dropped his foe after 1 minute 40 seconds. The Pittsburgh Negro fell straight backward and then rolled over on his face and was unable to move at the count of ten.

Zale fought at 161 pounds, with Harris scaling 161¼.

Zale kept stalking Harris with right hands to the body to set him in position to land the knockout blow. Harris was too busy backing away to do any damage to Zale, and succeeded in landing only a couple of futile jabs to the head before Zale nailed him with a right that traveled with lightning speed.

A crowd of 3,800 attended.

Henry Armstrong To Play Bit Part In Conn Picture

Hollywood, July 23 (AP).—Henry Armstrong, retired former kingpin of three boxing divisions, was signed by Republic Pictures today for a bit part in the film starring Billy Conn, of Pittsburgh.

The studio said it also was negotiating for Mike Jacobs, New York promoter, to appear in the picture.

Chisox Pound 3 Hurlers to Beat Red Sox

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 23.—Thorny (Lefty) Lee kept 12 Red Sox hits well-scattered today while turning in his eleventh victory of the season for the Chicago White Sox by a 10-4 margin.

The Chisox, baffled by Tex Hughson the previous time they faced him, turned savagely on that rookie hurler and clinched the game in the fourth inning by blasting him for eight hits and six runs.

The visitors then clouted Charley Wagner for two more runs in the sixth and Mike Ryba gave them another pair in the eighth. The visitors wound up with a total of 17 hits, a furious attack led by Taft Wright and Myril Hoag, each of whom collected four safeties. Ben Chapman drove in four of the Chisox runs with a double and a single.

Nats Offer Passes To 1,000 Meade Men

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 23 (AP).—The Washington Senators baseball club has offered 1,000 passes to Fort Meade soldiers for the tennis game Saturday afternoon in Griffith Stadium, it was announced here today.

The American League club has allotted 700 passes to the Twenty-ninth Division and approximately 300 to other units on the post.

Nine Puppies Dine in the Sophisticated Manner

These cocker spaniel pups were taught to eat from saucers when they were 5 days old because of the illness of their mother. Their owner, Mrs. W. Frank Houston, of Kansas City, prepared the formula and did the teaching so that now, at 5 weeks old, they go to their meals like veterans

Tagging Some of the Bases:

The way things can happen in baseball has never been better illustrated than by the figures involving Washington, the Tigers and the Athletics. Washington has won 10 games out of 14 with the Tigers, the Tigers have won 10 out of 14 with the A's, and the A's have licked the Nats 10 times in 11 attempts this season. It all adds up to a violent ward.

POVICH

The Yankees are at the point now where the only way they can lose the pennant is to beat themselves by one of the all-time worst slumps ever encountered by a league leader. They're 9 full games in front of the second-place Cleveland Indians and 15 games ahead of the third-place Red Sox. None of Joe McCarthy's erstwhile superclubs have ever maintained the torrid pace of his 1941 Yanks who were not supposed to be a superclub. At the start of the season they were just a team that had finished third last year.

If the Indians had any faint ideas of winning the pennant, they have now vanished completely. The Indians lost the pennant while playing the Yankees this season. In 15 games between the two clubs, the Indians have been able to win only 4, and 3 of those triumphs were achieved by Bob Feller.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh yesterday broke up the best shortstop-second base combination in baseball. He benched Ray Mack, who had been teaming with Shortstop Lou Boudreau for two years in a defense movement that made Cleveland's pitching look very good indeed. Peckinpaugh, however, couldn't tolerate Mack's .233 batting average any longer. He benched his second baseman and installed Oscar Grimes at the position. Grimes can't carry Mack's glove, defensively, but he is outhitting Mack by nearly 50 points and, hits being as scarce as they are in the Cleveland line-up, Peck is disposed to gamble on Grimes' fielding.

Grimes Nearly Lost Eyesight

The story of Grimes is somewhat interesting. In Washington last spring he was hit in the face by a line drive during batting practice and for months while he was recovering from a fractured cheekbone the fear was that he would lose the sight of one eye. Manager Vitt wouldn't permit him to play during the rest of the season, and last spring in Florida, Peckinpaugh did not reckon Grimes among the Indians' assets. The suspicion was that Grimes' sight was permanently impaired and that he would get beaned some day with a fast ball. The Indians were afraid he'd get hurt. The only thing hurt was Grimes' feeling. He demanded that he get a chance to play or be released. He got his chance one day in Washington last month and hit a home run and is now one of the Indians' most valued members, besides being the finest utility man in the league.

Bob Feller put his finger on the Indians' weakness the other day when he said, frankly, "no punch." Feller wasn't speaking from any lack of personal success. When he is pitching, he needs very little batting support, as is attested by the fact that he has won no less than six 2-to-1 games this season. But Feller would like to pitch for a pennant-winning team some day and he knows that team won't be the Indians.

This is the year when the Indians muffed their chance to win a pennant. Their next championship is a long way off. Feller is a sure-shot to be in the Army before another season rolls around. He can't miss. He's 22, healthy, without dependents and eager to join the service. The Indians can hardly escape the second division next season or until Feller rejoins the club.

We were speaking of the torrid pace the Yankees have been setting and there are some figures to confirm it. Joe McCarthy's club has won 13 of its last 15 games, 22 out of their last 24 and 36 of their last 42. Even in its super-days the Yankees did no better, and this wasn't supposed to be a super-club.

Tigers Have Hit Toboggan

The American League this year is witnessing the most complete collapse of a pennant winner since the pennant-winning Washington team of 1933 finished no better than seventh in 1934. The Tigers, 1940 champions, have rarely been in the first division this season and are a long way from being even a good ball club. In the same season in which the Tigers lost Hank Greenberg to the Army, the Tigers' pitching has gone sour, Charley Gehringer is batting only .209 and Rudy York isn't hitting .300.

There has been nothing true to form about the Tigers, but the Red Sox have certainly been following the preseason script. Their pitching is a millstone about the necks of the best-hitting club in the league. With the exception of pitching, the Red Sox have as many good ball players as the Yankees, but Boston pitchers still continue to let in runs faster than the best-hitting team in the league can score them.

The most amazing team in the league aside from the Yankees is, of course, the White Sox. Jimmy Dykes' nondescripts are somewhat akin to Chicago's old Hitless Wonders of 1906 except that they are not quite wonders. They are managing, however, to stay in the first division, and it's strictly due to their pitching. The Red Sox could win the pennant with White Sox pitching.

Brownell's Fine Streak Boosts Chances in National Amateur

Duke Graduate, 22, Comes Back Strongly After Year's Links Absence Enforced by Broken Leg

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

For the first time in several years, Washington's golf followers have cause to be excited over the prospects of a home-town boy in a national championship. And take it from me, plenty of links addicts are all pepped up over Bobby Brownell's chances in the National Amateur, August 25-30 at the Omaha Field Club.

The 22-year-old youngster who was kept out of golf virtually the entire 1940 season by a broken leg, has an amazing victory string thus far this season, topped off by his record-smashing performance in the Maryland Open Championship of Tuesday.

Great things have been predicted for Bobby since he won the District championship over his home Manor Course at the tender age of 17 years. While other youngsters have blossomed and faded over the same period, Bobby has been plugging along, getting a little better each year, until now he seems to have about reached the peak.

Learns Putting Secret

Brownell is punching his iron shots this year, something new for him, and the results have been gratifying. He is hitting low, accurate irons and he thinks he has learned the putting secret after a chance conversation with Wiffy Cox.

Bobby had just completed a bad round for him, a 73 over his home course in a pro-amateur tournament in which he putted badly, when he asked Wiffy Cox how the big-time pros putted so consistently well from 15 feet into the cup.

Cox pointed out how they locked their wrists and used a pendulum motion which insured a fairly accurate putt regardless of the green or the pressure.

Bobby went out the next day and played his home course in 64 strokes. Bothered by a cold, he didn't play again until the Maryland Open, in which he broke a 21-year tournament record with rounds of 69 and 67 for 136. Bobby thinks he has it now.

Brownell started out this spring

Leonard Outpitches Newsom; Nats Beat Tigers, 6-1, at Night

17,000 See Nats Defeat Champs

Archie, Early Lead 11-Hit Attack Off Buck, While Dutch Hurls Nine-Hitter

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Nats tapped the Detroit Tigers, their chief source of supply this season, for one more victory last night. Out of the night they fashioned a 6-1 triumph over the Tigers in the presence of 17,000 fans who saw Dutch Leonard out pitch Buck Newsom.

While Big Newsom was alternately clowning, pouting and show-boating, Leonard was pitching a completely workmanlike ball game, holding the Tigers to nine hits and owning a shut out until the ninth inning. Leonard's knuckle ball was bamboozling the Tigers for the most part and not until the ninth did he allow more than one hit in any inning.

The Nats rustled three cheap runs out of Newsom in the early innings as the big pitcher's infield defense betrayed him, but in the eighth they clinched the ball game with a solid three-run uprising that contained four hits.

Featuring that three-run eighth were (1) a two-base bunt by Jake Early that caused Newsom to stomp the ground in high disgust and (2) a surprising three-bagger off the bat of George Case which was laden with two runs.

Before he got the side out in that eighth Newsom was plainly daring Case to steal home from third, going into a long windmill windup as if by invitation. The 17,000 liked it all very much.

George Archie collected 3 of the Nats' 11 hits as the Washingtons licked the Tigers for the tenth in the 14 games this season. Archie's long double to the left-field wall set in motion a Washington run in the fourth inning, and in the fifth he singled to left to get another run home. It was his single to left that commenced the Nats' big eighth.

Bloodworth Helps

Jimmy Bloodworth rated a bow from Leonard in the first inning for his help in turning back the Tigers scoreless. Leonard was in trouble after walking McCosky and pitching a single to Higgins with one out, but Bloodworth whisked him off the spot. On York's grounder to Archie, Bloodworth took a low throw at second unconcernedly and whipped the ball to first for a double play.

A freak play marked the Tiger's second inning. Leonard was again in trouble after Bloodworth botched Radcliffe's grounder for an error with none out, and Sullivan later singled with two out. Newsom struck out on a knuckle ball but the pitch got away from Early. Radcliffe attempted to score from third but Early recovered the ball and beat him to the plate.

The Nats took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Cecil Travis sliced a handle hit into short left for two bases. Jake Early got him home after two were out by pushing a single past Higgins.

Both the Nats and the Tigers ganged up on Newsom to produce Washington's second run. It happened in the fourth inning, which Archie commenced by rapping a long two-begger against the wall in left center. Newsom disposed of Early and Bloodworth but Croucher muffed Leonard's weak grounder and Archie moved to third. Third baseman Frank Higgins scored Archie with a fumble of Case's ground ball.

The Nats were getting their runs cheap from Newsom and they came up with another cheap run in the fourth. With two out Vernon tapped a grounder to Meyer and beat it out. He stole second, aided by Sullivan's high throw, and Archie got him home with a single to left.

Nats Boost Lead

The Nats 3-0 lead zoomed to 6-0 very suddenly in the eighth when for the first time they started to bang Newsom solidly. Achie rapped out his third hit of the night, a single to left, to Newsom's apparent disgust and then the 17,000 fans were privileged to see that baseball rarity—the two-base bunt.

Jake Early laid a clever bunt past Newsom, who was unable to reach the ball and there was general confusion in the Detroit infield. Despite the fact that First Baseman Rudy York was covering the bag, Second Baseman Meyer also broke for first base. Early's ball moved through unprotected territory to the grass beyond the base lines and Archie wound up on third with Early getting two bases on the tap.

Whereupon Jimmy Bloodworth popped a Texas League single into center field and Archie scored with Early moving to third. Dutch Leonard struck out, but George Case didn't. He pasted a long triple over Centerfielder Stainbach's head and two more runs were home.

The Tigers had been hitting Leonard at the rate of one hit per inning for the first seven innings, but they couldn't come up with a run until the ninth. They had men on first and second with none out in the fourth after Bloodworth booted Radcliffe's grounder and Meyer singled to left, but Leonard caused Sullivan to pop up, shoved a third strike past Croucher and disposed of Newsom on a fly to Cramer.

Leonard missed his bid for a shutout in the ninth after he walked Pinch-hitter Charley Gehringer with one out. Bruce Campbell, hitting for Stainbeck, slapped a double against the wall in right field and McCosky got the run home with a single through the box. If the Tigers were scenting anything like a big inning, Leonard dispelled those ideas by striking out Higgins and dispatched York on a pop to Bloodworth for the concluding out.

Gets Strikes-Out Mark

Johnstown, Pa., July 23 (AP).—Little Vic Lombardi, southpaw hurler owned by the Brooklyn Dodgers, tied the Class D, Penn State strikeout record for the second time in five days tonight by fanning 19 men as Johnstown beat Butler, 14 to 2.

Nats Split Umpire's Decisions at Plate in Night Game

D. C. Boxing Shows Set Gate Records

Boxing in the District of Columbia during the last fiscal year was the most profitable since 1934, it was revealed yesterday by the District of Columbia Boxing Commission's seventh annual report. According to the figures set forth by Secretary Dick O'Brien, new records were set for attendance, total gates, individual gates and commission's receipts, despite the fact that fewer shows were held than in any year since 1933.

A gross of $197,428.88 was realized from 40 shows, the report disclosed, with the Joe Louis-Buddy Baer heavyweight championship bout creating a new gate mark of $86,741.77, about three times more than the old standard of $29,831, taken in for the Freddie Miller-Petey Sarron featherweight title affair in 1935. The total receipts for the fiscal year, from June 30, 1940 to June 30, 1941, aggregated $62,353.42, tripling the take of last year.

The District Boxing Commission, which has been under fire for weeks for proposing that two of its members henceforth be paid $3,000 yearly, reaped the tidy gross sum of $18,752.07 from its tax on the gate. The commission's tax was increased from 5 to 10 per cent in November, therefore it was cutting on for the larger amount in all but seven of the 40 shows held. Their biggest slice was, of course, the $9,204.99 from the Louis-Baer show.

Shows $17,000 Balance

With expenses deducted, the commission is expected to show a budget balance of about $17,000, which can be used as strong argument for passage of the bill providing that two members henceforth be remunerated for their services.

The report breaks up the total number of 40 shows into individual promotions which discloses that Joe Turner, with 9 indoor and 12 outdoor cards, was the busiest promoter. There were 11 amateur shows, 6 by the District A. A. U., and 5 by the Golden Gloves. The Ray Alvis-Severine G. Leoffler combine produced two indoor shows at Riverside, and Alvis put on three indoor affairs at Uline Arena and one outdoor at Griffith Stadium. Completing the list were two intercollegiate shows by Columbus University at Turner's Arena.

Boosting the new record gate total was the profitable indoor show, featuring Buddy Baer and Tony Galento, who drew $21,550.16, exceeding the biggest previous indoor gate here by some $19,000. The old mark of $2,844 was set by the Hobo Williams-Howard Scott bout of 1936.

Dodgers Snap Riddle's Streak, Beat Reds, 5-4

Brooklyn Deals Cincinnati Rookie Star First Loss in 12 Games; Hold Tie for Lead

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, July 23.—The Brooklyn Dodgers snapped Elmer Riddle's victory string at 11 by beating Cincinnati here tonight 5-4.

The Dodgers narrowly averted losing their cochampionship of first place in the National League as the Cards had won on the afternoon.

Frank McCormick, Reds' first baseman, was hit on the back of the head by a fast-pitched ball by Kirby Higbe, of the Dodgers, and carried from the field on a stretcher.

McCormick, most valuable National League player last season, was the first man up in the last half of the fifth and had fouled the first ball and taken a called strike on the second when the pitch felled him.

Extent of his injuries were not immediately determined. He was taken to Christ Hospital for observation.

Rookie Chuck Aleno took first base to play the remainder of the game.

The Reds gave Riddle a four-run lead by battering Kirby Higbe for eight hits, but the battling Dodgers used singles by Billy Herman, Dixie Walker and Ducky Medwick in the sixth, together with a wild throw by Bill Werber on Pete Reiser's bouncer, to score two runs, then added three more in the eighth.

Reiser led off the eighth-inning rally with a double and scored on Harry Lavagetto's single. Walker singled and advanced on Medwick's foul out, and both runners scored on Jimmy Wasdell's base blow to center.

Frank McCormick, Redleg first-baseman, was beaned by Kirby Higbe in the fifth and replaced by Chuck Aleno. Conscious, McCormick was carried from the field on a stretcher.

At Christ Hospital X-rays showed no fracture, but a possible mild concussion, Dr. Reed Shank, Reds physician, reported, adding that McCormick might be able to play in Friday game. Tonight's game was the 549th consecutive one for McCormick, voted the league's most valuable player last year.

Cards Enter First Place For 4 Hours

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 23.—The St. Louis Cardinals, refusing to be harassed, captured at least temporary possession of the National League today by wringing out a 5-to-4 victory over the New York Giants in 12 innings.

But the Redbirds slipped back into a tie for the lead when the Dodgers edged out Cincinnati, 5-4, in a night game.

St. Louis should have won over the regulation distance. For eight innings Lon Warneke held the Giants to two hits and rolled into the ninth with a 4-2 lead.

New York had scored in the fourth on Johnny Rucker's single, a walk, a forceout and Mel Ott's long fly to Enos Slaughter. Babe Young had accounted for the other hit and run with his eleventh homer in the seventh.

Cooper Gets Four Straight Hits

In the meantime the cards had pounced on Cliff Melton for eight hits and four runs in seven innings. Walker Cooper, who made four straight hits, doubled a run home in the second, Slaughter tripled with two on in the sixth and Terry Moore singled a run across in the seventh.

Then with two out in the ninth Warneke walked Ott and Hank Danning and Young hit successive doubles to tie the score.

Bill Crouch was rushed to the mound, but it was too late. Three other hurlers later saw service for the Cardinals and Lefty Ernie White, who worked only the twelfth, received credit for his second victory in two days and his ninth of the season against three defeats.

Each team loaded the bases in the eleventh without scoring, but in the twelfth Frank (Creepy) Crespi opened with a single, was sacrificed to second by Terry Moore, went to third on a wild pitch by Carl Hubbell and scampered home on a single by Estel Crabtree. The defeat was charged against Hubbell, who went to the mound in the eleventh, and broke his seven game winning streak.

BOBBY FELLER ON THE DRAFT

New York, July 23.—"I expect to get my draft classification while I'm on this Eastern trip," Bobby Feller told us as we sat around his room, high up in a New York hotel, waiting for the time to come to catch a subway to the Yankee Stadium.

CONSIDINE

"I made out my questionnaire five weeks ago and I think it's just about time for me to hear where they class me. Yeah, I saw that story you wrote out of Fort Worth, about what Tris Speaker would do if I came up before the Cleveland Draft Board Tris serves on. But I'll come up before another one. Tris said he'd recommend a 60-day deferment for me, in case the baseball season wasn't over. But I'm not going to ask for anything that any other fellow doesn't get.

"Here's the way I feel about the draft," the earnest kid continued. "I want to serve because I think every healthy fellow should. I don't want any cheap publicity about it. I'm not overestimating my importance. When I get in that Army I'll just be another guy. I want to be treated like everybody else. I want what's coming to me, but I don't want any favors that the others don't get."

'What Kinda Zoo You Got Here?'

Looking at Bob and listening to him talk made our mind wander back to an early spring day in 1937. He had come to New York with the Indians to pitch an exhibition game against the Giants. It was, we believe, his first trip here.

The baseball world was just beginning to realize that in Feller it had the makings of an immortal sports figure. But Bob wasn't much interested in that. We remember he sat in the window of a room in this same hotel, looking out over the city with a slight hang-jawed awe. "What kinda zoo they got in this town?" he asked us, shyly.

Few kids would have character enough to stay as regular as Feller has stayed, if subjected to as much acclaim as has been visited upon Feller since that day he inquired about the zoo. The fellow's a born champion, and always will be. He's as approachable today, though burdened down with responsibilities he never knew existed, as he was when he worked on the hotdog stand at the Cleveland ball park, awaiting the chance to prove his greatness. So far as is known no one ever has heard him complain once over the fact that his induction into the Army will cost him about $50,000 per baseball season for the time he misses while serving.

How to Pitch to Joe DiMaggio

We asked Bob which is tougher to pitch to, Joe DiMaggio or Ted Williams, and he answered without hesitation.

"Williams," he said. "Not that Joe isn't tough. He's plenty tough. The fact is Joe seems to be getting better. He hits a ball farther to right field than he used to, when we first came in the league. That means you can't pitch him outside any more. I pitch to him so he'll hit straight away. What I mean by that is I pitch to him so he won't pull the ball into left, or punch it into right. If he hits straight away there's more chance that it can be fielded or caught.

"But, still, Joe's not as tough as Ted Williams. At least not for me. Ted's a left-hander, of course, which means that he should do a little better against me than a right-hander like Joe. But honestly I just can't get that guy out. I can't throw my fast ball past him, and I haven't got enough curve to fool him. I'm not kidding you when I say that I feel pretty lucky when he hits a single off my curve ball. If I give him my fast one he triples."

Bob turned down $5,000 from a cigarette company not long ago. He had a very novel reason for rejecting the indorsement money. "I don't smoke," he explained to the flabbergasted advertising man.

C. C. Slapnicka, who handles most of Bob's business affairs, had a movie more or less lined up for him that fall. "But I think the draft will wipe that out," Feller said. "Maybe it's just as well. They'd certainly have to pack a lot of baseball into that script to make me okay. I know dam' well I can't act."

V. DiMaggio's Double Beats Phils for Bucs

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, July 23.—Vince DiMaggio's ringing fourth inning double with the bases filled was the deciding blow tonight which helped Pittsburgh defeat Philadelphia 5 to 2 and move to within one game of the fourth place New York Giants.

Cy Blanton had held his former Pirate teammates hitless until the fourth. Bob Elliott singled with one out and both Elbie Fletcher and Maurice Van Robays walked, setting the stage for DiMaggio's hit into left. All three runners counted, Van Robays being aided by Dan Litwhiler's fumble. DiMaggio brought in the fourth run of the inning when Merrill May fumbled Al Lopez' grounder.

The triumph was the nineteenth with no losses for the Bucs in the past month, the fastest pace of the league.

Hayes' Homer Beats Browns For A's, 5-4

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 23.—The Athletics nosed out the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4, tonight with the aid of Frankie Hayes, who homered in the sixth with one on base. John Berardino hit a home run for St. Louis with one aboard in the seventh.

A crowd of more than 12,000 saw the Athletics overcome a one-run deficit in the fifth inning to take a lead they never relinquished. Hayes led off with a single and advanced to third on Pete Suder's double. Les McCrabb beat out an infield hit to fill the bases and Brownie Pitcher Dennie Galehouse walked Al Brancato to force in Hayes. Wally Moses' fly to Roy Cullenbine scored Suder.

Jockey Palumbo Drives Royal Business to Bel Air Victory

Mare Beats Field of 10 In Inaugural

Six-Year-Old Wins By Neck Margin; Shambles Equals Course Record

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Bel Air, Md., July 23—Capt. Ewart Johnston's Royal Business and Jockey Sammy Palumbo, a combination feared on the small tracks, teamed to account for the Bel Air Inaugural Purse, featuring the opening-day program here in Harford County. Given a perfectly timed ride, Royal Business came from last position in a field of ten to win by a neck margin over Mrs. J. B. Belk's Blustering. Four lengths farther back came George Perry's Fair Hero to be third in the test of 7 furlongs.

Maryland's fastest-growing race track drew a crowd of 10,000 and furnished a thrilling day at the races. For the most part the victory margins were close. Favorites and longshots had their innings under a bright sky and over a fast track. The track record for a mile was equaled by A. L. Leith's Shambles, winner of the fifth event. The $32.70 shot was clocked in 1:39 3-5, matching the mark held by Waugh Pop.

Royal Business had a fair backing in the feature and paid $7.80 for the usual deuce investment. The 6-year-old mare was clocked in 1:27 1-5, only three-fifths of a second over the track mark for the seven-eighths of a mile.

Winner Not Hurried

Palumbo did not hurry Royal Business. He allowed the mare to settle into her best stride. Weatherite, Fair Hero and Miss Buzzard burned the oil out in front of the pack, with the first named opening a three-length lead on the backstretch. When Royal Business began to move, Palumbo found racing room on the inside. He banked the mare into the stretch and then set out after Blustering. Royal Business wore down her rival and was going away at the end. Blustering, however, had an excuse. She ran out badly at the first turn.

The daily double combination was that of "9 and 6." In the first race, Mrs. V. P. Noyes' Malvois drove home ahead of Voucher and White Sea. In the second event, Egypta proved a winner under the handling of Jockey A. F. Martinez. The double paid $43.80.

Betting for the day was above the $200,000 mark.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MALVOIS, $6.00, $3.10, $2.70; VOUCHER, $3.40, 3.10; WHITE SEA, $6.40.

MALVOIS had good speed from the start and withstood repeated challenges of VOUCHER to hang on with excellent courage. VOUCHER raced forwardly on the outside of the pacemaker and fought it out with good courage. WHITE SEA, sluggish early, saved ground and closed with good energy. CASAD was a keen forward factor and weakened in the stretch.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:56. Off at 2:56½. Winner, Norman Coe's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EGYPTA, $9.20, $4.40, $3.90; CHANCER, 4.00, $3.20; BARRACA, $11.60.

EGYPTA, well placed from the start while racing on the outside, responded when put to pressure and wore down CHANCER to win going away. CHANCER had keen speed to set the pace, but could not resist the winner while closing gamely. BARRACA lacked speed early and closed gamely. JAMES PAL was strongly handled and had no excuses.

Daily Double—MALVOIS and EGYPTA Paid $43.80.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LONE GALLANT, $16.30, $6.30, $3.90; QUAKERSTREET, 5.80, $4.50; WAR PORT, $7.30.

LONE GALLANT was not hurried for the mile, came to the outside while improving his position sharply and held QUAKERSTREET safe in the closing stages. QUAKERSTREET made repeated moves while closest to WAR PORT'S pace and closed willingly. WAR PORT set a good pace, but was tiring at the end. CORKY was not a serious factor at any stage.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:03. Winner, A. E. Settler's br. f. (3), by Identify—Rock Gold. Trained by J. T. Sadler. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, 50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:28⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS IDENTIFY, $6.30, $4.80, $3.60; RAPID II, $12.30, $6.90; SCOOTIE, $4.00.

MISS IDENTIFY took command in the opening quarter, shook off SCOOTIE and held on gamely at the end. RAPID II moved up boldly under green handling in the stretch and fought it out willingly. SCOOTIE was hard ridden in the first flight and tired. IDA TIME was off slightly and closed some ground.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SHAMBLES, $32.70, $12.60, $7.20; PLAY GOLD, $9.20, $6.70; ALPINE BOY, 5.90.

SHAMBLES lacked early speed, came out for racing room and wore down PLAY GOLD in the final stages. PLAY GOLD went to the front on the backstretch, drew clear, but could not resist the winner. ALPINE BOY WAS well placed throughout and pulled up lame. SHALLEEN was pinched off while racing on the inside and closed gamely.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:02. Off at 5:04. Winner, Ewart Johnston's b. m. (6), by Sun Meadow—Pretty Business. Trained by O. F. Kent. Value to winner, $700; second, 150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:27⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL BUSINESS, $7.80, $3.80, $3.20; BLUSTERING, $11.70, $5.80; FAIR HERO, $4.50.

ROYAL BUSINESS, allowed to settle into her best stride, came to the inside to improve her position and, under vigorous handling, disposed of BLUSTERING in the final 20 yards. BLUSTERING ran to the outside fence at the first turn, rallied to take the lead, but was unable to resist the winner. FAIR HERO set and forced the pace and weakened. MISS BUZZARD showed a good effort.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:34. Off at 5:35½. Winner, A. R. Cremen's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARTHA'S QUEEN, $30.10, $11.70, $6.40; STREAMER, $8.40, $5.20; RHODIUM, $6.60.

MARTHA'S QUEEN, well placed from the start, came gamely when placed to a drive and appeared to bother STREAMER. Scocca's foul claim against the winner was not allowed. STREAMER was steadied while in the first flight, moved up when asked and closed willingly. RHODIUM came out for racing room and closed with good energy on the outside. PEPPERY saved ground early and lacked racing room in the stretch run.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 6:07. Off at 6:08½. Winner, G. P. Sherman's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CUSTER, $8.30, $5.10, $3.60; SHORTS, $8.10, $6.40; SEA FINN, $7.80.

CUSTER went to the front with a bold rush on the backstretch and drew out to win easily. SHORTS was well placed from the start, moved up menacingly leaving the backstretch and hung in the final test. SEA FINN was a forward factor from the start and weakened in the final stages. RIVER BROOM was held safe throughout.

Selections at Bel Air

Jockey Eddie Churchill escaped injury when the plater Millray dropped dead while running in the second race yesterday. The consensus of opinion was that Millray suffered a heart attack. Charlie Ulbig has taken over the making of riding engagements for Jockey A. F. Martinez. Guy Owens, who once had the book of George Woolf, is getting mounts here for Jockey Churchill. Although it obstructs the view of the backstretch, we have never heard a kick about the big tree in the infield here. It is a masterpiece of Mother Nature's and is the track mascot. W. P. Cox wants me to remind the Benningites that there is a special B. & O. train, leaving Union Station at 11:45 for the track with dining car and everything. Perhaps you didn't notice but yesterday's races were conducted without the usual bugle call. The phonograph record of the call was missing. Tommy Daly has promised to have one on hand today. The new clubhouse gives the plant a big league look. William Postal is back on the job after a week's vacation. Former Jockey Johnny Haley, who is now a trainer, saddled his first winner when Lone Gallant won the steeplechase. Jockey Willie Kelly saw the racing from the ground. He arrived too late to get mounts and will swing into action today. Sammy Palumbo gave Royal Business a perfect ride to win the feature. He came back after two weeks lay off and did 110½ pounds. Wilmer Brinton has been offered the leadership of the proposed half-mile track at Ocean City, Md. If the oval is built it may operate in August along with Cumberland. Humphrey Finney, No. 1 breeding authority hereabouts and Editor of the Maryland Horse as well as secretary of the Maryland Racing Writers, was a visitor. John Manfuso also reported. He will be showing some little Aneroids this time next year. See you on the rail—BILL.

First race—PIMLICO POLLY turned in an encouraging race at Delaware and may be the right one in this rather open affair. JOHN'S BUDDY was a lucky winner at Hagerstown but is speedy. AUBALEY breaks from the No. 1 gate and is a threat.

Second race—LADY'S BEAU was ridden all over the track last out With improved handling this one should down these cheap platers. EMMA H. did not like the other track and should go well. SINGLE PLY missed as a good thing recently.

Third race—BAHAMA KNIGHT was a winner at Delaware Park and any price will be a good one in this steeplechase company. ROSSMAN had speed on the flat and is likely to be close. FOREST RANGER has schooled well.

Fourth race—GRAEME CRACKER was poorly handled last out. With a stronger rider, I see no reason for mistakes. STADIUM gets in light and promises to be a threat. SUNNY ROSE has been rested and should go well.

Fifth race—VESTALE seems to have what it takes to collect this purse. I'm going to string along. MISS SELECTION will be a keen figure in this company. IVY X. and YANKEE LAD are possibilities.

Sixth race—BRAXTON won at Delaware Park and seems to be able to beat this kind. J. HAL is better than generally rated and will be a keen contender. WELSH LAD belongs close with these.

Seventh race—CORORA downed a somewhat similar field at the other town and I'm going to string along. TAR MISS will be a factor if taken off the reserve list. BARDY for the minor award.

Eighth race—WORTHOWNING, in present form, is a tough customer and I'm going to stay with him. SANTIAGO should go well with these. TIME SCOUT to take care of the others.

Best bet—BRAXTON.

1—Chief Teddy, Abbots Chant, Hi Toots.
2—Snuggle, Transday, Lady's Beau.
3—Atoll, Bahama Knight, Sir Ford.
4—Miss Neptune, Meadow Gold, High Bud.
5—Credence, Miss Selection, Vestale.
6—Tyr, Bullet B., Clocks.
7—Kelly's Lad, Solo Dash, Bardy.
8—Time Scout, Worthowning, Justa Jimmie.
Best bet—Miss Neptune.

Dalby Scores Upset Over Harry Brinkerhoff, Jr., in Tennis

Stocklinski Wins Over Phil Burkom

Kenyon College Junior Shows Well-Balanced Power in Victory

Like a Jack-in-the-box, unseeded Ken Dalby sprung full into the spotlight in the Public Parks tennis championships yesterday at the Reservoir courts. With his second straight upset victory the Kenyon College boy knocked off fourth-ranking Harry Brinkeroff, jr., 6—1, 6—3, in the quarter-finals and in doing so he struck fear into the hearts of his prospective future rivals.

Especially impressed with Ken's youthful vigor must have been top-seeded veteran Ray Stocklinski who caught the last part of Dalby's exhibition just after staggering through his quarter-finals match with Phil Burkom, No. 1 University of Maryland player. "Stock" had to dig deep into his bag of strokes to whip Burkom, 3—6, 6—3, 6—2, in a battle of human bankboards.

Shows Driving Attack

Dalby, a junior at the college which turned out National Singles Champion Don McNeill and other noted netmen, displayed a powerful and well-balanced driving attack in overpowering Brinkerhoff, son of the professional at the host courts. Conversely, Stocklinski, who finds scant time to practice what with work in the day time and law school five nights a week, was hardly impressive in beating Burkom, court-coverer of catlike agility.

Dalby and Stocklinski thus completed the semifinal bracket, which already included second-seeded Eddie Miller, the University of Maryland sophomore flash, and third-seeded Bobby Bensinger, 1939 national boys indoor titleholder.

Semifinal matches are scheduled Friday evening, with Dalby facing Miller and Stocklinski meeting Bensinger.

Only other match yesterday was a doubles quarterfinals in which Ritzenberg and Haney disposed of Sowers and Myskowski, 6—4, 6—3. Semifinal doubles today will bring together top-seeded Bensinger and Freer and Ritzenberg and Haney at 5 p. m., and Smith and Herbert and Miller and Brinkerhoff at 5:30.

Reliance Life Blanks H. & J.; Takes Third

One-hit pitching by Reliance Life Insurance's Warren Earhardt, former George Washington star, blanked H. and J. Construction, 7-0, in a Post Industrial League game on the West Ellipse yesterday. The victory put Reliance in third place in the league, replacing Heurich Brewers.

George Oertel, center fielder, and Len Sokol, second baseman, led the attack for the winner, by getting three hits each for four times at bat.

Errickson's Pitching Beats Cubs, 6 to 1

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 23.—Dick Errickson pitched the Boston Braves to a seven-hit, 6 to 1 victory over the Chicago Cubs today to even their series at one game each.

The Braves settled the outcmoe with a five-hit, four-run assault on starting Pitcher Vance Page in the fifth frame. Boston collected a total of 12 hits off Page, Larry French and Paul Erickson, Max West getting three singles.

The Cubs bunched three hits for their lonely tally in the fifth, but Errickson was tight in the pinches the remainder of the game.

Adair's Speed Beats Lewis at White Sulphur

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 23.—Buddy Adair, of Washington, successfully called upon speed today to combat the perfect control of Stanley Lewis and eliminated the Cincinnati veteran from the West Virginia Open Amateur Tennis Tournament, 6—4, 6—2.

Lewis, making and placing his shots faultlessly, was beaten only by the speed fo the younger player and Lewis' own inability to cover the court fast enough. The victory sent Adair into the second round.

Deacon Parsons, of Huntington, four times West Virginia closed tennis champion, awakened from a lethargic start just in time to trounce Ed Deleon, of Cleveland, 7—5, 6—3, in a second-round match.

In the women's division, Mary Ann Davis, of Columbus, Ohio, had no trouble eliminating Helen Burt, of Wheeling, 6—0, 6—0.

D. C. Firemen Suffer First Softball Defeat

The District Firemen suffered their first defeat of the season last night when they were downed by the Pepco ten, 3 to 2, in a National Night League game at the Washington Softball Stadium.

Young Ken Thomas, Pepco pitcher, held the Firemen to five scattered hits as his teammates scored twice in the first and were immediately tied as the Firemen scored in the second and third. In the eighth, Pepco's Tate walked, went to third on Baldwin's single, and scored on Beach's hard infield grounder.

In a Capital City League game, Harold Steffes, of the Fat Boy ten, allowed May Hardware two hits as his team won, 10 to 1. Jack Trench, Fat Boy center fielder, continued his hitting streak as he hit safely for the ninth time in his last ten times up. He got three for three trips up, including a home run.

Yellow Cab will meet Carr Brothers and Boswell in the Capital City League when "Bump" Simonds will pitch against Tommy Dobyns at 8 p. m. Kavakos Grill meets Pepco in the second game at 9:15 tonight.

City Open Negro Tennis Dates Set

Men's and women's city open Negro tennis championships will be held on the Banneker courts, August 9 to 16, according to a D. C. Recreation Department announcement yesterday.

Trophies and medals will be awarded to the winners of men's singles, men's doubles, women's singles and mixed doubles. Prospective players may contact Joseph Cole, chairman, at 1740 Massachusetts Avenue, or Edward Davis at the Banneker Recreation Center.

Chevy Chase Dodgers Beat Bethesda Barons

The Chevy Chase Dodgers won their seventh straight game yesterday by beating the Bethesda Barons, 3 to 2, in 10 innings. Nino Briscuso, Wilson High hurler, drove in the winning run and struck out 13 men to star for the Dodgers.

Son of Equipoise, Equifox, Wins Race Named for Sire

Chicago, July 23.—Howard Wells' Equifox, a winner only last Saturday in a $7,500 added stake race, came back today to capture the first running of the $5,000 added Equipoise Mile Handicap at the Arlington Park race track.

The Woolford Farm Technician was second and Huntley & Shef's Dog House third.

The 4-year-old son of Equipoise and Catherine Fox took 1:38 1/5 to cover the mile which his daddy ran June 30, 1932, in 1:34 2/5 for the track record.

The winner, piloted by Al Craig, paid $13.20, $6.40 and $5.20 across the board. Technician was $4.20 to place and $3.20 to show. Dog House paid $6.40 on the show end.

Sirocco, winner of last year's Arlington classic, was fourth, and Gallahadion, 1940 Kentucky Derby winner, fifth. Montsin and Shaun G. rounded out the field.

Gun Club to Hold Shoot Saturday

The Washington Gun Club will hold a memorial shoot to honor C. S. Wilson, for many years president of the association, Sautrday afternoon.

The program will be at 150 targets, 100 16-yard and 50 handicap, with yardages based on registered averages. Walter Wilson, son of the president and present holder of the District championship to the high club member, active or associate, on the proram.

Traps will be open for practice at noon, with actual matches starting at 1:30. Grounds of the club adjoin the Potomac Electric Power Co. at Thirty-fourth Street and Benning Road Northeast.

Costello Post Tops Cooley Team, 3-2, For 1st Half Title

Costello Post, No. 15, won the second half title in the Junior American Legion Baseball series yesterday with a 3-2 victory over Cooley-McCullough Post, and the right to represent the city in the national championships.

Costello Post had won the first half series without the loss of a game and lost only once in the second half.

Bill Carroll pitched a three-hitter for the winners and after his mates rallied for three runs in the eighth Carroll fanned the side in the ninth.

Indian Girl Wrestler Meets Gladys Gillam at Turner's

Celia Blevins, Cherokee Indian girl wrestler, who learned the art of catch-as-catch-can grappling from her father, will make her bow tonight at Turner's Arena. She will meet Gladys Gillem in a feature finish match.

Rivaling this match will be the battle between the two-man teams composed of Lou Plummer and Eddie Newman, and Maurice LaChappelle and Ace Freeman.

Two 30-minute bouts are on tap. The first, starting at 8:30, will bring together Eddie Cook, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Roy Clements, of Texas. In the other Pat Fraley, who has wrestled in 18 foreign countries, will make his 1941 debut against Milo Steinborn, the Memphis Strong Man.

The winner of the bout between the Misses Blevins and Gillem will meet Mildred Burke, the recognized champion, in the next few weeks.

In the two-man scrap Plummer, who calls himself the brains, and Newman, who says he's the brawn, will seek to halt the three-match streak of LaChappelle and Newman. Twice already Newman has been on the losing end of two-man bouts against Freeman and LaChappelle, and finally he called on his old partner, Plummer, to help win back some of his lost prestige.

Bedford Open To Draw Many D. C. Golfers

Next stop on the tournament program for the District golfers is the $500 Bedford (Pa.) Open Championship Monday, to be preceded by a pro-amateur on Sunday which will draw a majority of the District's top-notch amateurs.

The Bedford event is the principal reason for indefinitely postponing the Washington-Baltimore intercity team match scheduled for Sunday. The event may be canceled for the year.

Al Houghton, three-time winner of the Bedford tournament, will lead the District contingent which will probably include Leo Walper, Lew Worsham, Cliff Spencer, George Diffenbaugh, Al Tredor, Fred Bolton and Mel Shorey, plus their amateur partners, most of whom will stay over for the Open.

The annual York, Pa., pro-amateur is scheduled the same day, but Fred McLeod is the only District pro expected to compete.

Local amaters are reminded that entries for the National Amateur Championship close Friday, August 1, with the U. S. G. A. offices in New York. The championship will be held in Omaha.

Al Hoghton has not announced a definite date for the Washington Open, an event of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. to be played Monday, August 4.

Next on the list for the women golfers is the N. B. C. Cup, to be played August 4 at Columbia for the Class A golfers.

St. Paul Golfers Practice in Heat

St. Paul, July 23.—The thermometer came to the rescue of par and so the old man of the links didn't take the licking today that the smart boys thought he would in practice rounds for the $7,500 St. Paul Open Golf Tournament.

There were some par-busting scores over the Keller course but with the temperature doing 100 degrees or better most of the warm-up rounds for the Open, which starts Friday, were devoted to cooling off the contestants.

As a result only a handful turned in subpar rounds. Jimmy Thompson, the long hitter from Massachusetts, had the best score, a 4-under par 68. Jimmy Hines had a 69, while Clarence Yockey, Topeka, Kans.; Bill Kaiser, Louisville, and Johnny Bulla, Chicago, turned in 70's and Ralph Guldahl got a 71.

Brownell Bears D. C. Golf Hopes

by winning the Southern Intercollegiate championship while on a trip with his Duke golf team.

More Victories

He came home three days after graduating from Duke and with a schoolmate, Hank Russell, won the Bannockburn Invitation Tournament without being extended. The following week he visited Hot Springs, Va., and came home with the Middle Atlantic Amateur championship, winning every match by a margin of four up, or better. He just missed the medal when he slipped on the seventeenth tee and took a six.

His next tournament stop was the National Intercollegiates, where he qualified with a 73-71 and won three matches before losing in the quarterfinals to Earl Stewart, who went on to wn the title. Stewart was one of his Southern Intercollegiate victims.

Then Brownell's Maryland Open performance was one of the greatest 36-hole scoring feats ever recorded in this section.

Bobby has filed his National Amateur entry. He's going to take it easy next week with a vacation at Ocean City, Md., and then come back to work on his game for the big tournament. He is a prohibitive favorite to win a local qualifying place at the Country Club of Maryland, and if he comes through he will leave here carrying Washington's hopes for national recognition in golf, something that has not been attained since the George Voight-Roland MacKenzie era.

Washer Officials Protest

The OPACS proposal for a 30 per cent cut in the production of household washers will have a severe effect on both the industry and the consumer if it is carried through to execution, according to W. Neal Gallagher, Newton, Iowa, president of the American Washer and Ironer Manufacturers' Association, who arrived in Washington yesterday for conferences designed to ease the embargo.

Mr. Gallagher is accompanied by the members of the association's executive committee, its advisory board and industry leaders who will join him in representations regarding the seriousness of the laundering equipment production outlook.

He predicted that 75 per cent of the industry's factory employes as well as many salesmen and other representatives throughout the country would find themselves unemployed if the reduction schedule and further threatened cuts become effective.

Significant Factors Cited

The magazine Banking, publication of the American Bankers Association, reports "six factors of major significance now standing out on the business horizon."

These were listed as: Increasing prices, growing indifference of the public toward public debt, increased Government financing, priorities, taxes and the downward trend of profits and money rates.

In its monthly poll of 3,000 bank officials throughout the United States, Banking found 79 per cent reporting business activity increasing, compared with 80 per cent last month; 18 per cent reporting no change, compared with 16 per cent last month, and 3 per cent noting a decline, compared with 4 per cent last month.

Oil Heater Industry Fears Output Cut

New York, July 23 (AP).—Possibility that the Office of Production Management might order a 20 to 25 per cent cut in the output of oil heaters was discussed in manufacturing circles today.

W. A. Mathison, vice president of the Williams Oil-O-Matic Heating Corp., speaking at a sales meeting, said conferences in Washington indicated such a reduction inevitably would be necessary.

He urged inspection of present heating equipment as part of a "war on waste" with a view of saving oil.

Trend Indefinite as Stocks Move Narrowly In Light Deals; Rail Issues Are Buoyant

New York, July 23.—There was some mild tossing and heaving in today's stock market and the results were about a standoff in the matter of narrow advances and declines.

Rails and a few rubber stocks, oils and industrial specialties emerged with gains. Steels were ahead for a time, but most of their betterment was surrendered before the end. Motors were on the soft side throughout.

Speculative forces were inclined to trim commitments in parts of the list because of the flattening out of the upward curve on Tuesday after prices had pushed up to the highest average since last January. The question was whether that setback might have marked the beginning of an extended reaction from the July rise or was just a temporary slide.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite dipped .1 of a point to 44. Dealings dropped off to 625,480 shares from 1,350,630 the previous day, which was the second largest since November 12. Of 761 issues traded, 289 rose, 247 were lower and 223 were unchanged.

The business and foreign news budget, if anything, tended to broaden the optimism that has taken root in Wall Street boardrooms since securities started their climb early this month. But, excepting the rails and a scattering of industrials, sentiment had little effect on buying power. A forecast of further expansion in carloadings tended to support bullish ideas on the carriers.

Motors were without symptoms of recovery even after the financial district had read that William S. Knudsen, director of OPM, had declared that an arbitrary 50 per cent cut in automobile production, as urged by Price Administrator Leon Henderson, would cause serious unemployment.

Stocks making fractional progress or more included Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Great Northern preferred, Texas Corporation, Goodrich, United States Rubber, American Sugar, duPont, Boeing and Owens-Illinois. Wright Aeronautical jumped 8 points to 120, a 1941 peak. Pathe also edged into new high ground for the year.

On the offside were General Motors, Chrysler, United States Steel, Republic, Harvester, American Can and American Telephone.

In the Curb American Gas & Electric and Humble Oil recorded small gains. American Cyanamid and Gulf Oil dipped. Transfers here were around 126,000 shares against 171,000 yesterday.

The bond market cooled off considerably today from Tuesday's fast trading and, on average, prices were shaded. There were numerous firm spots throughout the list, however, particularly in the rails.

Total transfers of $6,683,150, par value, were far below the $11,407,400 turnover of the day before. The rails, utilities and foreign group in the Associated Press averages were a bit lower, the industrials remained stationary and the low yields gained .1 of a point.

Profit taking was blamed by brokers for the side-wise performance.

Japan 6½s dropped 5½ points to 74 and the 5½s lost 1⅛ at 55 on sale of two bonds each.

United Governments were a bit lower on both the stock exchange and over the counter.

Hungerford Quits As Head of C.N.R.; Vaughan at Helm

Montreal, July 23 (AP).—The directors of the Canadian National Railways announced today the resignation of S. J. Hungerford as president of the system.

R. C. Vaughan, now vice president in charge of purchases, stores and steamships, was appointed to succeed Hungerford as president.

H. J. Symington will succeed Hungerford as president of Trans-Canada Air Lines, from which he also resigned. Hungerford becomes chairman of the board of Canadian National Railways.

Vaughan, the new C. N. R. president, was born in Toronto 57 years ago and started his railway career as a messenger boy with the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. at 14.

When Sir Henry Thornton resigned as president of the C. N. R. in 1932, Hungerford was appointed acting president. In 1936, the appointment was confirmed and he was made chairman of the board of directors.

Two Magazines Merged Into One

Scotch Plains, N. J., July 23 (AP).—Spencer Brodney, editor of the magazine Events, announced today the purchase of the magazine Current History and Forum and its ultimate merger with Events.

Breakup Plan Filed With SEC By Am. Power

By the Associated Press

New York, July 23.—American Power & Light Co., holding firm for 16 utilities companies serving 1,447 communities in the Middle West and West, filed today with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington a plan by which it seeks to comply with the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.

The act provides that holding companies must limit their control of operating companies to integrated systems in clearly defined areas.

American Power, the largest unit in the Electric Bond & Share Co. system (Electric Bond & Share owns 20 per cent of its stock), proposed to the SEC that:

Its preferred and common stocks be reclassified into one new class of common stock, but leaves the basis of distribution open for further discussion;

Its funded debt be discharged by available cash and sale of securities;

It dispose of four of its present integrated utilities systems and retain the remaining two.

Howard L. Aller, president of American Power, wrote stockholders:

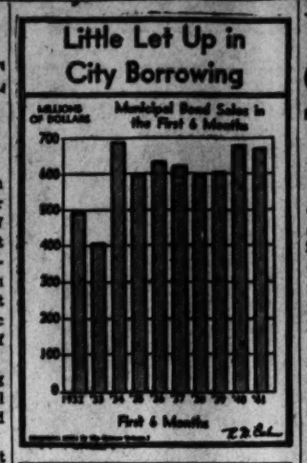
"Briefly, it may be said that the company claims in its plan that its system compress six integrated public utility systems, consisting of the Northwestern group of properties, the Texas group, the Kansas-Nebraska group, the Minnesota-Superior group, Florida Light & Power Co., and Central Arizona Light & Power Co., and claims the right to elect any two of these groups as the integrated systems which it is entitled to retain. . . ."

Aller said the company's securities are held by about 34,000 stockholders in all States of the United States, in 5 foreign possessions and in 25 foreign nations. The company's consolidated gross revenues was 108 million dollars in 1940.

Huge Magnesium Plant Planned in Louisiana

New York, July 23 (AP).—Mathieson Alkali Works plan to build a magnesium plant at Lake Charles, La., to produce 15,000 to 20,000 tons of the lightweight metal annually, it was learned today.

The factory would cost approximately 16 million dollars and would take about a year to build. Plans were subject to approval of the Defense Plant Corporation, through which the Federal Government would finance the construction.



Copper Futures Trade Suspended By N. Y. Market

New York, July 23 (AP).—Governors of the Commodity Exchange, Inc., have decided to suspend trading in copper futures indefinitely.

Commodity Exchange officials believed this action was necessary in view of the various OPM regulations which have made it increasingly difficult to make deliveries of the actual commodity against futures contracts.

On May 6, of this year, dealings in copper futures were restricted to liquidation of open contracts. At the same time a new contract was inaugurated but not a single trade ever was executed.

All firms who now hold open interests in copper futures were directed by the governors to attend a special committee meeting Friday to discuss the manner and terms upon which outstanding interests will be liquidated.

The red metal is the first of the Government-regulated commodities actually to be withdrawn from the free markets.

U. S. Lead Supply Continues to Slump

New York, July 23 (AP).—Lead stocks on hand at the end of last June had dropped to only 24,265 tons, 10,000 tons under the previous month and 30,000 under June, 1940, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported today.

Production for June, 1941, was ahead of June 1940, at 48,224 tons against 42,306 but dropped far under that of May, 1941, which was 60,509.

Domestic shipments were recorded as 57,969 tons for last month against 69,382 in May, 1941, and 49,904 in June 1940.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 23 (AP).—Purchases of July contracts to obviate the necessity of making delivery before the end of the month helped to strengthen prices of all grains today, wheat rising as much as 3 cents at one time. Trading in July deliveries ended with this session.

Buying was done by dealers who had sold July futures "short" and thus were obligated to deliver.

Strength of wheat also was attributed to buying of commercial interests, including mills, which accompanied disclosure that large-scale flour sales the past week constituted the best business of the year, at least in the Southwest. Reports of crop deterioration in Canada and high temperatures in the domestic spring wheat area had a bullish effect.

Wheat closed ⅝ to 1¾ cents higher than yesterday; July, 1.02⅝@1.03¼; September, 1.04⅜@1.04⅝. Corn, ⅛ off to ⅛ up; July, 73¼@73; September, 75⅛. Oats, ⅜ to 1⅛ higher. Rye unchanged to ⅛ up. Soybeans unchanged to 3⅜ lower, and lard 2 to 8 lower.

New York Cotton

New York, July 23 (AP).—Commission house liquidation and local selling on reports the Government might sell portions of its loan stocks dropped cotton futures prices $2.05 to $2.15 a bale today, the market closing near the day's poorest levels.

Numerous stop-loss orders uncovered at just under 16 cents a pound stimulated the decline. Improved weather in the cotton sections and continued dullness in the Worth Street gray goods market also were factors.

A partial recovery midway of the session on resumed trade support cut losses temporarily by around $1.25 a bale, but the selling continued and prices dropped late in the day.

Sugar Futures

New York, July 23 (AP).—Sugar prices closed sharply higher today on rumors 20 ships might be withdrawn from the Philippines-U. S. run and brought an immediate request from the Government for details of the reports.

Dr. Joshua Bernhardt, chief of the sugar division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, in a telegram to the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, said:

"We understand that the No. 3 (sugar) contract advanced 6 to 8 points this morning on the exchange because of reported anxiety of some regarding future sugar supplies. Could you advise which members of the exchange participated in this trade in order that we may obtain information from them and their clients as to the specific reasons for their anxiety."

In the raw market a sale at 3.60 cents a pound followed by another at 3.61 cents put prices 4 points above the last previously reported spot business. Refined was unchanged.

ODD BODKINS — By FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

WHO WANTS HIM TO GO ON THE STAGE? J.B. WHO? YOU'LL HAVE TO SPEAK LOUDER. HIS NAME IS WHAT? SPEAK UP — I CAN'T HEAR YOU!
MINNIE TUGGLE, GET OFF THIS LINE! CAN'T A BODY TALK WITHOUT YOU BUTTIN' IN? I WAS ON IT FIRST, EMILY TWEEDY! I WAS ON AFORE EITHER OF YOU!
HAVE YOU GOT HIM YET? I GOT FOURTEEN PEOPLE ON A PARTY LINE, ALL TALKIN' AT ONCE, AND I CAN HEAR EVERYONE BUT THE RIGHT ONE!
WHO WAS IT, GRANDMA? I HUNG UP! IT WAS SOME CRAZY MAN OFFERING YOU $500 A WEEK FOR GOING ON THE STAGE!

JOE PALOOKA — Quick Visit — BY HAM FISHER

NOW ONLY FOR A MINUTE AND BE VERY QUIET. I WILL.
RED, IT'S ME, JOE. H-H'LO PAL. ARE YA OKAY? UHHHH UHHH I I WAS W-WORRIED ABOUT YA
S-SURE RED — BUT I WUNT OF BEEN — YOU TOOK IT AN' SAVED ME — RED I AW G'WAN Y-YOU'D OF DONE UHHHH IT FER ME.
YOU'LL HAVE TO GO NOW. G'BYE RED. COME BACK SOON JOEY.

WINNIE WINKLE — The New Generation — BY BRANNER

HELLO, MRS. WINKLE! YES, WINNIE IS RIGHT HERE! YOU WANT TO ASK HER ABOUT THE FORMULA FOR HER TWINS? UH-HUH OH — I'LL
I AGREE WITH YOU, MRS. WINKLE! WE WERE RAISED IN THE OLD-FASHIONED WAY AND WE BROUGHT UP OUR BABIES THE SAME WAY!!
YOU'RE RIGHT, MRS. WINKLE! THESE MODERN NEW-FANGLED NOTIONS THEY HAVE ABOUT RAISING BABIES ON FORMULAS ARE PLAIN BUNK — SAY, WHOSE BABIES ARE THEY, ANYWAY?

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELFY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN — Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — Torn Paper — BY MONTE BARRETT AND RUSSELL ROSS

I'LL BE CAREFUL — WHAT I'D LIKE TO FIND IS THAT SINGLE SIGNIFICANT CLUE THAT CRIMINALS SO OFTEN OVERLOOK!
CAREFUL HOW YOU RUMMAGE AROUND HERE, JANE — MY MEN ARE LOOKING FOR FINGER PRINTS!
LIKE THIS NEWSPAPER, FOR INSTANCE — SEE? SEVERAL PAGES ARE TORN — A NARROW STRIP OFF EACH EDGE! THAT DOESN'T MAKE SENSE — HE WASN'T TEARING OUT A STORY — HE TORE SEVERAL PAGES AT ONCE!
BUT WHY? IF WE KNEW THAT, IT WOULD MAKE SENSE — IT'S THIS MORNING'S PAPER — THESE STRIPS WERE TORN OFF EITHER JUST BEFORE OR RIGHT AFTER THE CRIME! IT HAS SOMETHING TO DO WITH PACKING THE STOLEN GEMS, NO DOUBT!

SUPERMAN — No Gentleman — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

LOIS — ON THE ROOF WITH SUPERMAN...! HURRY!
SUPERMAN WOULDN'T STRUGGLE WITH A GIRL — THAT MUST BE "LIPPY" — DOUBLE-CROSSING ME...!
HOISTING LOIS OVERHEAD..... NO!! CALL THE COPS, WILL YOU!
...LIPPY HURLS HER OUT INTO SPACE! NO ONE CAN CROSS "LIPPY" JENKS — AND NOT PAY FOR IT! EEEE-EEEE!

Tonight's the last night, for the time being anyway, that Washingtonians will be able to see as well as hear Glenn Miller's Orchestra.

For tonight's the last of their three-night stand at Riverside Stadium, where they've been entertaining a visual audience of thousands as well as a radio audience of millions in their "Moonlight Serenades" over WJSV and the Columbia network.

Tickets for the broadcast, which, you'll be pleased to know, are free, can be obtained at any Peoples Drug Store.

By far the leader in record sales, Glenn Miller has also been twice voted the best dance band in America, and this year he won top awards for both "sweet" and "swing" types of music awarded by a well-known musical magazine.

Already this month more than 50,000 persons have attended his broadcasts, and almost as many have danced at his private appearances. There can be small doubt that the band is popular.

But it's been no sudden success. For twelve years Miller has been building the original arrangements which have set today's swing style. Miller played, when just out of school, with the great Bix Beiderbecke, Red Nichols, the Dorsey Brothers, Ben Pollack and Andre Kostelanetz. He organized Ray Noble's American band, and arranged for many other famous leaders before swinging out on his own.

Contract Bridge

There are two variations of the Deschapelles coup. In one a high honor, unsupported by the next ranking card of the same suit, is deliberately sacrificed to create an entry in partner's hand.

When this deal was played, North led his king of diamonds up to dummy's ace, jack, so that his partner's established queen would later be an entry for him to run his long spades. The cards, with neither side vulnerable and West dealer:

NORTH: ♠ 7 ♡ Q832 ◇ K742 ♣ A653
WEST: ♠ 863 ♡ AKJ5 ◇ AJ ♣ 9842
EAST: ♠ A52 ♡ 6 ◇ 10965 ♣ KQJ107
SOUTH: ♠ KQJ1094 ♡ 10974 ◇ Q83 ♣ none

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♠
Pass	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: K ♠.

The spade king was opened and declarer held off his ace until the second round. He played the king of clubs and North went right in with the ace. As North was void of his partner's suit, the only way he could get him in the lead was by making the Deschapelles coup.

He led his king of diamonds toward West's ace, jack. Declarer put on the ace, as he thought he saw an easy way to make his contract. He was sure of one spade, two hearts, one diamond and four clubs. North's lead of the diamond king seemingly placed him with the queen, so by returning the jack of diamonds, East could set up his own ten and nine and win an overtrick.

Declarer played the diamond jack from dummy and was a very unhappy young man when South showed up with the queen. Four more spades were immediately cashed and East found himself down three tricks, losing five spades, a diamond and a club.

Declarer would have done better to take his sure winners at once, but his play to North's diamond lead was immaterial.

TOMORROW: The second variation of the Deschapelles coup.
